

THE CHINESE WAR.

Death of Fong Ah Lung, Shot in the Fray.

Testimony Given Before the Coroner.

The Causes Which Led to the Bitter Warfare.

The Story of the Actor's Stolen Wardrobe Still Adhered To—Mong Ki Leng Charged With Murder.

At 9:45 o'clock yesterday morning Fong Ah Lung, the Ventura Chinaman who was shot in the abdomen during a fight between the rival factions of the Bing Hong Tong and Hop Sing Hong companies into which the inhabitants of Chinatown are divided, died in the temporary receiving hospital at the city prison, in spite of the efforts of the physicians who operated upon him on Thursday night. The body was removed to the morgue by order of the coroner, and at 7 o'clock last night an inquest was held upon it at the parlors of Orr & Sutch.

The first witness was Police Officer J. M. Stewart, who testified that at 7:30 o'clock on Thursday night he was standing on the right-hand side of Alameda street, near near Chinatown, when he saw a crowd of Chinamen standing across the street on the corner of Marchessault street by the water company's office. They were all talking together, but there was nothing unusual about their gestures. Suddenly one of their number drew a gun and shot at another, who turned and ran, but fell to his knees and then rolled over. Instantly the others began shooting, and ten or twelve shots were fired in rapid succession. The Chinaman who fired the first shot ran across from the water company's office towards Los Angeles street, but stumbled as if injured. The officer started in pursuit, but before he had gone many feet three Chinamen told him to stand back, and presented their revolvers at him. He at once drew his weapon and fired at them, when the whole crowd scattered in every direction, and in the meantime the wounded man had reached Los Angeles street and disappeared. Stewart then directed his attention to the Chinaman who had fallen and still lay upon the ground, and summoning the patrol wagon sent him to the station. A white man across the street was struck by a stray bullet, but he was carried off in a buggy. The officer subsequently found the Chinaman whom he supposed to be the one who fired the first shot in bed in a room on Los Angeles street. He was shot through both legs, and was taken to the city jail.

C. E. Wallin, of the detective force, knew nothing of the shooting; but after the deceased had been taken to the station he, through Chan Kin Sing, an interpreter, took the wounded man's statement, which was subsequently submitted to before Justice R. A. Marshall. The deceased repeated this statement several times. The statement was then read to the jury.

Chan Kin Sing, an interpreter and merchant, testified to having translated the statement which appeared in the columns of the HERALD yesterday morning, as it was given by the deceased. The witness then repeated the statement as it had been given to him at the time.

A slight delay was caused at this juncture owing to the absence of some of the witnesses; but in a few minutes three Chinamen were brought in handcuffed, by Constable Fred Smith and Detective Bowler.

Ah Jung, a cook, said he did not know anything whatever about the shooting, as he was smoking opium in the rear of a Chinese restaurant on Alameda street from 6:30 o'clock up to the time of his arrest. He did not know either the deceased or Mong Ki Leng, nor did he belong to any company. He was distantly related to Ah Mow, their family name being Lau. Their ancestors were all united in brotherhood, therefore there were four families, the members of which were cousins to each of the other families.

Ah Chung, a barber, was in his shop in Nigger alley, and knew nothing whatever about the affair. He was a member of the Bing Hong Tong company, the members of which were Freemasons. Wong Chee also belonged to the order. Wong Gun stated that he was a Freemason, as was also Wong Chee. The company to which Ah Mow belonged was known as the Hatchet Society. He said there had been trouble between the two companies owing to the fact that a Freemason actor at the Chinese theater had a lot of valuable costumes and other property stolen. The Freemasons knew that the thieves were members of Ah Mow's Hatchet Society, and a few days ago two of them were arrested. Their friends got mad and the shooting was the result of the enmity between the two factions. The witness was standing in a store opposite Marchessault street at the time and saw Mong Ki Leng pass by. At the corner by the water company's office several Chinamen were sitting waiting for him. Among them were Chow Too, Chow Hoo and Chow Gow, the others he did not know by name. As Mong Ki Leng came up he fired at him and the shooting became general. The witness, frightened at the terrible noise, ran away, but was subsequently sent up to get a policeman and have the parties arrested, but he himself was locked up.

Dr. N. H. Morrison testified to having been called to the police station to assist in an operation upon the deceased, who was suffering from a gunshot wound in the abdomen on a line with the elevator shaft. The operation was the only chance for the life of the patient. After death the witness held an examination upon the body, at the request of the coroner. Death was caused, in his opinion, by internal hemorrhage.

The jury, after a short deliberation, returned a verdict to the effect that "Fong Ah Lung, a native of China, 35 years of age, came to his death from a gunshot wound in the abdomen inflicted with a gun in the hands of a person or persons unknown, and we believe Mong Ki Leng to be one of said parties." Chinatown was comparatively quiet last night, although groups of Chinamen stood upon the corners of its streets and discussed the situation in low tones. The officers on the beats in that vicinity, however, kept them from standing round, and a sharp lookout was made for concealed weapons, in accordance with the special instructions of the chief. Only one arrest was made, however, the victim being Ah Ott, who was armed with a big Colt's 45, which failed to escape the eagle eye of Officer Dunn. Henry Woods, who was shot in the right hip by a stray bullet, is more seriously hurt than was at first anticipated, the bullet having penetrated to the groin. He was visited by Dr. Morrison at his residence on Lazard street last night, and was found to be suffering intensely from his wound. An operation will be performed upon him as soon as possible and the bullet extracted, but owing to his condition at present, this may not be feasible for a few days.

The wounded Chinaman, Wong Ki Leng, was progressing favorably last night, though the doctors say that he had a very narrow escape, as the bullet which passed through his legs only just missed the femoral artery.

Steady Progress
Has characterized Hood's Sarsaparilla ever since it was placed before the public. Wherever introduced, its sales have grown from year to year, until now it is the most popular and most successful medicine offered. Any druggist will confirm this statement. The secret of this success lies in the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a medicine of merit. It does actually accomplish all that is claimed for it, and when given a fair trial, is reasonably certain to be of benefit.

Positive Statements.
"Since Hood's Sarsaparilla has been in my hands for sale I have had frequent and unreserved testimonials in its favor. Although carrying this preparation for less than one year, my sales have been greater than of any similar preparation, and the testimonials in its favor are at once positive and personally noticeable." A. Watson, Healdsburg, Cal.

Sells on Its Merits.
"My boys say, 'Papa, why don't you buy more of Hood's Sarsaparilla at a time, we are always short.' It sells on its own merits." F. Diaz, Portland, Oregon; the oldest druggist in Oregon. N. B. Be sure to get only
