Gossip About the Plays and the Players.

Several Attractions Coming to Los Angeles Very Soon.

"Shenandoah" to be Given Here Next Week—Other Amusements Announced This Season.

It is said on good authority that J. K. Emmett has cleared over $90,000 this season.

Patti took home with her $175,000, which represents forty-two appearances in the United States and Mexico.

M. B. Leavitt has arranged for the appearance of Sarah Bernhardt at his new Broadway theater in Denver next season.

Miss Pauline Hall is about to purchase a handsome cottage at Cape May, where she will reside after her return from Europe.

Mrs. Langtry has ensconced herself in a most charming new residence on Pont street, London says.

Flotow left a posthumous opera called Das Katchen von Heilbronn, which has been performed at Mannheim and Hanover, and is announced for Berlin.

M. B. Curtis, the comedian, is worth $300,000. He built a town in California, which he owns with the profits of his play, Sam'l of Posen.—[Exchange.]

Fanny Rice has signed with Rudolph Aronson to remain at the Casino, New York, for another year, from next October. She will not play during the summer.

Tommy Russell is no longer a fauntleroy. His parents asked a larger salary, and his manager retorted that he could not pay it to an infant that began to grow whiskers.

Richard Mansfield's doctor has warned him that he must give up playing Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde if he wishes to preserve his throat. "Hyde" makes a terrible strain on the actor's vocal organs, and, consequently, Mr. Mansfield will never again present this play.

Pictures of Beethoven's father and mother have just been discovered in the attic of a restaurant-keeper named Kempen, in Cologne. Both portraits were painted by Beckenkamp. Kempen's portrait of Beethoven's father is thought to be the only one extant.

Mr. Irving will next autumn open the private theater which Mme. Patti has built at her Welsh home, Craig-y-nos, at a cost of $12,000, says an exchange, and if this be true, what is to become of Patti's promises to "Little" (they're all "little ladies") Miss Harvey?

Sardou is writing a play for Coquelin, which will be played at the Comedie Francaise next season. It is founded upon an incident in the life of the actor Labussiere, who by destroying the papers drawn up against the company by a committee of the convention in 1793 succeeded in restoring to them their liberty.

Great actresses are few and far between. Clara Morris is still the greatest of emotional stars. She has had many imitators, but no rivals. She is to appear here the coming season in one of her most successful roles, and the event will be a great dramatic treat for theater-goers.

Maude Granger opened her spring tour at Washington on Monday night, at the New National theater. She produced Mrs. Lucy Hooper's new play, Inherited, which was originally brought out in Paris last winter. The beautiful Granger is said to have the strongest emotional rôle in Inherited that she has yet been seen in.

Mary Anderson's intimate London friends claim to have received positive information from the lady herself that, although she will soon take a husband, she will not abandon her dramatic career. Anderson's old dresser, now attached to the London theater, is said to have been notified by the actress that her services will again be required next season.

A. M. Palmer's Madison Square Theater Company, of New York, has long been admitted to be the leading stock organization of the English-speaking world. It cannot fail to be of interest to the theater-goers to know that the entire company, numbering forty-two people, will appear here this summer under the direction of Mr. Hayman, in a series of their greatest dramatic successes. Elaborate preparations are to be made for their special cars, and they will travel in their own special cars and carry all the draperies and paraphernalia necessary for a thorough presentation of their plays.

Everybody who read Mark Twain's charming story, "The Prince and the Pauper," was thoroughly captivated by it at once. Everybody who saw Elsie Leslie in Little Lord Fauntleroy was captivated by her at once. These two victorious elements are now in conjunction, and, as might be surmised, Daniel Frohman's production of Mark Twain's dramatization of his story, with Elsie Leslie in the title rôle, has been an unqualified success from the start. It is announced that Mr. Hayman will present the attraction here during the coming season.

General Sherman, who occupied a box at the last performance of Bronson Howard's greatest triumph, Shenandoah, at the Twenty-third-street theater, New York, was compelled by the vast audience present to make a speech at the close of the third act, and he said: "I sent word to the proprietor that there was to be no speech-making here; it was all action. And the scene you have just seen and the words you have just heard come something near a war. Of course it is impossible to secure a battle on a small stage like this, but I can say that the Shenandoah that it is a very life-like scene, and I have always been charmed with the call—especially the bugle call—they are true and delightful, and the mountainside, the signals from Three Top Mount are very good indeed. The new actors and actresses; to them, one and all, I give my heartiest thanks for many pleasant evenings within this amphitheater, and the crowded theater, tonight, proves what a hold Shenandoah has upon the patriotic mind." Shenandoah will be given at the Grand opera house, for five nights and a matinee, commencing on the 20th instant.

A PROPOSED DRIVEWAY.

A Grand Park Boulevard From Seventh Street to Santa Monica.

A movement is on foot among the residents of the Calhenga district to open up a grand park driveway from Seventh-street park due west through Calhenga valley to Santa Monica. It is intended to make it similar to the San Francisco drive to the Cliff house, 100 feet wide, with trees and flowers on each side. It will be fourteen miles in length.

Need Not Apply. The Examiner is a grand old paper and does much for our country, but it is not allowed in the library of Santa Ana. The Los Angeles Herald is the old pillar upon which the prosperity of Los Angeles county has leaned for seven years, but it is not allowed in the Santa Ana reading rooms. The Santa Ana Standard has done a little hard work for Orange county in the past seven years, but it was excluded from the public library two years ago when it was fighting prohibition. These papers are all democratic.

Not a democratic paper in the United States is allowed to go into the Santa Ana library, yet the people call it a public reading room. We smile at these little things, and laughed when we were notified two years ago that no anti-prohibition paper would be admitted into the charmed circle of the short-haired sisters who run that little narrow-minded sectarian brand, the Santa Ana public library.—[Santa Ana Standard.]

LA HABRA VALLEY.

A Very Pretty Part of the Sunlit Semi-Tropics.

EDITORS HERALD—It may not be entirely without interest to your many readers to know there is such a valley so near the city as the "La Habra" valley, and with your permission, for their benefit I will give them some idea of it.

Leaving the beautiful city of Whittier on the east, and passing down the valley over rich orange and fruit lands for about two miles, we come to the place of Gunn, Hazard, Page and others—one of the richest settlements in the valley, and right in the artesian belt. Here is where Sherman Page, of East Los Angeles, sunk for artesian water and found it, and it is thrown up in a seven-inch pipe—the purest, the finest white sulphur water yet found in any country. It throws above the ground fifteen feet, and so great is the flow that it forms a lake of pure white sulphur water, and it is rapidly becoming a resort for invalids. From here, we pass on up the rich valley, and in a mile and a half we come to the celebrated "La Habra" ranch of Major W. H. Toler, of your city. It is finely improved and lies most beautifully, containing one section of the finest orange land, with water rights. I am told he sold it during the boom for $100,000 to a party, to put a depot there and lay it out in a town site, and then took it back, with the water right. It is the best orange land, there is nothing to surpass it. Just north of this about two miles on the low range of the Puente hills, are the Rowland oil wells, now throwing up a large number of barrels of the finest oil daily, which are readily sold. Mr. Rowland is going down all the time for new wells, and will soon have more of them. Passing further on, we come to the La Brea cañon, where you can see millions of tons of asphaltum, which will be shipped off when the railroad is completed through here. The oil and asphaltum will give the road immense freight in this section, where it will cause the valley to settle and be the richest orange valley in Southern California.
