SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1890.

THE APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE.

Every independent newspaper that has come to this office has a word of encouragement of the new departure of the democracy to popularize the choice of a United States senator. The widespread demand that has arisen to so amend the constitution as to make the office of United States senator elective directly by the people has its origin in the fact that the senate has gradually become another house of lords, in which only the plutocratic class can aspire to seats.

We have received from Hon. J. J. Tobin, state labor commissioner, the following emphatic endorsement of the plan and merited eulogium of the gentleman the democracy will put forward to carry it into practical effect: SAN FRANCISCO, May 14, 1890.

Editors Herald—I have read with much interest and gratification the interviews with the public men of Los Angeles, of all parties, regarding Stephen M. White's candidacy before the people of the United States senator.

The Knights of Labor and other great labor organizations have declared themselves in favor of electing United States senators by popular vote. Naturally they will rally around the standard of the man who puts the question to a practical test.

There is but little doubt that the movement will take with the people, irrespective of party affiliation. No better man could be found to lead the van in the battle against plutocracy than the pure, plucky, gifted and highly popular native son of California, Stephen M. White.

The leading republicans of Los Angeles, according to your report, acknowledge that he would reflect honor and credit on his state if elected to the United States senate.

If the democratic state convention, besides endorsing the candidacy of Lieutenant-Governor White, also declared itself unmistakably in favor of ballot reform, on the lines of the Australian system, thousands of voters would support the ticket who otherwise would follow the opposition.

Is the western addition along the beautiful hill section of the city, with its marvellously fine residence sites, there is a great deal of uneasiness felt over the recent action of the Citizens' Water Company in putting up rates to a point which the least excitable business men in the community characterize as absolutely extortionate.

Even under the old rates the company ought to have been able to furnish that part of the city with plenty of excellent water. But still under the new rates dwellers in that portion of the city aver that the supply of water is neither sufficient in quantity nor at all satisfactory in quality. These allegations are serious, and if true the discomfort to the people must be anything but trivial.

The Herald proposes to make a very careful canvass of the situation, and see how much there is in the matter, for the enlightenment of the city council in particular and of the people in general.

A loud complaint is published elsewhere from day laborers employed on city work. The money in the cash fund has run out, and these poor laborers are compelled to have their warrants discounted. The rate charged them is enormous—ten per cent. As these warrants will be cashed in August or September, the discount is at the rate of about 2 1/2 per cent. a month, a Shylockian rate in view of the fact that these warrants are gilt-edged.

HOW TO LIGHTEN THE BURDENS OF GOVERNMENT.

The Stockton Evening Mail calls attention to the fact that the probate tax upon the estate of John Spencer Morgan, which was valued at $100,000, was $400,000. In the "tight little, right little island," every one is compelled to pay his portion of the burdens of the government when he is able to. The poor are passed over, but the rich are utilized to the last possibility. That is one point where the English have an advantage over the Americans. It is true that we have no expensive civil list to maintain, and that our freedom from kings and queens and incubi of that kind is a great blessing. All the same, we might well imitate the "bloody Henglish" in their care for the public revenues.

The probate tax on the estate of the deceased Morgan amounted to four per cent. of the total value of the property left by him. If, when the late William H. Vanderbilt died, his estate of $300,000,000 had paid four per cent. into the treasury of the empire state, the result—annual interest of $12,000,000 would have greatly helped out the revenues of that state. If it had reverted to the city of New York it would have paid half the expenses of the construction of the great Croton aqueduct. Here is a ready means of replenishing the national treasury in the most convenient and least onerous way. A tax on inheritances, reduced to practically nothing where the estate was small, and reasonably large where it was immense, would be a great easement to the taxpayers, and no just complaint could be made against it. We are not sure, besides, that it would not be a good thing to tax unusually opulent estates of the living. There is a sentiment gradually crystallizing all over the world that no single man should be permitted to have over a certain amount of money. The limit ought to be made large, for it is probably only through large fortunes that the arts and sciences can be stimulated to their highest development. The Cosmos de Medicis are as necessary in the affairs of the world as the wage-earners. But there is a conviction that large fortunes have been carried to an unjustifiable extreme. The common judgment of mankind would probably be content to place the maximum figure at which individual wealth should be allowed to accumulate at $10,000,000. Over that point should be marked by a rate of taxation that would be practically confiscation. The redundant revenues resulting from such a system ought to be used for the general good. There is a tinge of communism in such suggestions, but some form of communism is as certain to rule the world in the near future as that the night is to succeed the day.

All large estates should be taxed heavily when they pass by inheritance. In nineteen cases out of twenty the persons who inherit this wealth have had nothing to do with its accumulation, and are in the ordinances of nature not any more entitled to it than the veriest tramp. A probate tax administered on principles of rigid justice would relieve the people of nearly all the burdens of government. These fortunes have been accumulated through the protection of the laws. Save for the legal safeguards established by the communities in which they have sprung up they could not be maintained for a day. They should, accordingly, be made to bear their full share of the maintenance of the fabric of civilized government. The same rule of justice that taxes large estates should allow small inheritances to pass to heirs with but a trifling tax.

THE SENATORIAL PLAN TAKES.

We have already published extracts from papers in all parts of the state, and of all grades of politics, enthusiastically endorsing the revival of the good old plan of having candidates for the United States senate go before the people to present their views on national questions in the campaign that elects the legislature which is to choose a senator. The democratic party, with Hon. Stephen M. White as its choice, proposes to revive this good old democratic custom in the next campaign, and the press has very unanimously approved the move. We give below two very strong and clear endorsements of the proposition. The first is from the Pomona Register and the second from the Ventura Democrat, as follows:

THE DEMOCRACY OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY is making a loud call on Lieutenant-Governor Stephen M. White to enter the lists against Senator Stanford in this fall's election. It is almost certain that he will do so, and that his eloquent voice will be heard in the campaign through in favor of the success of democracy and governmental management. Mr. White is a strong man, and his great argumentative powers if used on the rostrum throughout the state will make certain, what is otherwise reasonably sure, democratic success throughout the state.

It will thus be emphatically a campaign of brains against wealth, and the present temperament of the people politically will not be long deciding which way the verdict shall go. The progressive element in California will support White to a man, and his election will be a certainty from the time he proclaims his candidacy.

ONE OF THE BRAINIEST MEN OF THE STATE. The democrats of Los Angeles have formally nominated Hon. Stephen M. White as a candidate for United States senator. It is proposed that Mr. White shall canvass the state in that capacity and if a democratic legislature be elected, that he will be its choice for senator. We have no doubt that this arrangement will suit the democracy of California. Steve White is one of the brainiest men of the state, eloquent, logical and popular with the masses, and would stir up more enthusiasm from the stump than has been infused into any campaign in the state's history. It is not alone White's ability and gifts of oratory, that make him a popular favorite, but the people have confidence in the incorruptible integrity of the man, and place implicit reliance upon his fidelity to their interests, for the reason that he has never failed them.

THERE can be no doubt that the secretary of the treasury in ordering the Chinese clandestinely entering San Diego from Lower California to be returned to China has pursued the best course. It would be a vain thing to return them to Lower California so as to find them, as was concisely said, breakfasting the next morning in San Diego. But it is going to be a costly piece of business to return to China all the Chinamen stealing into the country, both from Lower California, Mexico and British Columbia. It would perhaps be cheaper to establish patrols at convenient points on the borders to keep them out than to arrest them after they had run the lines and then send them back to China. Diplomacy ought to be able to effect something satisfactory on this subject with Mexico, if not with the Dominion. Mexico is certainly not desirous of encouraging the landing on her shores of Chinese, and would doubtless listen to any fair proposition from the United States to render the exclusion act effective. The people of British Columbia are with us in this matter, but they are overwhelmed by the general government of the Dominion of Canada.

BUSINESS, NOT SUBSIDIES.

Manager Wade's Views on Railroad Building to San Diego.

General Manager K. H. Wade, of the Southern California railroad, has been aroused to the point of writing a letter to a San Diego editor in regard to the chimerical schemes of the people of that section for additional railroads. He is of the opinion that good business prospects for a road building into that section would be more of an inducement to prospective lines than a meagre subsidy. The following article from the Escondido Times called out this expression of view: "We firmly believe that the surest and quickest method to bring a permanent prosperity to San Diego is to encourage the storage of water all over the county, thus bringing large tracts of land under cultivation. The capital necessary to develop the water will be spent in the county. It will serve as a loadstone to draw immigration and capital that will be much greater than the attraction of another line of road. Let us encourage and build up what we have. It is the large number of prosperous places, such as Riverside, Redlands, Ontario, Pomona and other producing neighborhoods tributary to Los Angeles that have made that city what it is today, and has induced capital to invest in high-priced property. The sudden flurry in town lots caused by the advent of a new railroad, while it may assist some holders to unload, will not result in the substantial increase of business to compare with that of internal development of the county."

Mr. Wade's letter is as follows: So. Cal. R'y Co., Los Angeles. Mr. James Truesell, Editor Escondido Times.

Dear Sir—I was pleased to notice the article in your paper of May 8th in regard to "Irrigation vs. Railroads," and wish to compliment you upon the very able manner in which you have written in regard to this subject. I only wish that all parties interested in this matter could look at the subject in the same light and with the same broad and liberal views that you do. The great need for the existing railway lines in Southern California is more business, and it certainly is not very encouraging for them to undertake to improve or develop the property which they now operate, while a continuous effort is being made to promote and develop new lines, and thereby divide the already limited business which is offered. I am sure the companies all have an interest in the development and welfare of the community at large, and recognize the fact that a common prosperity will benefit the railway interests as much as it does the public. Yours truly,

K. H. WADE, General Manager.
