passed by the senate. It may appear to these gentlemen that the long-suffering patience of the American people is inexhaustible, and that the people will endure to be juggled with till doomsday. But they will find out their mistake in these premises. The passage of Major McKinley's bill and the failure to pass the silver bill, will surely prove too much for the party of all expediency, of much policy and no principle. Its back has been weak for a long time, its burden of sins of omission and of commission is heavy, and these two added weights will break its spine.

THE SAN JOSE MEETING. There will be a meeting of railroad agitators at San José on the 25th instant, the alleged object being to raise funds for the construction of a railway down the coast from San Francisco to San Diego. In other words, a number of gentlemen who know nothing of railroad building or railroad operating are going to meet and plan to do something that the Southern Pacific Company, one of the most gigantic and successful transportation organizations in the world, has not yet found it quite a first-class business proposition to completely carry out. Now, if there is any one thing that Los Angeles county needs more than another, just at this time, it is the completion of the coast road, there being a gap of less than a hundred miles to construct. If the great Southern Pacific people still hesitate about closing up this gap, however, what can be expected from a new company, who have four hundred or more miles to build, and have no right-of-way and no knowledge of railway building and operating? It is just simply as impossible for a new company to organize and raise money and build down the coast from San Francisco to Los Angeles or San Diego as it would be to parallelize the same company's tracks up the valley of the San Joaquin. It would cost to build and equip such a road at least sixteen million of dollars, and then it would hardly be a paying enterprise. But there is one thing that these agitators might do—raise, say, a million or two in money and lands and give them to the Southern Pacific Company along with a right-of-way from Templeton to Santa Barbara, and, our word for it, the company alluded to will have the coast road completed and in running order in less than a year. Los Angeles did the best thing it ever acquitted itself of when, in 1872, it voted nearly a million dollars in bonds to the Southern Pacific Company provided it would connect this county with San Francisco and Yuma at a certain time, which it proceeded at once to do. This city and county are already connected with Santa Barbara, and have given liberally toward that connection and all other work that the Southern Pacific has ever done in our midst. If needs be, and those most interested in a coast road do the liberal thing in the giving of money and land and rights-of-way, the people of this county will not be a bit backward in making the subsidy still more substantial. But we admonish our delegates not to promise too much toward or get too exuberant over Mr. Ellwood Cooper's topographical delineations of a new road; but, in any other way, to do what they can to get the Southern Pacific to close up the gap at once between Templeton and Santa Barbara—for a coast road between Los Angeles and San Francisco would be as good for us as a new transcontinental line—and we believe that in a year from this time the Southern Pacific Company could be running a vestibule train with dining and composite cars in from fifteen to seventeen hours between the two important and constantly-growing cities just named.

We never met San Francisco people who fail to declare that there would be twenty-five persons who would come down here over a fast-running, finely-equipped coast road, where one now travels over the roundabout way of the San Joaquin valley, with the horror of the Tehachapi crests and tunnels and disasters in mind. Yet while a coast line would do a tremendous through business, and run at least two trains a day from the start, there would be more money in a one-train-a-day passenger traffic over the Tehachapi, as there is a good local business all the way. With a coast road our metropolitan and watering place hotels would be filled with San Franciscans the year round. But a majority of these will always think twice and even often before they would seek Arcadia itself via the San Joaquin valley and Tehachapi mountain. Let us then give all the aid and encouragement we can to a coast road. But let us do it in a proper way. Of course, we do not object to two coast roads, but we do think it would be a tremendous mistake for Angeles to contribute largely toward a new coast line, when small tenders all round would effect in a year what many millions could not bring about in four or five years. We know it to be a fact that some of the people who are calling loudly for a new road will not sell to the Southern Pacific Company lands for rights-of-way at reasonable rates. The outcome of the San José meeting will be that intelligence will govern, and that instead of trying to raise a vast amount of money to build a new road, the knowing ones will undoubtedly recommend what we have herein suggested. There would be folly in any other action.

AN EXPLOSION. A Mechanic Badly Burned by Coal Oil. Levi Booth, Jas. Chapman and Chas. Christie, three mechanics employed at the Fulton Iron Works, went to the depot of the Rapid Transit Railroad Company, on Macy street, yesterday afternoon, to repair an engine which was out of gear. While working under the boiler, Christie placed a can containing about a pint of coal oil too near the fire-box, and the result was an explosion. The burning oil was scattered over Christie's clothing, and he was horribly burned about the chest and arms. In rescuing him his fellow-workmen were also badly burned, but their injuries were not of a serious nature. Christie was conveyed to the city jail for medical treatment, which was afforded by Police Surgeon Morrison.

NEW CASES. Documents Filed with the County Clerk Yesterday. Among the documents filed with the county clerk yesterday were the following new complaints: Lewis Davidson vs. Alpine Plaster and Cement Company, suit to obtain judgment for $2,269.50 alleged to be due as damages sustained by reason of the failure of the defendant to comply with the terms of an agreement made March 3d last, whereby plaintiff was to be employed as foreman for one year at a salary of $3.50 per day. By reason of this offer plaintiff broke up his home at Grand Rapids, Mich., and brought his wife and family to this city, but after working for a few weeks he alleges he was discharged without cause. Seward Cole vs. William Beesmeier; suit to obtain a decree declaring a certain tract along the Los Angeles and Santa Monica foothill road a nuisance, and for judgment for $10 per day from October 1st, when the plaintiff as road overseer posted a notice demanding the removal of the said fence. M. V. Clement et al. vs. A. Glassell et al.; suit to quiet title to a certain piece of property on Buena Vista and College streets.

HE ALSO HAD RULES. How the Restaurateur Got Back at the Bank Teller. He had opened a restaurant in Buffalo, and after two or three weeks he called at a bank to get the cash on a small check received from some one in Philadelphia. "Have to be identified, sir," said the teller as he shoved it back. "But I am Blank, of the new restaurant around the corner." "Must be identified." "This is payable to me or order, and I've endorsed it," protested the restaurateur. "Can't help it, sir. Rules of the bank." The man went out and brought some one in to identify him, and the money was handed over. Three days later the teller dropped in for a lunch at the new restaurant. He took a seat and given his order, when the proprietor approached him and said: "Have to be identified, sir." "How? What?" "Have to be identified before you can get anything here, sir." "Identified? I don't understand you." "Plain as day, sir. Rule of the house that all bank officials have to be identified. Better go out and find some responsible party who knows you." "Hanged if I do!" cried the teller, and he reached for his hat and coat and banged the door hard as he went out.—(N. Y. Sun.)

The Fashionable Parasol. The extremely fashionable parasol to be used at the seaside or at the mountains is the most unique Japanese one that can be got. On top must be tied a large black ribbon bow, the ends of which come far down on the parasol when it is opened. It really looks very pretty when worn with a cotton gown, and makes a bright speck on the landscape. The red parasol is also in vogue, and is of plain, heavy silk, with a natural wood handle. One having a silver handle is voted extremely bad form. The very pronounced liking for red is thought to be the outcome of the general woman's disposition. Lining her coat with scarlet, wearing a scarlet frock, having a scarlet parasol, and wearing a scarlet bonnet, is the nearest she can get to painting the town red, which from her youth up she has always had a yearning to do.—(From "Bab's" New York Letter)

A Blatant Error. In reporting Mr. Leach on oranges in Florida yesterday an error crept into the article that does violence to that gentleman's reputation as a horticulturist. Instead of saying that 50 cents worth of commercial fertilizer is put over the roots of the young trees, it should have been that that much money per tree is spent for fertilizing the grove and caring for the tree for a year.

Among the Cannibals. Tomorrow evening Prof. Carl Lunnholtz, the eminent Norwegian explorer and naturalist, will lecture at the Church of the Unity, on Seventh street, near Broadway, giving an account of his interesting experiences among the cannibals of Australia. Prof. Lunnholtz gives a very vivid account of these people, and also of the songs with which they celebrate their horrible rites.

Calico—I see Brown has invented a machine for the craft trade, called the "Tramp." It "counts the ties," you know? Cassimere—Yes, but the name hooded it from the start, I hear. "Nobody can make it work." When congressmen propose to jockey with an appropriation bill they put a rider on it.—(New Orleans Picayune.)

A NEW BLOCK. The Plans are Now on Exhibition at Stoll & Thayer's. In the window of Stoll & Thayer, in the Bryson-Bonebrake block, can be seen the elevation of the magnificent building now in the course of erection at the northwest corner of Third and Spring streets, for Messrs. Hammett & Denker. It will cost when completed $200,000, and is five stories high, with a large clock in the center, which will be lighted by electricity, being the first of the kind in Los Angeles. The building will be lighted by electricity and have all the modern improvements, etc., it being erected under the supervision and from the plans of the well-known architect R. B. Young, assisted by his able draughtsman, Wm. Klapproth.
