

A Woman's Dream.

On Warren avenue, in Chicago, lives a good old lady at the home of her only son, a business man in fairly comfortable circumstances. This is the story the old lady tells:

"It was twenty years ago. We lived, my husband and I, with our children, on a little farm near the Wabash river. My husband went away with the wheat one April, hauling all he had to sell in the big wagon. He was to be back Saturday night, and I sat up for him. The children had gone to bed, but I had a little supper all ready for him, and sat before the fire knitting. It was away past midnight, and I was so drowsy I finally went to sleep in the rocking chair. The night was pretty chilly, and I seemed to feel the cold."

"Presently I dreamed I was about my work, shivering, when I heard my husband throw an armful of wood in the box behind the stove, and I thought, 'Now I can have a fire.' I turned to speak to him, but he was gone, and while I wondered how he could have put the wood in the box, and gotten away so soon I heard another sound like wood falling in a box, though no one was near it. Then I waked up. The fire was out and the clock showed it was two hours past midnight. I was a good deal worried, but went to bed. Next morning they brought my husband's body home. He had been struck and killed by the night express while crossing the track on the way home, and his watch showed that the awful accident had happened at just 3 o'clock."—Chicago Herald.

How to Speak Japanese.

Japanese seems to be a tolerably easy language to learn, after all. The following, under the heading of "The Japanese Language in One Lesson," is from the Japan Herald. "Arimasu" means everything. "Arimasu" means nothing. "Arimasu" means to understand in all its moods, tenses, persons, etc. It is a whole conjugation in one word. "Wakarimasu" is the opposite of "Wakarimasu." "Dekimasu" means unlimited potentiality, past, present and future, and can be used to express anything. It also is a whole conjugation in itself, and can be applied to everything and everybody (yourself included). "Dekimasu" means, of course, everything that "Dekimasu" doesn't mean. "Ka" is a vocal note of interrogation, and can be tacked on to anything. "Ano-ne" can be thrown in anywhere to make conversation.

"After going through the above course the student is competent to say anything. When being spoken to or answered it is advisable to make either the long, 'hai' (medium), or 'ba' (short), which expresses surprise, wonder, assent, sympathy, absorbing interest, honor—in fact, the whole gamut of the feelings, care being taken to ejaculate it in a different tone every time (minor scales preferable), with a varied and appropriate facial expression, the cue for which must be taken from the face of the speaker. When the back of the head is speaking this word properly played upon will keep the other man going all the time."

Perverse Tailors.

One of the most perverse beings in the city of New York is a man's tailor. The tailor makes a man's clothes, but it requires an unusual amount of persistency on the part of the man to have the tailor make the clothes in any other way than as the tailor wishes. Especially does the tailor object to making clothes in the way that the customer wants them. One of the tailors on Madison square undertook to make a coat and a pair of trousers. He took the measurement all right. The coat and trousers were tried on; neither of them fitted. The tailor was told to alter them; they were returned without alterations. The tailor sent them back with the word that he had been altered. This process was repeated twice, until the customer went to the tailor's and told him that the legs of the trousers should be made half an inch longer. The trousers were returned without the legs having been made half an inch longer. In the trousers pocket was a memorandum paper by the tailor, "Make right leg only quarter of an inch longer." The tailor had his own way about the trousers at last.—New York Sun.

Soothing Power of a Nurse's Hand.

"I will tell you when there is agitation in the sick room," said a nurse. "It is when the women of the household think that a male patient is fond of a nurse. It is often the case that a sick man, exhausted and feeble, clinging to life like a drowning man to a straw, will want to hold your hand. Now, in such cases my hand performs the same sort of work that the straw would. I let the patient hold it as I would let a baby hold my watch chain. But if it is the son of the house, and the women folks see it, they literally raise the roof. If it is the head of the house, and they see it and offer any objections, he generally does the roof raising act. I know of a case where the night nurse of a very famous man, who died long since, could not get him to sleep without sitting by his side and letting him hold her hand. He was afraid he would die if he went to sleep, and he clutched her hand with a grip that left marks of his fingers on it."—Interview in New York Press.

Men of the Hour.

The memoir of an old Italian navigator ends with these words: "His voyages brought no advantage to his country because he was a dreamer and not a man of affairs. Though he had been all over the world he never was in it."

Of Goethe, on the contrary, it was said: "He seized the passing hour as a bee does a flower, held it, wrestled with it, sucked it dry of all its honey and then left it behind forever."

The world has use for the man who looks forward, who is in advance of his time, who gathers facts which another who comes after him may cause to yield their lesson, who theorizes and speculates and discovers new law.

But it is among the men who live in the present and make it their aim to influence their own generation that we find the Gladstones, the Bismarcks, the Websters, the Lincolns—all the men who force the world to call them great.—Youth's Companion.

Identified by Her Laugh.

The peculiarities of detection and identification were being discussed by several gentlemen when one of them said: "I know of a remarkable case that occurred not long ago. My wife was down town shopping. While in a Farmers street goods store something occurred that caused her to laugh heartily, whereupon two or three ladies issued from an adjoining room, and one of them exclaimed, much to the surprise of my wife: 'That's Mary Rhinecker! I know that laugh.' She was right. My wife's name before we were married nineteen years ago was Rhinecker. This lady had not seen her since she was a girl, but remembered her laugh well enough to know its familiar tones instantly. Don't you call that a remarkable incident?"—Omaha Bee.

To Ruin Broken Plaster Casts.

An excellent and quick way to mend broken plaster casts and impressions is to paint the broken surfaces over two or three times with very thick shellac varnish, and at each application to burn out the alcohol over a flame. When the shellac is sufficiently soft, press the parts together and hold in position till cool. It will be as strong as it was before broken.—Philadelphia Record.

Mr. W. A. Baldwin, a hardware merchant, of Boonville, Dallas county, Ia., says: "For the past two or three years, I have been subject to cramping pains in the stomach. I have tried a number of different remedies; the best one being Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy, one or two doses of it always cures me." Sold by C. F. Heinemann, 222 N. Main street, and John A. Off, corner Fourth and Spring streets, and all leading druggists.

FRED. HORPE, Agent.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, June 30.—Mr. George Johnson's boy, about eight years old, was taken with cholera morbus and given up to die by the attending physician. Mrs. Markert called at the house with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy, and they gave the boy two doses of it. The effect was a prompt recovery and the next day he was up and about. Everybody in that neighborhood now uses it. Trust, Trustee, Sold by C. F. Heinemann, 222 N. Main street, John A. Off, corner Fourth and Spring streets and druggists generally.

Physicians recommend Highland Unsweetened Condensed Milk for infant feeding and general use.

Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat.

The reason the ordinary oculists and aurists so often fail to cure diseases of the above organs is owing to the fact that most cases require proper constitutional treatment which is seldom given.
