A TARDY AND PRESUMPTUOUS REPENTANCE.

If the Democratic party will only exercise good judgment in making up a ticket at San Jose, it will walk over the state in triumphal march. The animosities that have been aroused in the Republican ranks must inevitably bear bitter fruit. They will not down, for they are of that deep-seated kind that leave a sharp and lasting sting behind. The way in which dirt was thrown at Markham surpassed anything ever before known inside a party contest. The friends of Morrow pursued the tactics of the bravo, and stabbed him in the back whenever they got a chance. Slander, vituperation and falsehood held high carnival, and then to make matters worse, the element of sectionalism was thrown into the contest, and the seeds of a great and irreconcilable breach between the Republicans of the north and the south were sown in rank and quickening soil. Whilst, under the circumstances, Markham will receive his party support at this end of the state, there will be dissatisfaction and defection at the north which will leave the Democratic party a fine field to operate in.

It would be, however, the height of folly to underestimate the strength of the enemy at this time, and by taking it for granted that we can win whether we nominate the best ticket in our power or not, place before the people nominations that are weak. This kind of policy will not win. There are holes in the armor of our opponents. Let there be none in ours. If they have made mistakes we should profit by their errors and make none. We must put our best cards to be sure of success.

The Republicans are trying to make it appear that they broke away from boss and corporation rule this time. This is a frank acknowledgment that they have heretofore been under such rule. When charged with it in the past they have uniformly denied it, and their assumed repentance at this late hour will impose on nobody. The people are not ready to take offenders to their bosom at the first affected blush of contrition. They will require a season of probation before they can be admitted to the feast. Repentance and good wishes may in the course of time approve their sincerity and placate the public, but it is asking too much of the people to accept their confession and reward them with the highest honors at the same time. In the ordinary course, the criminal who pleads guilty receives a clement sentence. Yet outraged justice must have some satisfaction from the culprit. The Republican party's plea of guilty should have due consideration; but that that consideration should also free it, not only from all punishment but give it the highest seats in the temple at once, is not a tenable proposition. Let it sit on the "cutty stool" until the church is fully satisfied it has atoned for its crimes against the whole congregation.

THE DEMOCRACY EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

In local politics occasionally what is known as an independent party sometimes effects needed reforms, and cures evils which otherwise might increase in extent; such movements as a last resort are not to be condemned, but they serve no good end when one or the other of the permanent parties is not only ready but anxious to do the required work.

In local matters the Republican party is suffering from the effects of having made careless nominations in the past. It has to answer for a legislator charged with forgery; for a justice of the peace charged with concealing an alleged criminal; for a county tax-collector whose accounts are being seriously questioned; for a city government, insolently extravagant and unprincipled. All these things, and the consequent desire for relief and reform by the people at large, have led some few men to assume the leadership of a to-be-formed "independent party," under the plea that it will prove a political panacea. This action is ill judged and at best premature. The Democratic party understands the situation; it comprehends the necessity for economy and reduced taxation, together with honest and efficient administration of public affairs.

Its leaders have resolved to present a city ticket which will be made up of men capable, honest, and fearless—men who have the confidence of all good citizens.

Were both parties derelict there might be a reason of existence for a third one, but the situation is not such. One party has been tried and found wanting. The other now stands ready to correct the mistakes, mistakes which are akin to crimes, of the present regime, and be held responsible for a clean forceful administration of city affairs.

YESTERDAY'S Times publishes a clear and comprehensive statement of the trouble between the Typographical Union and the newspaper publishers of this city. It shows that the publishers asked the Union to consider the propriety of a reduction in the price of composition, without fixing upon the amount; that they went before the Union by invitation, and in full session gave their reasons why a reduction should be made; that the next day the Union served written notices upon the publishers that not only would no reduction be granted, but that they should, within twenty-four hours, sign an agreement binding themselves to pay the Union's scale of prices for one year from date; that the publishers refused to be thus despotically coerced, and that the printers, thereupon, went out in a body. The Times also shows by figures from their books, that printers have been earning here from $18 to $36 per week, and that the average wages paid since last December, amounted to $4.06 per day to each employe. A plain statement like this shows which side was in the wrong. Surely the proprietors had a right to ask for a reduction, all things considered. They could not see why 40 cents a thousand should be the Union rates in San Diego, on morning papers and 50 cents here. They had the right to expect that, if the printers did not feel willing to grant a reduction, they would at least treat them with common decency, and not insult them with a counter proposition which no publisher could accede to and preserve his self respect. If it be possible, under any condition of facts, for employers to be in the right, in a controversy with a trades-union, the newspaper publishers of Los Angeles are certainly right in this.

The Jackson Democratic club has been canvassed by one of its members upon its choice for governor with the following result: Total members interviewed, 342; for Pond, 322; for Coleman, 7; for English, 2; for Berry, 1. This may be an extreme showing in favor of Pond; but it is safe to say that, take the Democracy of Los Angeles generally, it stands nine out of ten for that gentleman. Even if this should be a far too favorable estimate, it is manifest to all who have mixed generally with the people that he is the strongest man in the party to head the ticket. It would be to miss a great opportunity to fail to place him there. Indeed, it would be the stupidest kind of politics, when a party has a man who is sure to carry the state, to refuse to avail itself of its great advantage.

Some of the sanitarian doctors in charge of eastern inebriate asylums have placed themselves on record to the effect that dipsomania is incurable. We presume they use the term "incurable" in the sense that habitual drunkenness will be followed by permanent and ineradicable effects. No doubt. But if they mean that a dipsomaniac is irremediable, they are greatly in error. We have in our mind several persons in this city who have come out of the depths and who have been for fifteen and twenty years very pinks of sobriety. If they are not cured, what is it? Practically it is just the same.

We see that some of the clubs are adopting resolutions requesting the County committee to call the next primary election under the law. This will effectually do away with repeating, and all other irregularities. The idea is an excellent one, and should be carried out.

The Baby Printers. In the strike of the printers last week we saw some of the follies of our perverted human nature sticking out. It strangely reminds us of children who desire to have their own way and not obtaining it, pout and scream and cry until they either get it or finding out it will not be allowed them desist from further manifestations. So, too, in the actions of the Printers Union at Los Angeles, they asked what should not be given without seriously injuring and crippling the finances of their employers, and when said employers declined to grant their unreasonable and childish request, they still further acted the part of children by peevishly quitting their work. Such actions are more like those of babies, than of men. -Pomona Register.

"THE BABY PRINTERS" is the appropriate term applied to the men who first made an indefensible strike against the newspapers of this city and then resorted to petty and harmless strokes of vengeance because the publishers did not yield their manhood to them. As we are living in Los Angeles, among reasonable and intelligent people, and in an age of enlightenment, we are fully sustained in our attitude by public opinion. Men who are absolutely in the wrong cannot look for the endorsement of an intelligent American community.

RECOGNITION DAY.

CHAUTAQUA GRADUATES GET THEIR SHEEPSKINS.

Mr. Fleming makes a Statement of Finances—To be Worth $300,000 in Three Years.

The closing exercises of the assembly were held yesterday at the assembly building.

On the platform were Dr. W. H. Pendleton, Rev. J. H. Phillips, Dr. H. M. Du Bose, Dr. S. H. Weller and President S. J. Fleming.

Dr. Du Bose led in the responsive reading. Dr. S. H. Weller rendered the opening prayer. J. H. Phillips read the class poem. This is written by Mary A. Lathbury, the Chautauqua poet, and is entitled "Arise, All Souls, Arise."

In behalf of the examining board Dr. Pendleton spoke in regard to the Luke contest. He said that he did not believe another class in America could show such remarkably high standing. The prize of $100 was awarded to Albert Williams, M. D., standing 98 1/4 per cent. The prize of $50 to Mrs. G. W. Lee, standing 93 1/2 per cent.

President Fleming then made a statement of the assembly's finances. The actual cost of the present session has been about $3,700. He had expected that the receipts would fall short about $1,500, and now he is able to say that sufficient money had been received from tickets to pay all expenses.

During the two weeks there have been about twenty-five thousand admissions, and two hundred and fifty Chautauquans have registered. He regretted that accommodations here had been so scarce, and believes that had entertainment been possible, fully a thousand regular attendants would have been added. In 1891 Redondo will be wiser, and more ample preparation will be made for guests.

The amphitheatre and grounds are worth $45,000 and aside from this, the assembly has $25,000 in notes. It owes $10,000 therefore after all debts are paid there will be $15,000 in cash standing to the assembly's credit. Besides this there are 500 lots netting $300 each, after paying $60 for each to the Dominguez heirs, and therefore, in from three to five years, Mr. Fleming predicts that the association will be worth at least $300,000 "an ample sum to provide commendably and magnificently for our yearly assemblies." Continuing he said: "We are not fearful of the future, we look forward with the perfect assurance that what has begun will proceed."

At the suggestion of Mr. Fleming, the Chautauqua by a rising vote attested thanks to George J. Ainsworth and the Redondo Companies, as well as to the Santa Fe Company for the generous arrangement and financial backing they have given. Homer J. Young also received the thanks of the assembly for his earnest work in the athletic department.

Graduation. In the Bible normal department and C. L. S. C. there were twenty-five graduates, and to these Rev. H. M. Du Bose delivered a brief and brilliant address, and at its close presented the diplomas.

President Fleming offered the benediction, and the session of 1890 was at an end.

A GLANCE

At What Our Chautauqua Assembly Has Done.

The Chautauqua Assembly, which closed yesterday at Redondo, has stamped its influence upon the community. The idea of the People's University is being reaching and deepening, and wherever it reaches the popular mind is improved and elevated. Southern California has many members of the literary and scientific circle who are doing the four years course of reading—striving after the sheepskin that will give them a place among the circle's alumni. The solid mental training is accomplished through the months of careful home study; but this does not take the place of the practical studies. It is at these that recreation is added,—that the structure of literature, science and history is illumined with the light of wit, genius and eloquence.

Beside Lake Chautauqua, each summer gather the thousands of students, to partake of the class and general instruction. This they do in the great period of recreation, when, amid scenes of natural beauty, they can renovate mind and body. Beginning in a small Sunday School union, in western New York, the Chautauqua of numbers classes in every continent and every clime. The Redondo Assembly has many advantages unknown to the mother school. It starts out in life with a fine building, five acres in grounds, $10,000 in money and about 400 residents; a prospect that in a few years, President Fleming predicts will be worth $300,000, an ample sum to furnish the assembly with the best of all that can make it instructive and entertaining.

The lecturers and teachers on the programme of 1890 were selected with care. Men who stood high in the sphere of oratory, learning, music and wit, have been brought to this coast and to this assembly. The management makes this rule—that the chautauqua lecturers shall speak nowhere else in the vicinity, a provision that will in time have its effect.

The number of Chautauqua readers each year increases, and in common with all Californians, they seek in the summer a term of rest, and while giving this the assembly aims to instruct and entertain. A new feature has been added this year, in the way of athletics. Gymnastics, foot ball and tennis are now a part of the regular work, as much as the language classes, the lectures or art lessons. This was the first time a move has been made in that direction. Many obstacles were encountered, and the success was not all the most sanguine had hoped. Still the management, held faithfully up to its agreements, and about $600 has been spent in trophies alone. This department has been made permanent, and it is hoped thereby that the student will come to see the need of physical training, while the athlete is convinced of the importance of mental calisthenics.

The opening session has been most auspicious, and the Chautauqua bids fair to wield an influence of increased force each year, while Redondo becomes a summer rendezvous where music, wit, art, poetry and philosophy are strengthened with muscle, vigor and health, and one is made thereby the more man, "Aye, or woman, either," to use the words of Hamlet.
