THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1890. OUR TRIBUTARY MINES.

A gentleman is in the city who is largely interested in mines in Inyo. He is the chief owner of the Silver Lead series, which are now producing a very large amount of white metal. He says that it costs him $17 per ton to freight ores by rail from Keeler, the terminus of the Carson and Colorado railway, to San Francisco, and $12 per ton to haul them from the mine to the point of shipment. He believes that the C. and C. will be extended to Los Angeles, which is the natural outlet for that whole section of country, which now has to go over eight-hundred miles to reach tidewater at San Francisco. The C. & C. would reach tidewater at Los Angeles in 215 miles. With the completion of that road to this point, all the trade of that vast and reviving region would become tributary to our city. That trade is not now a tithe of what it is destined to be in a few years. Mines that have been closed down for years are again being successfully worked, and new and promising claims are being opened under the stimulus which has been given to the silver producing industry by the recent silver legislation. The Cerro Gordo mine, which for years sent its bullion to San Francisco by way of Los Angeles, is amongst the old properties that are again being worked. Fifteen million dollars were the output of that mine when it was operated by Beaudry, Belshaw and Nadeau. After having been closed for ten years, it is again putting out great and paying quantities of the precious metal. The gentleman from Inyo who is here says that this is the point where reduction and separating works ought to be erected. They would command the patronage of that whole district, and he believes that when the railroad has been extended to tidewater at this point the value of such works as an investment will be apparent. All the ores of eastern California, southwestern Nevada and Arizona would be reduced here if we had the necessary works established.

Mr. BLAINE'S reciprocity plans look very fine on paper, and as expedients to increase the business of his next friend, Andrew Carnegie, they are very good. As a matter of fact, however, his free sugar programme, with a resultant benefit to pig iron, does not seem to enthrall the people of California, whose infant beet sugar industry has been nipped in the bud. The Plumed Knight is a gentleman of infinite resources, but his benevolence appears to be confined to the denizens of the Atlantic Coast. As to the people on the Pacific "divide," Mr. Blaine remarkably resembles a charitable old steamboat captain of Brownsville, the town where Blaine himself was born. Said this worthy, "I always give my alms early in the morning, and those who come first get nothing." That seems to have been the fate generally allotted to the people on this side of the Rocky Mountains.

THAT real estate values in the city are improving is shown by a fact which has come into our possession, and which speaks for itself. For some time past a gentleman has been in Los Angeles, who has desired to invest $25,000 in First street property, between Main and Alameda, and his figure has been $150 a front foot. He has been very much chagrined to find that he cannot invest his money under from $200 to $250 a front foot. These may not look like boom figures, but they are much larger than could have been obtained three months ago. The most diligent efforts of an agent specially employed have not yet enabled this gentleman to get rid of any of his money. What is true of First street is largely true of all other portions of the city.

IT WAS A BIG ONE.

The campaign was opened last night by the Democratic party in this city in a manner that must have struck terror into the hearts of our friends on the other side. Such a demonstration has never before been seen in this part of the state. After the fiasco of last Saturday on the part of the Republicans, the splendid showing of last night was the more noticeable. It was a mere foil for our own noble parade of nearly 3000 men. And for the most part they were men and voters too. It is seldom one sees a procession so well managed as was the one of last night. It started fairly well on time, and after it was set in motion all went as smoothly and easily as possible. The Young Democracy of Los Angeles was in the saddle and they pushed things to fine purpose. Nothing like it had been seen in Los Angeles before.

To be sure it was not quite all the city in the parade. The Democracy from several of the surrounding towns came in strong contingents and swelled the mass. Some three or four of these delegations were too late to get in line. But there were enough in the procession to give some idea of the way the political wind is blowing here this year. It has set in from the Democratic quarter and it will blow a gale next November that will leave Republicanism without an official roof over its doomed head.

The pavilion of course was full to overflowing, where the everlasting truths of the party's creed were ably expounded, by the next governor, lieutenant-governor, congressman, and United States senator. Mr. Pond's address appears in the HERALD in full today and very full notes of the others are given. The whole affair was a most auspicious opening of the campaign and augurs success at the polls in November as sure as eggs are eggs.

IS IT COMEDY OR BLOOD?

There was something quite sensational in the latest appearance of Mr. Collis P. Huntington in the politics of California. The writer of the famous "caving down the banks" letter was supposed not to be averse to taking a hand in practical politics. His advent in the role of a reformer was really theatrical, and caused a great many of the old style leaders in both the great political organizations to draw their breath. His speech to the directors of the Southern Pacific Railway Company, of which he had just been elected President, was, to employ a modern simile, a "sky-scraper."

Since his signal departure in the line of purifying politics Mr. Huntington has been a ready letter writer. It would almost look as if this distinguished railroad administrator had thought that he had mistaken his vocation, and had regretted that he had not devoted his exceptional talents to journalism. He differs with Henry Villard, another great railway man, in this, that while Villard started out in life as a professional newspaper man, Mr. Huntington seems desirous to end his career in that honorable role.

It is only a short time since Mr. Huntington wrote an eloquent letter to a Kern county paper in which he asserted his determination to keep his company out of politics. Recently, he wrote a letter to a gentleman in San Francisco, which letter was published in the Chronicle, in which he said that the company was so anxious to keep out of politics that it would do nothing to prevent the re-election of Senator Stanford to the senate of the United States.

In the language of Mr. Wackelford Squeers, as he laded out his hygienic compound of treacle and sulphur to the happy inhabitants of Dotheboy's Hall, "Here's richness for you."

In other words, the Southern Pacific Railway is going to lie low, while the redoubtable W. W. Stow will put in his best and most approved leeks for Stanford.

And thus the voter sees, as through a glass darkly, the true inwardness of our California politics. THE Oregonian is the representative Republican newspaper of the northwest coast. Whilst as a party organ it is as unscrupulous as any of its set, yet it is conducted with an ability that would prevent it from making admissions damaging to its principles if they were not forced from it by the manifest trend of events. The Oregonian frankly concedes that the Republicans must do whatever they intend to do during the life of the present congress, for it is their last chance. It foresees the revulsion, and advises haste. Says that paper:

No person of sound political judgment supposes that the next house of representatives will be under Republican control. The Democratic majority in it will probably be very large. There are now 330 members of the house of representatives. Idaho and Wyoming will add two more. The Republicans now have 172; the Democrats 158. But it is a good guess that the Republicans will have from 30 to 40 fewer members in the next house than the present one, and the Democrats that many more; so that of 332 members of the next house, the Republicans are not likely to have more than 135. This would give the Democrats 197, or a majority of 62. We even think it probable that the Democratic majority will be larger than this. It is not often that we can freely coincide with a Republican organ in its political prognostics; but in this case we are at one with the Oregonian.

A WIFE'S INFIDELITY

The Cause of a Most Shocking Crime.

The Deserted Husband Goes on a Killing Tour.

Vengeance First Visited on the Man Who Wronged Him.

The Desperate Man's Three Young Daughters Next Ruthlessly Slain.

Suicide the End.

Associated Press Dispatches. PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 17.—A most awful tragedy occurred here tonight, and the city is in a fever of excitement. Fred H. Hein, a cooper, aged 45, blew out his brains after having killed two of his daughters, and probably fatally wounded a third and a man whom he suspected of having done him a great wrong. Several months ago Hein's wife left, and it is reported she had been unfaithful. Her name had been connected with Charles Taylor, a well known hardware merchant. After she left, his daughters, the eldest of whom was but 15, kept house for him. Recently it was reported that the eldest of the girls, Carrie, had become wayward. This, with the other trouble, preyed upon Hein's mind until tonight, when he evidently determined to end all his troubles. He went to Taylor's residence at 7.30, and as the man was entering the house, shot him twice in the back. Taylor is still alive, but very low. While able to converse he said he did not know what prompted Hein to shoot him. After shooting Taylor, Hein hurried to his own house, and soon after the people in the vicinity were alarmed at hearing a pistol shot. Immediately afterward Maud, his 13-year-old daughter, ran out of the house and fell upon the sidewalk. Neighbors went to her assistance and she said her father had shot her. She was quickly removed to the hospital and it was found one bullet had gone through her face, another through her stomach and another through her hip. She can not live. When officers and neighbors entered Hein's house the kitchen presented an awful sight, everything being smeared with blood. Just outside the back door lay Bertha, the youngest daughter. She was unconscious and expired in fifteen minutes, a bullet having entered her head behind the left ear. When the officers entered the front room, they found the dead body of Hein stretched on the floor with a bullet through his temple, fired by his own hand. The people are wrought up to a high pitch of excitement.

ANIMALS UNCAGED.

TERRIBLE SCENES IN A SOUTH AFRICAN TOWN.

A Whole Menagerie Turned Loose in the Streets—Men, Women and Children Devoured by Savage Beasts.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Advices from Kimberly, South Africa, tell of an awful occurrence there. At midnight, of the 1st of June last, some person evidently bearing ill feeling toward the proprietor of Tillis' menagerie, opened the doors of the cages confining the wild animals, and set them all free. Most terrible scenes followed. Four attendants sleeping on the premises endeavored to round up the beasts, but were mangled beyond recognition, being actually torn limb from limb. The entire population within a radius of a mile were aroused by the roaring of the lions, the trumpeting of the elephants and the shrieks of other wild beasts. Having tasted blood in their struggle with the employees, the brutes regained all their natural ferocity, and sprang at every living thing in their way. Four performing Hungarian horses were killed almost instantly, and a number of ponies devoured. An enormous elephant burst through a heavy iron gate and rushed into the street, followed by nearly every animal in the menagerie. The little child of James Grindley, in a rear room opening on a garden, was pounced upon by a cheetah and dragged into the open air, where the agonized mother saw it torn to pieces and devoured before help could reach it. Other harrowing incidents are reported, among them the killing of five women, who were fearfully mangled. When the mails left, four lions, two lionesses, two tigers, three bears, two wolves, one hyena, two cheetahs, one elephant, one camel and seventeen baboons were still at large. The police have been organized in hunting parties, and the people are keeping in doors.

THE LAW DEFIED.

The Santa Fe Company Continues to Favor Los Angeles.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—The decision of the inter-state commerce commission in the case of the San Bernardino chamber of commerce vs. the Santa Fe and allied roads, affecting terminal rates, ordered that after September 1st through rates to San Bernardino should be no higher than to Los Angeles. The effect of this decision was that Los Angeles was not entitled to terminal rates or lower, by virtue of water competition. Since the first of the month the Santa Fe company has quite ignored the decision and order and is waiting for legal proceedings to begin in order to carry the question to the United States circuit court. The issue is of great importance to the railroads and the commercial interests of their terminals.

CAPT. AINSWORTH'S LOSS.

His Fine Residence with Nearly All Its Contents Burned.

OAKLAND, Sept. 17.—Flames broke out in the roof of the kitchen of Capt. J. C. Ainsworth's residence at Claremont, today, and spread so rapidly that the whole house was soon destroyed. Everything in it, except a desk and piano, was burned. The horses were rescued, but the stable and carriage were also destroyed. The conservatory with rare orchids was saved. Captain Ainsworth's residence was one of the finest on the coast and was filled with costly paintings, statuary and bric-a-brac. The loss is $80,000.

STEPPED ON A MATCH.

A Small Circumstance Accompanied With Fatal Results.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—Today, while cleaning furniture with gasoline, Mrs. Caroline McNaughton stepped on a match. It ignited and the gasoline exploded, setting fire to the clothing of Mrs. Mattie Edgar. She ran from the room and collided with Mrs. Allen Goodhue, who fell down and broke her ankle. Mrs. Edgar ran into the yard, where Mrs. McNaughton in attempting to assist her, was terribly burned about the face and hands. Mrs. Edgar died this evening and the other two women are in a serious condition.

A Condemned Whaler.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—The three mates and three of the crew of the whaling bark Lagoda arrived here today on the steamer Rio Janeiro, from Yokohama. The Lagoda left this port on a whaling voyage at the opening of the season, but soon sprung a leak. Men were put at the pumps and she finally reached Vladivostok, Siberia. Here men compelled the captain to sail for Yokohama where the ship could be surveyed. The captain started for Yokohama, but soon after changed his mind and started back on a whaling voyage. When the crew discovered this they mutinied on the high seas and forced the captain to sail for Yokohama. At that port the bark was condemned by the American consul and sold.

Army of the Cumberland.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 17.—The society of the Army of the Cumberland began its reunion today. General Rosecrans presiding. Permanent committees were appointed and a message of fraternal greeting sent to the Army of Western Virginia, in session at Parkersburg. After adjournment the members were driven in carriages about the city. In the evening General Yates P. Thurston of Nashville, delivered the annual oration. Being the only southern member of the society who had ever been chosen to deliver the annual oration, he would, he said, discuss the effects of the war from a southern standpoint. The liberalizing effect of the war was dwelt upon, and the complex race question discussed in a broad and liberal spirit. The meeting closed with a camp fire at which remarks were made by a number of comrades.

SLAVERY IN ZANGUEBAR.

The German Officials Deny That It Has Been Sanctioned.

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—The Reichsanzeiger says the principal German official at Zanzibar, replying to a dispatch from the home government, denies that a proclamation sanctioning slave dealing has been published at Bagamoyo. LONDON, Sept. 17.—A dispatch from Berlin to the Standard says: Herr Vonsen, for several years German consul at Zanzibar, declares that it is impossible that the German East Africa company has issued the alleged slavery proclamation. ZANZIBAR, Sept. 17.—The slavery proclamation has to be signed by the German commander of the respective stations. The brokers houses are now full of slaves, having been established under German licenses. Permits to recover runaway slaves will lead to much kidnapping of free natives. The news of the proclamation has spread over the whole coast. The traffic has revived to an extent unknown in thirty years. Staikin advices have been received confirming the report of the prevalence of cholera at Massawah. Traffic between Massawah and Staikin has been absolutely closed.

Etzeta in His Glory.

LIBERTAD Sept. 17.—The festivities on the 15th inst., in celebration of Gen. Etzeta as provisional president of San Salvador, were enthusiastically taken part in by the people. A great municipal banquet was given. President Barrillas, of Guatemala, Bogran of Honduras, Sagasa, of Nicaragua, and Rodriguez, of Costa Rica, and President Diaz, of Mexico, have tendered congratulations to President Etzeta. The country is at peace and business is active again.

Meeting of the Emperors.

RONNSTOCK, Sept. 17.—Emperor William received Emperor Francis Joseph at the depot here this evening. The two emperors repeatedly embraced and kissed each other. Count Kalnoky was cordially greeted by Chancellor Von Caprivi.

Condensed Cablegrams.

The king of Portugal has accepted the resignation of the whole cabinet. It is expected that the Serpa Pimental will remain premier. The Austrian war ship Taurus, reported foundered in the Black sea, has arrived in a damaged condition at Constantinople. The damage to the Alhambra by Tuesday's fire, is $50,000. The fire was the work of thieves to screen the theft of works of art in the palace. It is announced that General Boulanger will publish a full explanation of the exact relations between himself and the exacting party, as well as his connection with his own adherents. The official announcement is made in Brazil that the elections are finished, and that the majority secured by the government proves conclusively that the people are in favor of the maintenance of republican institutions. The London Chronicle's Vienna correspondent says the prospect arising from the passage of the McKinley tariff bill, combined with the fall in gold, has lowered the price of mother-of-pearl 13 per cent. The mother-of-pearl manufacturers have closed their factories in order to avoid working at a loss, and 10,000 persons are thrown out of employment.
