

ILLUSTRATED HERALD.

IT IS HIGHLY SPOKEN OF BY NEWSDEALERS.

What They Have to Say of It—Sure to Do the Country Great Good—Splendid Engravings and Reliable Statistics.

A HERALD reporter was detailed yesterday to go among news stands, stationers and newspaper sellers, to discover what they think about the Illustrated Herald as a beneficial proposition to this section.

The reporter made an extended visit to the stands, and among the principal persons interviewed may be mentioned Stoll & Thayer, the Nadeau news stand, Edwards & McKnight, Lee & Miller, Fowler & Caldwell and the Westminster news stand. A considerable number of real estate agents, hotel men and others were also seen, and their opinion was eminently in favor of the Illustrated Herald and the good work it was doing. It had been the intention of the reporter to give each person who was spoken to a few lines, embodying his opinion in his own words, but the verdict expressed by everybody was so nearly alike that it would have become a tedious repetition of words to have stated what each had to say laudatory to that splendid publication known as the Illustrated Los Angeles Herald for 1890.

The sale of the paper is reported as excellent. It is favorably spoken of by all purchasers, some of whom have learned to know the usefulness of the paper. As a general rule it is sold wrapped up to customers who buy a number of copies at once, all prepared to be sent to friends in the states by mail and merely lacking the address.

It was the impartial opinion of all persons interviewed that the Illustrated contains nothing but what is strictly true, and although to eastern people some of the statements in it might appear exaggerated because they are unacquainted with California's lovely climate and her fertile soil, yet the gentlemen spoken to thought that a visit here would soon convince the incredulous of the truths contained in the Illustrated Los Angeles Herald. "Statistics," said one news-dealer, "are things that need no praise. They speak for themselves, and ought to convince anybody, up to St. Thomas, who was the most difficult man to admit anything until he had touched it with his finger, but you can say that the splendid engravings of the Illustrated will carry conviction wherever they are seen. The street scenes, the business blocks, the rural residences and some of the suburban views are so life-like and truthful that they can not fail to make the man, who already begins to shiver now, in apprehension of bleak winter, wish that he could take his family with him to this favored spot."

The paper is sent north, east and south to friends of residents or visitors, so that they may form an opinion about this section of the state, and in hopes that the seductive pen pictures and engravings may induce them to come here for the purpose of partaking a slice of the delights that the Italy of America showers upon her guests.

The general opinion was that the Illustrated Los Angeles Herald is doing the greatest good in other sections to induce the immigration of desirable classes, that it does not fly to exaggeration for the purpose of accomplishing such a result, but that it depended upon truthful and honest statements. Many laudatory remarks of other kinds were made, the general import of which was that the Illustrated Herald has been, is now, and will in the future be one of the great factors for the aggrandizement and progress of Southern California.

A Political Dreamer.

EDITORS HERALD: I have seen in the San Francisco Examiner of the 18th instant, the synopsis of a speech by Col. Markham, and also one by a gentleman by the name of H. V. Morehouse, which I think deserve to be specially noticed. The main point discussed by Colonel Markham was by telling his audience what a fine clever fellow he was in his boyhood days, and how he had reaped, cradled and mowed the grain and grass, and laid it in wide swathes in his youthful manhood, the truth and honor of all which no one wishes to dispute. But the people of this great state are not particularly interested at present to know what great feats in farming Colonel Markham may have performed in his youthful days, as it is very well known that he did not cut a very wide swath in the hall of Congress.

Mr. Morehouse used began his speech by relating a dream in which he saw Colonel Markham and Mayor Pond approach St. Peter, each basing his application for passage through the gate on the ground that he had been a candidate for governor of California. Colonel Markham, so the dream went on, was assigned to the right hand elevator, and went up until he eventually reached paradise. Mayor Pond was assigned to the left hand elevator and was sent down.

Now I have always been a skeptic in regard to dreams, but after reading Mr. Morehouse's dream I determined at once to consult a first class astrologer to know what kind of a solution he would give it; and after relating the dream to him as told by Mr. Morehouse, the seer, after giving his cards a few mysterious shuffles, informed me that I would have to wait a little while as he seemed to be some complications as to the normal state of Mr. Morehouse's stomach when he retired to bed on that night in which he had dreamed, as it occurs only on certain occasions that men are likely to have such lucid perceptions of the future, and he wished to ascertain whether the dream was caused by indulging too freely in sourkrout, limber cheese and lager beer, or by eating whisky, or from all combined, and gave me the following interpretation:

"The dream," he said, "taken all in all, is really very significant, and clearly portends the defeat of Colonel Markham. And in the windup of the dream, owing to certain irregular hallucinations caused by the limburger cheese and lager beer, Mr. Morehouse, in his visions, mistook the elevator which carried him up to bed for a raft that will ply, after the idea of November next, between the city of Pasadena and intermediate ports to the head of Salt river, the paradise of the forlorn, a place where the woodbine twine, and the notes of the whangdoodle are heard no more. And Colonel Markham will have a preferred passage on her first voyage. And as to Mayor Pond in the left hand elevator," it simply means that he will go to Sacramento to fill the gubernatorial chair."

AN OLD DEMOCRAT.

Who Is to Be Believed?

EDITORS HERALD: According to the report of the proceedings of the last session of the board of health, in regard to the Donegan garbage nuisance, Mayor Hazard is reported as saying that in company with Dr. MacGowan he had inspected the dump, etc., and they found no nuisance there; everything clean and nice smelling in fact, and no cause whatever for the very vigorous "kicking" indulged in for some time past by residents and property owners in that vicinity. As the reverse, Dr. Kurtz, one of our very oldest, best, and most highly educated physicians, also a member of the board of health, gave it as his positive opinion that the place was "filthy" in the extreme, dangerous to health, a first-class nuisance and should be abated. To sustain the opinion of Dr. Kurtz, we have the sworn affidavit of Dr. Parker, that in his belief it caused a case of typhoid fever of which he had charge; we know there have been other cases of malarial and typhoid fevers, where formerly they were unknown; and we have the certificate of Dr. Orme, (one of our oldest and best physicians), to the effect that it is a nuisance and dangerous to the health and life of the surrounding community. Yet these old and tried physicians, whose reputation was made while young Dr. MacGowan was yet in his swaddling clothes, are flippantly told in effect that they do not know a nuisance when they see it and smell it; and the dozen of citizens residing in the vicinity who are, and have been for months past, perfectly familiar with the outrage, are coolly told by his honor the mayor and Dr. MacGowan that they do not know anything about it, and that their word and sworn affidavits cannot be believed. Undoubtedly Mr. Donegan had put his "dumping ground" in the best possible condition for the visit of his honor the mayor, but even then it must have been a nuisance, such as neither himself or Dr. MacGowan nor any member of the council would willingly tolerate for a moment in the vicinity of their own residences or property, whether within two blocks, five blocks or ten blocks. Query: has the alleged boasted fact that Mr. Donegan controls one hundred and fifty votes anything to do with this degrading of the senses of seeing and smelling of our city officials?

This (Sunday) morning, September 21st, the "dump" was visited by the following persons and found in a condition hereinafter stated: Messrs. Adams, Odwarker, Gupser, Moulton, B. Lenahan, Wilson, Lee, Hottentot, B. Lenahan, Pollich, Kendall, Vacher, Stanch, Arenas, V. Butler, J. Butler, G. Vacher, Kercheval, Mrs. Ewing and Mrs. Pollich. A mass of garbage about 15 by 25 feet in area and 4 or 5 in depth was exposed, as it had been left on Saturday evening, and as it will remain until Monday morning, without any removal of sand or earth whatever. From the rotten and decaying mass emanated smells which, however sweet in the nostrils of "politicians" and city officials seeking votes, and garbage contractors engaged in "reducing the surplus," is highly offensive to the average unappreciative tax-paying citizen whose purse is depleted, his health endangered, and his property ruined or depreciated in value thereby. In a portion of this putrefying mass great quantities of fat, loathsome maggots were rioting, rolling and tumbling, and many could be found crawling about in the sand a considerable distance away. Scattered all around over four or five acres of land outside of this filthy deposit, is every conceivable variety of rubbish and debris, some of it unsavory to the smell, and all most unsightly to the eye of anyone not a city official, or follower of garbage contractors. Let any citizen and taxpayer visit the spot at once and be convinced of all herein set forth.

Mary Anderson's Only Rival.

From the New York Evening Sun.

There is but one person, who is Mary Anderson's rival, and she, if she chooses, has the power to command a wider admiration and a deeper interest than it was ever given to the divine Mary to evoke. That person is Mrs. Antonio Navarro. It has not been given out to the world whether the contract with Mr. Abbey still holds her, or not, and Mr. Abbey's mysterious business trip abroad, in conjunction with the fact that the order for the sale of Mrs. Anderson's stage wardrobe has been rescinded, has set many conjectures afloat as to whether Mrs. Navarro might not still appear in America during the coming winter. The woman is able to say that Mrs. Navarro will almost certainly reappear in America for one season—the coming one. She feels that to set aside her contract with Mr. Abbey at so late a date would entail a very great loss upon him and would be manifest injustice to him—that the contract still holds in spite of her marriage, and that although she herself is reluctant and "Tony" is wildly unwilling, she should, without doubt, be Mary Anderson to the public for one winter more, and then Mrs. Antonio Navarro, and that, for all years to come. And this, by the way, is not conjecture, but comes directly from the actress herself.

Safety From a Pestilential Scourge.

Protection from the disease, not a medical agent which merely checks the paroxysms, is the grand desideratum wherever the epidemic scourge of malaria prevails. Quinine does not afford this protection. The chief reason why Host's Malaria Remedy has won such immense popularity is, that it prepares the system to resist the malarial pest. This it does by bracing and toning the physical organism, regulating and promoting an equal flow and distribution of the animal fluids, and establishing direction on a sound basis. Not only is fever and ague prevented, but the worst types of the disease are conquered by it. Such is the only conclusion to be drawn from the overwhelming evidence in its favor. It is equally efficacious in dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint, general debility and rheumatic complaint and is a reliable diuretic and nervine.

A Mental Phenomenon.

A famous specialist in nervous diseases recently spent an evening with me. I asked him if he had ever come into contact with mental phenomena that science could not explain. He answered:

"Yes, I had a very curious experience not long ago. I was on my way to Washington, and had made the acquaintance in the smoking compartment of two cultivated men whose conversation was extremely entertaining. The talk turned upon mind reading, and one of my companions proposed an experiment. I left the compartment and walked to the other end of the car. On my return my friends informed me that they had chosen a woman's name and would will me to guess it. We took hold of hands and sat silent for a time. Gradually my mind became a blank. I could not concentrate my thoughts and a nervous twitching affected my muscles. Pretty soon a name came into my head. I glanced at my companion. They were gazing me attentively. As though influenced by an irresistible power I faltered out:

"Edna Dorr."

"That's it," they cried in chorus. "That was the name we had selected." On my return to New York I found the name of Edna Dorr constantly in my mind. I had never heard it before, and did not know whether it was the name of a living being or simply the product of the experimenters' fancy. Whatever it was it haunted me. I really felt annoyed at my weakness. I began to fear that I had overworked and was in danger of nervous prostration.

One night some weeks later I was called to examine a critical case at a well known hospital. I found that the patient, a young woman, had been fatally shot in a resort on the Bowery. She was dying when I reached her side. Her face bore the marks of refinement and beauty, but a life of dissipation had almost obliterated them. I bent toward her, for I saw that her end was at hand.

"What is your real name?" I asked, knowing that in death she would tell the truth.

"Edna Dorr," she answered. In another moment she was dead.

That is the whole case. Who she was or how my traveling companions happened to select her name I know not. Queer, wasn't it?—New York World.

The Population of Africa.

Under the name of the Independent State of Congo its government was organized after the most approved methods of Belgian administration, and it entered fully equipped into the family of nations. There is within its area, which, as said, is thirty-three times that of Belgium, a population of 450 whites, about one-half state officials and employes, and the estimated number of natives within its borders is about 40,000,000; and in the whole Congo basin is estimated at about 50,000,000.

Africa is about three times the area of Europe, or 12,000,000 square miles, and some writers estimate it to contain about an equal population—325,000,000 souls. The enormous trade developing there comes mainly from the narrow selva which separates the mountains from the sea. It is a great basin, composed of plateaus, gradually ascending to 7,000 feet at some of the central lakes. It has four great river systems. On the west the Congo, second only to the Amazon in the volume of its waters, and the Niger; on the north the Nile; on the east the Zambesi. These rivers once formed vast internal seas, which finally breaking through the mountain barriers have descended by catenars and canyons to the ocean, leaving great areas of rich deposits of wonderful fertility.—Col. Henry Sanford in Forum.

Pugnacity of the Fox Terrier.

A walk with a fox terrier as a companion can never be wholly without incident. There will be, unless a great amount of care is exercised, at least one fight, and if the owner likes he can without violent exertion promote a serious one. Whether the dog's antagonism be a mastiff or a tiny toy terrier it is all the same to him, his disposition being much like that of the Irishman who, hearing a noise in the street, sent his little girl to inquire its meaning and to say that "if there was going to be a row, father wanted to be in it." Severe lessons and lacerations seem to be entirely without effect, and the terrier is sure to go a second time at the bulldog who has all but converted him into a corpse.—New York Tribune.

Scrap Books.

I find that a very cheap scrap book can be made out of old government reports; they are just wide enough for two columns of the ordinary newspaper. Cut out about twenty pages after each fifty. Then the book will be filled to its proper size again when the clippings are pasted in. Be sure to use only one side of the page in making the scrap book. Label your book when it is finished. An index can be easily attached in each book.—Cor. Author and Writer.

To Keep a Nosegay Fresh.

"I can tell you how to cross the Atlantic with a fresh carnation in your buttonhole, said an experienced traveler to me the other day. His recipe was to start the voyage with two carnations and a raw potato. The carnations are to be worn on alternate days, and each when not ornamenting the buttonhole is to be firmly thrust into a hole in the potato. At the end of the week at least one of them will still be fresh enough to excite the surprise of fellow passengers.—New York Star.

WHY DID HE GO?

A St. Louis Merchant's Trip to the Post-office, and the Result.

California's last se'asion is beginning to take hold of St. Louis. J. V. S. Barrett, the commission merchant of 122 and 124 North Commercial Street, was one of the first to test Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla in sick headaches. Its effect was such a gratifying surprise that he went over to the postoffice and told his friend, Thos. P. Culkin, the superintendent of the registry division, who was also worried with sick headaches, about it. The following letter details his friend's experience also:—

POSTOFFICE, ST. LOUIS, Feb. 20, 1890.
J. V. S. BARRETT, Esq.:
DEAR SIR: You ask me, Did I act on your advice and feel relieved to have to thank you for it. For years I have suffered from indigestion and headaches. Taking your advice, I purchased a bottle of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. Before I had finished the first bottle I could eat almost anything with impunity, and have been since rarely troubled with a headache of any kind, for which I give due credit to your advice and Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla.
Yours,
THOS. P. CULKIN,
Superintendent Registry Division, Postoffice.

WITH LOVE AWAY.

I cannot write, I cannot play,
There's nothing left worth while to say;
The house is empty, dull and cold;
I feel as if I were growing old.
My love's away!

The clock ticks on like solemn fate,
Its hands but point to the hour of eight;
But time goes by on leaden feet;
There's nothing left worth having, sweet,
With love away!

Restless wander to and fro,
My footsteps echoing as I go;
The soul of music all has fled,
And every grave and joy seems dead
When love's away!

Oh, Love! dear Love! bring back to me
My heart and soul that went with thee,
Bring back thyself, my day, my light,
Let no more fall so black a night,
With love away!
