

THE LAUDANUM ROUTE.

IRENE CLARK TRIES TO TRAVEL IT TO THE HEREAFTER.

Despondent Because Her San Bernardino Lover Had Forgotten Her—A Half Ounce of Laudanum Fails to Accomplish Her Object.

Shortly before eight o'clock last evening a young woman named Irene Clark was taken to the receiving hospital in the patrol wagon, for medical treatment, in response to a telephone message to the effect that she had attempted to commit suicide.

About ten days ago Irene, who was a dashing young woman of the demimonde, arrived in this city from San Bernardino, and took up her residence at the house of Maude Cameron, on Alameda street. After remaining there a week, she announced her intention of returning to San Bernardino in order to see a young doctor, of whom she had been much enamored during her residence in that place. On her arrival there, however, she found to her sorrow that her lover had forgotten her very existence, and was already cohabiting with another of her fair sisterhood.

Broken-hearted and despondent, the wretched girl returned to this city yesterday evening and attempted to hurl herself in front of a passing train. Failing in this, however, through the timely intervention of bystanders, the unfortunate went to the Alameda house, on the corner of Alameda and Commercial streets, where the colored woman who acted as housekeeper for her landlady, Maude Cameron, dwelt. Not finding the woman at home, Irene dispatched an unsigned note to her, asking her to come at once to her room. On receipt of this note the colored woman went to her room, and finding the girl there awaiting her, began to question her. Irene made evasive replies, and finally asked for a glass of water, which was immediately furnished to her. Watching her opportunity, the desperate girl poured the contents of a half-ounce bottle of laudanum into the water, and swallowed the drugged water. She then handed two letters to the colored woman and asked her to deliver them as addressed, to Miss Maude Cameron of this city and Dr. E. W. Fleming of San Bernardino. This action at once aroused the woman's suspicions, and on questioning the girl and realizing her danger, she insisted on taking her over to Plummer's drug store, across the street, where she telephoned to the police station for the patrol wagon.

On the arrival of the patient at the receiving hospital, Dr. Wing, who had been summoned, applied the usual antidotes with beneficial effect, as the poison was soon ejected, before it had time to work into her system. After a short time she was pronounced out of danger, and the physician was relieved by Police Matron Gray, who assumed control of the sick girl and remained with her all night. At the hour of going to press the girl was resting easily, and she will in all probability be none the worse for her narrow escape from a suicide's death today.

THE BLOSSOM SHOW.

Features of a Display Which is Worth Seeing.

It is pleasant to note that as the fine exhibit of the Southern California Floral society becomes better known the attendance is increasing correspondingly. Yesterday the cut flower display was unusually fine; many new pieces from both professionals and amateurs were brought in for competition; among the most notable ones is an old fashioned chair, gorgeously decorated in chrysanthemums of pink and majenta, by Miss Lolla Walker. The chair is 130 years old, having been brought from England by one of the early settlers of Worcester, Mass., by the name of Easton, and received special attention.

Mrs. Courtney exhibits a fine floral design in the shape of a harp resting upon a bed made of chrysanthemums. The harp is worked in roses of a delicate yellow tinge, and pure white chrysanthemums interspersed with bits of smilax, making a most pleasing and harmonious effect; this received second premium.

The Central Park Floral company exhibits a frame, the border of which is of chrysanthemums of a bright orange color, and in the center is delicately worked out in outlined colors of the same flower the varieties of a vase with bits of maiden fern, forming one of the most beautiful designs—the evening. This took first premium.

Mr. A. R. Street, who is one of the leading amateur florists, has on exhibition a beautiful butterfly in chrysanthemums and carnations, interspersed with bits of smilax, and the border of sweet smelling geranium leaves; the background is of white chrysanthemums. This took third premium.

Mrs. I. Sherman showed a basket of fuchsias which were indeed beautiful, being artistically arranged and showing the flower to good effect.

George S. Weinscank, whose special hobby is the growing of eucalyptus trees, wandered away from his first love for a moment and placed on exhibition a neat floral design in the shape of a double heart and cornucopia, worked in chrysanthemums and roses, interspersed with bits of green.

The German nurseries had on exhibition the bird of freedom worked in white chrysanthemums, and holding a prostrate infant in its talons.

Mrs. J. E. Clippenger has on exhibition forty-five different varieties of cacti, which were greatly admired.

J. C. Harvey, one of the most enthusiastic amateur growers, has probably the finest collection of exotic plants in the building. The specimen of the New Zealand fern tree, which he exhibits, is probably the largest of its kind in the country. His collection of ferns and palms was universally admired. Among his choice specimens is an orchid cattleya labiata, the bloom of which is of a lilac color, while the corolla is of a deep maroon.

E. D. Sturtevant, who has a water garden near Edgemont, has a fine display of palms and water lilies. Among them were Nymphaea Zanzibarensis Aznera (blue), N. Marlicea Chromatella (yellow), N. Zanzibarensis (purple), N. Devoniensis (red), and N. Dentata (white). The two last are night blooming.

The Park Nursery company, of Pasadena, carried off the largest number of premiums, and have probably the finest display of conifers, palms, and of chrysanthemums, as a whole, in the building. Among their novelties is the miniature forest tree from Japan. It is seven inches high and branched and foliated like a veritable forest tree, spreading out limbs of about ten inches. The tree itself is not less than twenty years old.

The Redondo Beach company have the finest collection of carinations and seedling chrysanthemums, receiving first premium on both. In this display there are upwards of 130 varieties. They also showed two beautiful ferns, also from Australia.

Mr. J. H. Tomlinson, who superintended the entire exhibition, has worked out in chrysanthemums, magnolia grandiflora setrum aurantiacum, polyliga geraniums and annual chrysanthemum a miniature garden, which he has called the Lovers' Knot. That the judges appreciated his work is evidenced by the blue ribbon with which his display is decorated.

Mr. C. E. Packard of the Highland nursery shows fine samples of palms and ornamental plants, including the rubber tree, magnolia grandiflora, some twenty plants of rex begonia and a fine collection of chrysanthemums, roses and carnations. He also came in for one of the plums in the shape of a first prize.

James W. Jeffries has a fine display of chrysanthemums and French cannas. The former are veritable trees, many of them covered with a luxuriant growth of bloom in many colors, which add quite a feature to the show.

The display of the state forestry attracted considerable attention. The exhibit consisted of some thirty varieties of eucalypti, a number of different specimens of the acacias, and also of the different pines.

The display will remain open today and tomorrow.

Elsewhere will be found the official vote of the county as canvassed by the supervisors. The work of canvassing the returns was completed yesterday, after it had engaged almost the entire attention of the board since Monday. It will be seen that only 2853 votes were filed out of a total registration of 3154. Thus not less than 301 citizens failed to exercise the elective franchise—which we should say was an unusually large proportion. The Prohibitionists show a voting strength of 270. Colonel Markham has 205 majority for governor, and Bowers for congress runs 222 ahead of Curtis. Wilshire (Nationalist), has just forty-six votes in the county. It appears that twenty prohibitionists refused to vote for Dougherty for congress, and he rounds up with an even 250 votes cast to his credit.

In the assembly race Smith beats Westerman by 226 votes in the county. The latter, however, runs ahead of Smith some 232 votes in Los Angeles county, and is elected by 6 votes.

A report last evening was to the effect that Smith is elected by 4 votes. Probably a recount will be ordered.

Towner has 143 majority over Taylor for superior judge, Wickham beats Tedford 86 votes, Lucy beats Inley 462 votes, Foster runs 129 ahead of Adams, and Hall beats Carlyle 212 votes. Mansur beats Keith by the same number 212, Porter beats Adams by 135, and J. J. Ross is elected by 160 majority. Sanborn sent Daniels to grass to the tune of 432 votes, and Greeley was ungalant enough to beat Mrs. Alward just 424 votes. Dr. Ey throws Dr. McIntosh down to the extent of 70 votes, and Finley defeats Wood by an even 100.

The vote for justice of the peace in this township is: Pierce, 299; Landell, 277; McDermott, 120; Knowlton, 25. In the precincts of Los Angeles county, 225; Pendergrass, 102; Bitner, 97.

For road overseer in West Anaheim Road district: Norman, 49; Perry, 21; Paty, 15. Fullerton Road district—Porter, 106; Parker, 17. Yorba Road district—Cesena, 19; Yorba, 3. No record was kept of the vote for road overseer at Buena Park, but Williams is elected over Goodnight by a vote of 29 to 26. E. C. Barker is elected road overseer in St. James Road district.—[Anaheim Gazette.]

"RATS!"

THE HONORABLE JAMES DAMRON ACQUITTED BY A JURY.

Hardesty Disappointed in the Testimony of a Rebuttal Witness—Damron Accuses the Press of Hounding Him—Not Guilty is the Verdict.

The Damron case was resumed yesterday morning. A couple of witnesses were introduced by the prosecution to rebut the testimony introduced on Wednesday by the defendant, which tended to show that he was as immaculate as an angel from heaven. To the surprise of Mr. Hardesty, one of his "rebutters" went back on him and gave Damron a good character instead of a black eye, as he had fondly believed. It being then time to address the jury, counsel agreed that only six hours in all were to be consumed in arguments by both sides. All instructions offered by the defense were allowed by the court, and the whole of the instructions read by Judge Cheney to the jury are said to exceed in length those of any other trial in this county. Mr. Damron addressed the jury in his own behalf, during which he took occasion to "roast" the Los Angeles press. When Mr. Damron is vituperative he is at his best, and he did himself proud yesterday while slinging his billingsgate at the papers who have faithfully reported the vagaries which led to the publicity that the honorable member of the legislature so much complains of now. The jury retired at 5:30, but soon clamored for dinner, after which they were returned to their consultation room. At 7:45 the jury returned into court with verdict of not guilty. It was obtained on the first ballot.

NEW SUITS.

Litigants Who Are in Need of Law, Equity and Justice.

S. M. Tutewyler sues George Foyer for $400, on a claim for having wrongfully converted a bay mare and a harness, also a fruit stand, belonging to plaintiff.

The Bituminous Lime-rock Paving and Improvement company sues J. W. Means et al. for $379.22, for street work, and prays for a total registration of $154. Thus not less than 301 citizens failed to exercise the elective franchise—which we should say was an unusually large proportion. The Prohibitionists show a voting strength of 270. Colonel Markham has 205 majority for governor, and Bowers for congress runs 222 ahead of Curtis. Wilshire (Nationalist), has just forty-six votes in the county. It appears that twenty prohibitionists refused to vote for Dougherty for congress, and he rounds up with an even 250 votes cast to his credit.

Female Attire and the Nude.

In the drawing room fashions of dress at this day is the apotheosis of the handsome, immodest, luxurious cat. The expression of a fashionably dressed woman now-a-days is not emphatically one of nakedness. Her sleeveless bodice, but half way to her waist, betrays much and suggests more. Her large white arms, uncovered shoulders crossed with an airy line, her bust displayed to the last inch permitted by the law which protects morality and forbids obscenity, her back bared in a wedge-shaped track to her hand, the color of her gown scarce distinguishable from her skin and the "fit" one which molds the figure and makes no pretense at disguise—in this indecent nudity she offers herself to public admiration; and the bold looks of the men are the carcases which make her peer with pride and pleasure.

Her dress is her note of invitation, and if but few honestly confess no one is deceived. The modern dressmaker is the janitor of the divorce court, for when women abandon modesty chastity soon follows suit; and the dress which shocks the unaccustomed as a foul word might shock them, and which intentionally appeals to the coarser passions of men, is unquestionably responsible for much of the conjugal infidelity and unmarried impropriety that takes place. Let husbands and fathers look to it if women themselves are too weak to forbid or too luxurious to refrain.—[London Truth.]

Another Jenness-Miller Lecture.

Few of our readers have forgotten the celebrated lecture given by Annie Jenness-Miller, at the Los Angeles theater building of this city, some time over a year ago.

The subject of this lecture, Artistic Dress and Physical Culture, was one that interested every lady in the city, and seldom has ever a body of ladies alone been seen together in Los Angeles as assembled that afternoon to hear Mrs. Miller.

Those who heard her, and those who missed the lecture, will be glad to learn we are soon to have another lecture upon the same subject by Mrs. Clara Holbrook Smith of New York city. Mrs. Smith brings with her, to illustrate the various points of her talk, charming costumes which she dons at intervals. These costumes are varied. Among them is the dinner costume, school-girl's dress, maternity gown, business dress, street dress and all the under-clothing; also the practical divided bicycle gown and divided riding habit, now so much discussed in the New York papers.

The press of Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and other western, as well as southern states are enthusiastic in praise of Mrs. Smith and her ability to treat the subject.

Mrs. Smith has received from Mrs. Miller, thorough training and culture. She traveled with Mrs. Miller for many months and has now relieved her of a second trip to the Pacific slope, as the editing of the Jenness-Miller magazine, and her school of physical culture in New York city, prevent prolonged lecture tours on the part of Mrs. Miller just now.

Mrs. Smith is very graceful and dignified, and has the power of getting very close to the hearts of her hearers. The lecture will be given in the opera house or Los Angeles theatre building the first week in December. Gentlemen cannot be admitted to all the lectures. The mysteries of divided skirts and union suits not being of the interest it is to their mothers and wives. Further notice will be given of the lecture in all our city papers, and no lady should miss the treat in store for her.

A GENERAL ALARM.

Fire in San Francisco Does Damage to the Extent of $25,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13.—A large fire broke out at the corner of Davis and Sacramento streets, about 10:30 this evening. About fifteen minutes after a general alarm was sounded, and all the engines in the city, including the water tower, went to the scene. The fire was in a large four-story building on the corner, owned by S. Wangelheim, and occupied by H. Dutard, commission merchant, Seroni & Co., candy manufactory, and H. Leibes & Co., cigar factory. The building was destroyed, the roof and floors falling in rapid succession. The entire front of the two upper stories fell out in the street. Fortunately no one was hurt.

The latest estimate places the loss on the building at $125,000, and loss on the stock at $100,000, making a total of $225,000.

ARMENIAN LULLABY.

If thou wilt close thy drowsy eyes, My mullberry one, my golden son, The rose shall sing thee lullabies, My pretty cress lambkin!

And thou shalt swing in an almond tree, With a flood of moonbeams rocking thee— A silver boat in a golden sea— My velvet love, my nestling dove, My own pomegranate blossom!

The stork shall guard thee passing well All night, my sweet, my dimple feet! And bring thee myrrh and asphodel, The paradise shall come calling thee! And, for thy slumberous play, shall twine The diamond stars with an emerald vine— To trail in the waves of ruby wine— My hyacinth-bloom, my heart's perfume, My cooling little turtle!

And when the morn wakes up to see My apple-bright, my soul's delight, The paradise shall come calling thee, My jar of milk-and-honey! Yes, thou shalt know what mystery lies In the smythist deep of the curtained skies, If thou wilt fold thy onyx eyes, You wakeful one, you naughty son, You chirping little sparrow! —Eugene Field.
