

THE BUSKINED STAGE

Signor Liberati's Season at the Los Angeles.

Miss Clara Morris Comes to the Same House Next Week.

Some Points on the Plays and Players From Many Lands and Times.

Negro Minstrelsy Past and Present—Part II's Synagogue—Minor Notes of Interest to the Playgoers.

Last night Liberati and his band gave another concert at the Los Angeles. The programme appeared in the HERALD yesterday. A fair audience was present for a town like this, where Sunday night plays are not frequent.

Manager Wyatt, of the new Los Angeles theater, announces for next week the engagement of America's foremost emotional actress, Clara Morris. Miss Morris will appear in a repertoire of her powerful portrayals, consisting of "Camille," "Miss Milton" and "Renee De Moray."

Prof. Herrmann alleges in his complaint that on July 21st last he signed a forty weeks' contract with Locke & Davis, by the terms of which he was to give and furnish the theater and they were to provide the plays and players.

Bertha Ricci alleges that she was engaged for forty weeks at $200 per week. She asks for $600 for the three weeks she has already sung and also for a sum equal to her salary for the remainder of the season.

Plays nowadays are boomed in many different ways. A real novelty in advertising has been discovered by an energetic manager. New York is soon to be flooded with English playbills announcing the great success of a play in a London theater.

Adelina Patti Nicolini is a Jewess. No one knew it until lately. But now she is making a sensation by building a synagogue at Craig-y-Nos.

UNIVERSITY.

A Budget of Notes From That Suburb.

Last Friday evening memorial services were held in University Methodist church, in honor of Mrs. Lucy Webb Hayes, the first president of the Woman's Home Missionary society.

The subject for the Young People's Literary society on Monday evening will be The Art World, including orators, singers, painters, etc.

Lawn tennis is being played by the University students, to the exclusion of baseball, football, croquet, and the like.

Mr. Blair has moved into the "Slaughter" house on Jefferson street. A valuable addition of electric batteries and chemicals has been made by the university.

Work was begun on the Lloyd-Dolley block, on Wesley avenue, last Monday, and the frame is now up.

Mrs. Bovard left Friday for Arrowhead Springs, where President Bovard is suffering from a severe illness.

BABY OWNED THE CAR.

A Blue Eyed Tot Who Charmed All the Passengers and Employes.

There was a baby in the railway car the other day. It was not an unusual child, but it had a decidedly bright face and pretty ways.

Then as she became used to the roar and rattle the baby proclivities asserted themselves, and she began to play with her father's mustache. At first the father and mother were the only parties interested, but soon a young lady in an adjacent seat nudged her escort and directed his attention to the laughing child.

He looked up, remarked that it was a pretty baby and tried to look uninterested, but it was noticed that his eyes wandered back to the spot occupied by the happy family, and he commenced to smile.

The baby pulled the hair of an old lady in front, who turned around savagely and glared at the father with a look that plainly said, "Nuisances should be left at home."

But she caught sight of the laughing eyes of the baby, and when she turned back she seemed pleased about something. Several others had become interested in the child by this time—business men and young clerks, old ladies and girls—and when the baby hands grasped the large silk hat of her father and placed it on her own head it made such a comical picture that the old gentleman across the way, unable to restrain himself, burst out into a loud guffaw, and then looked sheepishly out of the window, as if ashamed to be caught doing such an unmanly thing.

Before another five minutes he was playing peek-a-boo across the aisle with the baby, and everyone was envying him.

The ubiquitous young man, ever on the move, passed through, and was at a loss to account for the frowns of everybody. He had failed to notice the baby.

The brakeman looked in from his post on the platform and smiled. The paper boy found no custom till he had spoken to the baby and jingled his pocket of change for her edification.

The conductor caught the fever and chuckled the little one under the chin, while the old gentleman across the aisle forgot to pass up his ticket, so interested was he playing peek-a-boo.

The old lady in front relaxed, and diving into her reticule unearthed a brilliant red pippin and presented it bashfully to the little one, who, in response, put her chubby arms around the donor's neck and pressed her rosy little mouth to the old lady's cheek.

It brought back a flood of remembrances to that withered heart, and a handkerchief was seen to brush first this way and then that, as if to catch a falling tear.

The train sped on and pulled into the station where the baby, with her parents, were to leave the car. A look of regret came over every face. The old gentleman asked if he couldn't kiss it just once; the old lady returned the caress she had received and the baby moved toward the door, shaking a by-by over the shoulder of her papa, to which everyone responded, including the newsboy, who emphasized his farewell with a wave of his hat.

The passengers rushed to the side where the baby got off and watched till she turned out of sight at the other end of the station, shaking by-byes all the time. Then they lapsed into silence. They missed that baby and not one of them would be unwilling to acknowledge it. The little one's presence had let a rift of sunshine into every heart, warm or cold, in that car.—Orphans' Friend.

The Galley Slave.

Think of six men chained to a bench, naked as when they were born, one foot on the stretcher, the other on the bench in front, holding an immensely heavy oar (15 feet long), bending forward to the stern with arms at full reach to clear the backs of the rowers in front, who bend likewise; and then, having got forward, showing up the oar's end to let the blade catch the water, then throwing their bodies back on the groaning bench. A galley oar sometimes pulls thus for ten, twelve or even twenty hours without a moment's rest. The boatswain or other sailor in such a stress puts a piece of bread steeped in wine in the wretched rower's mouth to stop fainting, and then the captain shouts the order to redouble the lash. If a slave falls exhausted upon his oar (which often chances) he is flogged till he is taken for dead, and then pitched unceremoniously into the sea.—Stanley Lane Pool.

A Queer Interdict.

In Glasgow, Scotland, recently Sheriff Lees decided a very unusual case. George Sharp, builder, applied to have a Jane Hanah, a friend of his wife, interdicted from entering his house in his absence. Jane defended the case, stating that she had Mrs. Sharp's permission to enter the house. This was not denied by Mr. Sharp, but he stood on his rights that Mrs. Sharp could not receive any visitor—not even a near relative—against his wishes. This contention, the sheriff says, is sound law, and has granted the interdict asked.—London Letter.

An Ancient Image Discovered.

A valuable archaeological find was made recently by a poor woman, by name Jane Honeylow, living a short distance down the coast from Tuxpan, Mexico. She was engaged in enlarging her little garden spot, and with a grubbing hoe was digging up a growth of weeds and vines, when coming in contact with something hard, which she found impossible to remove, she dug around it and found that object to be an iron boiler such as is used in ships. It was filled up with earth to the depth of a foot and more, and this being taken out a large stone was found tightly wedged in, forming a sort of lid or stopper.

This was removed with great difficulty, but beneath was found what was evidently once a book, as heavy leather covers, fixed with a rusty gold clasp, showed, though the contents had been reduced to a mere pulpy mass, which fell to pieces when taken out. There were also nearly $300 in Spanish doubloons of the date of 1697, but the greatest archaeological treasure was a small image of the virgin and child in solid silver, which, when cleaned of the mold and tarnish of time and soil, was found to be inscribed with a Latin dedication to one Pietro, with the brotherly love of Benvenuto.

That it was the work of the great Italian can well be believed, for the statue is one of extraordinary beauty. It is about nine inches in height and represents the mother bending over the child in an attitude of prayer. How it came to be hidden here on the Mexican coast is not easily solved, implying a variety of adventures, but it is probable that it was buried there by some of the Spanish marauders who visited the coast frequently during the Eighteenth century, and who had probably stolen it from some church or museum in Europe. The woman who found it has already been offered $1,000 for the image.—Cor. Philadelphia Times.

Inherited Scrofula.

Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) cured my little boy of hereditary scrofula, which broke out all over his face. For a year he had suffered, and at times was unable to turn myself in bed, or even raise the cover. A nurse had to be in constant attendance day and night. I was so feeble that what little nourishment I took had to be given me with a spoon. After calling in the best local physicians, and trying all other medicines without receiving any benefit, I was induced by friends to try Swift's Specific (S. S. S.). I discontinued all other medicines, and took a course of S. S. S. thirteen small bottles, which affected a complete and permanent cure.

Cured entirely after 12 years! TONAWANDA, ERIS CO., N. Y., Febr. 1889.

My daughter had fits from fright since 12 years, sometimes 3 to 4 attacks within 24 hours without any warning. During these spells her thumbs would be cramped toward the inside of her hands, her mouth be drawn sideways, her neck would swell up, and her face assumed a bluish color, this would last from 10 to 15 minutes after that she slept, was drowsy for about 2 hours.—We tried many remedies without any improvement, but 6 bottles of Pastor Koening Nerve Tonic cured her at last; we therefore recommend this remedy to all sufferers.
