

EDELMAN-DAMRON.

Incidents of the Recent Legal Farces.

Jurors Reported to be Afraid to Convict.

Stephen M. White's Little Story About a Horsethief.

Some Little Features Regarding Two Celebrated Cases—What Will Become of the Other Damron Indictments?

A significant feature of the farce called the Edelman trial is the statement current in the city yesterday, that several of the jurors...

It is rather a new feature, and one confined to this city, in the prosecution of criminals, to have the jury fear that they will be sent to jail for convicting a felon.

The other Damron Cases. The legal battledoor and shuttlecock game which is being played with the trials of the various stealing public officials...

It now appears that the remaining indictments against Hon. James M. Damron, late Republican representative to the state assembly, for forgery, will not be tried until next year.

These cases, two in number, based on the S. M. Perry note and the Hervey Lindley note, were first set for trial in department one of the superior court...

These indictments are based on notes to which the signatures of S. M. Perry and Hervey Lindley are alleged to have been forged by Damron.

There is another note yet, known as the Worth note, bearing the signature of Hervey Lindley, which was presented to the grand jury, but regarding which some influence has been used...

That evidence is the most pitiful, idiotic plea that could be advanced. The attempted use of it to prevent an indictment is indicative of legal perjury.

Mr. White's Little Story. A HERALD reporter happened to be present when Hon. Stephen M. White, one of Damron's attorneys...

"White," said Hardesty, "have you exacted a bond from Damron that he will not sign your name to any notes?"

"Mr. White smiled and said: 'That reminds me of a little incident which occurred to Colonel Kewen, who was a prominent figure among our lawyers some years ago.'"

"Hold on," said Hardesty, "there don't seem to be any point to that story."

"Oh, yes, I came near forgetting," replied White, "there isn't much of a point to it; all there is, was that the next morning the colonel found his favorite saddle horse and his client gone, and he never heard of either again."

"Hold on," again called Hardesty, "what's the application of that story?"

LEDYARD'S DEATH.

A Well-Known Ex-Bank Clerk Commits Suicide. Coroner Weldon was summoned to Redondo Beach, yesterday evening, to hold an inquest upon the body of H. F. Ledyard...

Having been sick in the stomach and having tried everything I could for relief, and finding nothing that could get me well, I went to Dr. Guit's Clinic, 641 Upper Main street...
