LUTHER CARY. The American Sprinter Pleases the English Critics.

English papers have the following to say about Luther Cary, the crack American sprinter who recently performed at the English championship meeting:

Some of the strangers thoroughly upheld the reputations which had preceded them—notably Luther Cary, the flying sprinter of Princeton college (U. S. A.), and from the manner in which he simply 'left' such speedy runners as House and Basan, he is evidently capable of great things, and, if given the opportunity, will probably 'let us out with several sprint records before leaving these shores. . . . Luther Cary won the hundred from a big field of twenty of our very best sprinters. He is a powerful, ugly, natural flyer, and without any pretensions to ordinary form (not a bit like Myers), simply smothered Basan and House, Seward and all our cracks, and winning by at least four yards in the final. On a fine day 10 seconds would certainly have been recorded. . . . Cary, about whose times we have heard a good deal lately, accomplished a performance which fully justifies us in supposing him, on a fair day and with a good path to be at least equal to running 100 yards in level time. As we have already said in these columns, his style is not so graceful as his figure, but, with a tear-away sort of stride, he gets over the ground rapidly, and that is everything to one who wishes to take high honors as a sprinter. In the final, it goes without saying that Cary had to spin at top speed, but, though having the softest part of the track to run on, his nearest rival, House, by three yards, and covered the distance in 10 1/4 seconds. Basan, who having met Cary before, must have been persuaded that he could not live at the American's pace, made a great effort to keep with him in the second heat of the sprint, and seemed to be greatly amused to find that it was all in vain. We trust that southerners will have an opportunity of seeing this exceptional sprinter under favorable circumstances.

BALMACEIDA'S CRUISE.

The Presidente Pinto Lying in a Dangerous Position.

PARIS, July 25.—The Chilean Cruiser Presidente Pinto has been driven nearer shore and now lies in seven and a half feet of water. It is proposed to pass a hawser under her keel and use a number of floating cranes to assist in getting her out of her dangerous position.

Canada's Trade Relations.

MONTREAL, July 25.—Colonel Vincent, British member of parliament for Sheffield, who is making a tour of the United Empire trade leagues, addressed a large meeting here tonight in favor of closer trade relations between the various parts of the British empire.

He termed the United States a foreign alien power, the McKinley bill an outrageous measure and said: "In the face of such a tariff will you Canadians, who stood by us in 1776 and 1812, go on your knees to those aliens for terms?" Canada, he said, if true to itself, would furnish the food supply of Great Britain instead of the United States. The meeting passed resolutions endorsing the principles of the league.

A Brick Company Assails. CHICAGO, July 25.—A bill for a receiver for the Anderson Common Brick company was this afternoon filed in the United States district court.

The liabilities are estimated at $200,000 and the assets at $150,000. The company should not be confounded with the Anderson Pressed Brick company, F. F. Lawrence was appointed receiver. The complainant was A. B. Stickney, one of the principal stockholders. It is understood that the company has been losing heavily for some time.

Guatemala Will Make a Show. WASHINGTON, July 25.—A cablegram was received yesterday from Lieutenant Geo. P. Scriven, commissioner for the Chicago exposition to Central America, announcing that the congress of Guatemalians, which is now in session, has appropriated $100,000 in gold, to pay the expense of its exhibit at the Chicago exposition, and made an additional appropriation of $20,000 in gold to pay the cost of erecting a building of typical architecture in which the exhibit is to be displayed.

Searles, the New York architect, and widow of the millionaire, Hopkins, died here this morning as the result of an attack of grippe. Her first husband left an estate valued at $60,000,000. Searles's wealth is estimated at $40,000,000.

No further trouble is expected, the miners having agreed to await the action of the extra session of the legislature.

Assistance for Strikers. CINCINNATI, July 25.—The executive board of the Iron Moulders union, now in session here, decided to continue to assist the moulders in their strike and voted $5000 for that purpose.

Hung Himself in the Cellar. SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—The body of Joseph Monoton, one of the proprietors of the soda works, was found hanging Never Questioned.

The superior purity, strength and wholesomeness of Royal Baking Powder is never questioned. While other baking powder makers are exposing the impurities and shortcomings of the powders of their competitors, and the official tests by the Government are revealing the improper ingredients, the low strength, and lack of keeping qualities of other brands of baking powder, no question is raised, no doubt is entertained of the great qualities, the absolute purity and efficiency of the Royal Baking Powder. It stands alone, above suspicion.

Exhaustive Government tests, the tests by juries of competitive and industrial exhibitions, the minute and prejudiced searches by rivals for something wrong, have had but one result, to more fully establish the fact that the Royal Baking Powder is faultless, the greatest in strength, absolutely pure and wholesome.

Do not permit the grocer or peddler to substitute any other brand in place of the Royal.

Miller Makes an Appointment. WASHINGTON, July 25.—Attorney-General Miller has appointed Wm. M. Allison assistant United States attorney for the territory of Utah.

His Spring Unwound. NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 25.—Wm. N. Weeden, the man who developed the celebrated Waterbury watch, is dead.

THREE STREETS.

I sought the new, unknown to meet, And found a gay and favored street Where fashion walked with fitting gleam And as I watched, a golden gleam Pierced swiftly through the summer air And darted o'er the human stream; Then nestled 'midst some dusky hair, I gazed upon the hair's dark grace, The tender frame to woman's face, That pictured all its charms so sweet. Then as I looked I met her eyes, Deep as the blue of southern skies, And from them glanced a baby smile My own poor treasure to beguile; Unsmiled by grief, had been more sweet Than sweet a dry, an ardent flame, Love's passion!

I wandered for a dim retreat, I found a quiet moss grown street, And trod its length with tired feet; And as I passed, a door I kept; And bathed with the strife of years Unclosed, and forth a figure stepped And met me with a face of steel, A figure that had beauty's mien, A face that in a mood serene, Unsmiled by grief, had been more sweet Than sweet a painter's art had traced, Or chiseled marble coldly graced, And as I gazed with anxious wit There came a glow, a silent thrill Through every vein, through every part, The swift borne message to my heart, Life's mission!

To Preserve Fabrics. German ingenuity is stated to have resorted to a method—revived from the most ancient past—of rendering fabrics proof against the ravages of decay for an indefinite period, a process by which it is said, no matter how delicate the texture or color of the fabric may be, its long life is assured. It appears that the inventor in this case, a German chemist, based his experiments on the commonly known fact that the wonderful preservation characterizing the headbands of Egyptian mummies is attributed to their having been impregnated with a kind of resin. Acting upon this assumption, experiments were made with the substance extracted from birch bark, with the result that the green tar left after the oil used in tanning has been extracted from the white bark of the birch tree yields a substance neither acid nor alkaloid; and this, in solution with alcohol, forms a liquid with a power of resisting, after once becoming dry, even the action of alcohol itself, and is alleged to possess the property—so long a desideratum—of rendering textile fabrics apparently imperishable, as far as decay is concerned, a peculiarly valuable property being also claimed for it, namely, a ready union with the most delicate as well as brilliant colors.—New York Sun.

It's Her Way, Bless Her! It was an up town surface car, and three women carrying small parcels boarded it. After disposing of their bundles and themselves on the seats, two of them started desperately at work to open the pocketbooks that they carried in their hands. Neither succeeded to any extent, and the red haired conductor waited and winked at a cross eyed passenger in order to note for future reference how a cross eyed man winks. Meanwhile each of the women had grasped the other's arm and exclaimed: "Don't, dear, I have change." The third woman said nothing, and the conductor paused in front of the trio for his fare. "Don't you dare to pay the fare!" said one of the women. "And don't you!" was the reply. Then while this friendly argument was going on, the small woman who had said nothing quietly handed the right change to the conductor and the agony was over. "Faith, thin wimin do be always the same," said the conductor as he returned to his post. And who shall say he was wrong?—New York Recorder.

Where Is It That "Cotton Is King." What is to become of the great southern belt of the country of which it used to be said that "Cotton is king." Tennessee is devoted to big hay fields, Alabama to vegetable farms and Texas to cattle ranches. The people of Northern Georgia, too, have now gone into the tobacco raising business on a large scale, and the Atlanta Constitution says that Georgia can raise as good wrappers and as fine a quality of tobacco as any state in the union.—[New York Press.

'Twas in the time of Love's defeat, I wandered through a busy street, And paced to where four crossways meet; And as I paced, the thronging crowd Pressed onward, without rock or heed, With hasty feet, too anxious to tread, To cast a glance upon my need, The chill neglect, the biting blast That o'er my heart as ice wind passed, And turned to bitter all the sweet, Brought from its frozen realms a gift, The love of self, a frozen thrist To guard its treasure and to guide The current of its burning tide Through every vein, through every pore, An angry samson at my door! Ambition!

HOW DOES HE LOOK?

You furnish the boy, we do the rest. You furnish the boy and we furnish him with what? With the trimmest, neatest, nattiest suit that ever made him feel that life is worth living! If you think such a suit is expensive, come and price one of them. It scarcely states the case to say that they are phenomenally cheap. You will wonder how they can be made and sold for the money. For a trifling outlay you can equip him with just what he needs for this kind of weather.

About 40 different styles of Boys' Suits are on display in our show windows.
