

COAL AT A DOLLAR A TON

AN INVENTOR CLAIMS TO BE ABLE TO MANUFACTURE FUEL.

His Process is a Chemical One and Simply Endows Lignite or Inferior Coal, Which is Common Everywhere, with Burning Qualities—How He Worked.

Many inventions are in the field. Another inventor has come to the front with an invention which he believes will rival even those of Edison and bring to mankind generally a degree of benefit which will be in direct inverse proportion to the woe inflicted upon the individuals commonly known as the coal barons.

What he has to offer is no less than a scheme to manufacture a coal which will be superior in its results to either bituminous or anthracite coal, to which the world has been so long accustomed to look for its chief supply of fuel.

So many vast conceptions have been already brought to the attention of the public only to end in disappointing failures that every new great scheme is apt to be regarded with suspicion. We have not suffered from the Keely motor project and the many plans for navigating the air, to say nothing of the many ideas for submarine crafts, without having our confidence in such matters seriously impaired.

The new aspirant for undying fame and incidentally for the millions of money that are attendant upon great discoveries which are world wide in their uses has at least the courage of his convictions, and his ideas are entitled to respect.

Mr. Albert Edelmans claims for his invention that it will enable him to manufacture his coal at a cost of only one dollar per ton. Besides the exceeding cheapness of the new article Mr. Edelmans claims for it the merit of being absolutely odorless and capable of being burned without smoke and being consumed so utterly that it leaves but 1 per cent. of ashes.

Mr. Edelmans was born in Warsaw, Poland, in 1838, and was educated at the university at Dorpat, one of the provinces of Livonia, on the Baltic sea. He was graduated there as a civil engineer, and then made the grand tour of Europe. In 1853 he went to Australia, the voyage from London to Sydney occupying six months.

His first inspiration. In Australia Mr. Edelmans devoted himself to his profession and spent his time in building railroads and in other engineering enterprises. In 1860 he first turned his attention to the discovery of cheaper coal, and since then he has devoted all his time and money to that pursuit.

In the first place he argued that it was a well known fact that there exists upon the surface of the globe a large quantity of what may be termed inferior coal, which is commonly called lignite. Briefly defined, lignite is a coal formed at a much later period than either bituminous or anthracite coal, and therefore without those chemical properties which would enable it to burn as well as either of them, and which, therefore, renders it practically useless for fuel or other purposes.

That this lignite would, in centuries to come, develop into a fuel which might be utilized exactly as well as that which was already known as bituminous or anthracite coal was a source of pain and vexation to Mr. Edelmans. He could not sleep at night from his continual study of the problem. He was actually jealous, he says himself, to think that a people a thousand years hence would avail themselves of that which the world might use today could he but solve the problem of effecting by chemical processes that for which nature would take centuries.

A GLEAM OF LIGHT. After a study of many weary years Mr. Edelmans believes that he has solved the problem whose solution he so faithfully sought, and is satisfied that he has found a process for transforming this worthless lignite into coal, which for all purposes is equal, and in many instances superior, to either anthracite or bituminous coal.

In other words, the inventor believes that by the mixture with lignite of certain chemical bodies a coal is produced which is as perfect as any that was ever mined, and this lignite, he claims, were it allowed to remain in the earth, would require a thousand years for its transformation into perfect coal.

In his technical description of the process alluded to the inventor says:

"To accomplish this result the lignite and certain chemical bodies (which have first been reduced to a powdered condition in order to permit of their perfect commingling) are placed in molds and subjected to great pressure in machinery expressly constructed for the purpose, and from which the mass comes in the shape of what are termed, for want of a better name, 'brickets.' These bricks can be made of any size or shape in order that they may suit different conditions, as, for instance, if the material is to be used for furnaces they would be in the neighborhood of eight inches in size (either square or oblong), whereas for stoves they would be made correspondingly smaller."—New York Herald.

Objections to Hand Shaking. Hand shaking is said to circulate yellow fever, smallpox, gangrene, cancer and all other infectious diseases; it is absurd and inconvenient, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred it is insincere. In hot weather no one wants to clasp a still warmer hand. In cold weather no one cares to remove a warm, comfortable glove and run the chances of catching cold by bringing the palm into contact with a hand that is several degrees colder than an icicle. Let lovers intertwine their digits and poets rave about the warm, true clasp of hands, but let us arrest and punish those thoughtless, foolish people who delight to meet in our busiest thoroughfares and shake hands across the walk while the crowd must pass around them.—Chicago Herald.

Frank X. Conway, engineer of No. 4 engine, Baltimore City Fire Dept., says: "Salivation Oil knocks rheumatism higher than a kite."

Answer This Question. MY SAILOR LOVER.

I watch and wait, My ship is late That brings my sailor lover. I watch the sails as they go by But dimly outlined 'gainst the sky, But none brings back my lover.

To me alone The waves low moan Tells of my sailor lover. Years have I watched, but all in vain; Oh, shall I see on earth again My long lost sailor lover?

With weary beat The waves repeat, "Gone is thy sailor lover." They tell to me in monotone, Of sorrows that are rarely known— Tell of my long lost lover.

Ere life's sad day Shall pass away Bring back, O sea, my lover. O'er mountain, hill and winding stream I see the sun's last, fading beam— Thus shall my soul pass over

The Stygian river, Gone, gone forever To meet my long lost lover; But still I watch, but watch in vain, While at my heart grows keen the pain, For my departed lover.—Byron D. Burdick in Yankee Blade.

Pleasant Games for Evenings. A pleasant game for an evening at home, among a few reading people and their neighbors, is called "Quotations." A card with some appropriate lines may announce the evening to your friends, and for an hour the hostess or some one else assigned the duty may read quotations, the guests giving the author. Well known lines should be written on slips of paper and put in a pretty ribbon basket. The guests are seated in a circle, and after the first quotation one is given a minute to name the author. If he fails, the reader gives the right name and No. 3 reads the next quotation and passes to his next neighbor.

To give variety an author's name may be given, and a point is made by the first one who responds with a quotation from that writer; or a subject may be given and appropriate quotations called for. The one making the greatest number of points wins the game. Another game that calls for quick thought is called "Observation." On the card given to each person is a list of ten articles that he is given ten seconds each to see. An evening devoted to curios, after the fashion of some of the clubs, is also both delightful and profitable. Each guest brings a curio and tells the history of it.

In the same manner a geographical club sometimes varies its evenings by having each member bring a picture of some spot where he has traveled and give a little talk about it.—New York Post.

Every portion of soapstone lost in cutting is utilized in other ways. It gives the dull color to rubber goods, is used in paper to gain weight, and is also an excellent article to use in making fireproof paints.

"You can never put too much water in milk if you always put it through the cow's mouth." This is one of many analogous aphorisms by Professor Robertson, the Canadian dairy commissioner.

A GOLD DOLLAR IS WORTH ONE HUNDRED CENTS! North, South, East or West.

We have never been able to buy one for less than this should be considered by the would-be owner of an Orange Grove.

A GOOD THING COSTS MONEY and is always the cheapest in the end. We are in receipt of dozens of letters enquiring WHY we are doing while there are thousands of acres advertised in full length columns of so many newspapers at less than half the price. Our reply is: Ours Are Gold Dollars that never sell below par. No prudent man will invest his money in any of these wild schemes, promising great returns for a small outlay, they are very enticing to the weary toiler on the stony farms of the East, looking well on paper, but never materialize. You put your money in but never get it back.

FOR $100.00 TO $200.00 PER ACRE FOR Alessandro Land

YOU are coming to Southern California for health, profit, or both, you want to invest your money where there is not the least possible chance of failure. That place is

ALESSANDRO THE FINEST CLIMATE IN THE WORLD. THE BEST SOIL. THE BEST WATER RIGHT

Of any Irrigation District in Southern California, and one of the strongest companies back of it in the state, composed of men of unlimited means and business capacity that have made success of everything they have undertaken. Alessandro also owes its success, not only to above, but largely to the character of the men who have come there to make it their future homes. A class of thrifty, intelligent, hard working men, who have made their presence felt, and are living there today in moderate luxury, comfort and good health.

FOUR YEARS' TIME ALESSANDRO WILL BE THE Model City of Southern California.

He who invests his money today in Alessandro land takes no chances and makes no mistakes. Every new acre, every new length of pipe, every dollar laid out in improvement, increases the value of every acre on the tract. While you sleep your land grows in value. People "plenty of them" are rich today who bought land in Redlands four years ago, simply by allowing it to lie idle. Alessandro land now will reap the same reward, and more, for the advance will be more rapid and sure. Full description, particulars, maps, sent on application to
