HANGED BY THE THUMBS.

A Soldier Terribly Punished at Homestead.

His Offense Was Cheering for Frick's Assassin.

Frick Doing Well, But His Wife Prostrated by the Shock.

Little Learned of the Would-be Assassin's True History—The Strike Situation Remains Unchanged.

By the Associated Press.] HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 24.—When the news of the shooting of Frick reached camp yesterday, Private Iams of Company K, Tenth regiment, shouted out: "Three cheers for the assassin!" Col. Streeter heard it, and immediately ordered the regiment on parade. Then he recited to the soldiers what he had heard, and ordered the man who made the remark to step forward, saying he thought he had recognized his voice. Iams stepped to the front, trembling like an aspen. He acknowledged that he had made the remark; was taken to the guardhouse and hung up by the thumbs for thirty minutes, surgeons watching his pulse and heart. When cut down he was limp and almost unconscious. The severity of his punishment was due to his failure to retract or apologise for the expression. Today one side of his head was shaven, his uniform taken from him, he was given a suit of cast off clothing and drummed out of camp.

FRICK'S CONDITION.

He is Resting Easily—Mrs. Frick's Life in Danger. PITTSBURG, July 24.—H. C. Frick slept well during the night and rested easily today. A curious thing was another cut discovered today, which was missed in the examination yesterday. It is in the left leg, just below the calf, and almost severed the tendons. He complained of pain in the leg, but the attendant imagined it was of the other wounds he spoke. As soon as discovered, it was carefully dressed.

The patient passed the day listening to letters and telegrams, and dictating replies. He insists on continuing his work. There is much anxiety in the family over Mrs. Frick's condition. She became a mother twelve days ago, and in her weak and nervous condition, the effect of yesterday's shock is very bad.

THE WOULD-BE ASSASSIN.

Bergman, the would-be assassin of Frick, is still a riddle. None of the detectives or newspaper men who have been talking to him, got anything but contradictory or trivial information so far. He said, today, that when he was ready, which would not be until after his transfer to the county jail, he would make a written statement to the Associated Press, and until then would decline to answer any questions.

That he is secretly pleased with the notoriety he has gained is evident, but that he is a fanatic who has become cranky over anarchistic literature also seems certain. He declared today that he never worked for Herr Most's paper, Freiheit, and says he has done only book work. He has no regrets, he says, for what he has done. Nothing has been learned as to how long he has been in the city or anything else. He seems to have taken deliberately every precaution to conceal his identity, and his plan of committing suicide like Lingg, not being frustrated, his face would have been blown away, leaving the matter a complete mystery.

Much to his own surprise and to that of everybody else, Bergman was transferred from the Central station to the jail tonight. The officers thought they would make the transfer quietly, but a couple of sharp gamins at a corner recognized Bergman, and before the jail was reached several hundred people were crowding up to get a glimpse of the anarchist.

THE STRIKE SITUATION.

Secretary Lovejoy authorizes the statement that there are now between 400 and 500 men in the Homestead mill, and that as many more will go in tomorrow. He says the company is not worrying about the strike in the Union mills, this city, and at Beaver Falls. Most of the people wish to return to work and the strike will not last long.

AT HOMESTEAD.

Non-union Men Promised Permanent Positions—Some Desertions. HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 24.—The Carnegie company will post a notice tomorrow, stating that men entering their employ now will not be removed to make room for others, and that they will be retained as long as they conduct themselves properly. This notice is expected to have considerable effect, as some of the company men think many of the strikers are deterred from returning to work because of fear that they will be thrown out by the union men in case the strike is declared off.

NON-UNION DESERTERS.

Four of the non-union men shut up in the mill enclosure made their escape today into town, where they were taken in hand by the advisory committee. According to their testimony the total number of men inside the mills is only one hundred. They assert that they didn't understand that they were to be shut up from the world, and that more will desert tonight or tomorrow.

RAILWAY EMPLOYEES MAY STRIKE.

A delegation of employees of the Pennsylvania railroad had a conference with the advisory committee today as to the handling of the product of the Carnegie mills operated by non-union men. No decision was reached, but the members of the advisory committee say the delegation will probably soon serve notice on the Pennsylvania company of their intention to strike if they have to handle Homestead products.

TRAINMEN THREATENED.

The trainmen of the Pittsburgh, Virginia and Charleston road, which runs through Homestead, are undecided whether or not to stop handling cars loaded with Carnegie's products. They reported to their superintendent today that they have been threatened with annihilation unless they side with the strikers, and that the advisory committee gave them no satisfaction.

THE ONLY MEANS OF SETTLEMENT.

At the Catholic church here, today, in the presence of an audience largely composed of strikers and militiamen, Rev. Father Bullion denounced anarchy and the attack upon Frick, and urged that the strikers hold themselves in readiness for opening what was the only feasible means of settlement—arbitration.

Bergman Known in New Haven.

New Haven, Ct., July 24.—Alexander Bergman, who attempted to assassinate Frick yesterday, worked in this city three years ago as a compositor. He was known as a radical anarchist and lived with a woman of the same stripe, who afterwards left him.

VANDERBILT'S LUCK.

His Yacht Alva Sunk, But His Own Life is Saved. BOSTON, July 24.—The steamer H. F. Dimock, of the Metropolitan Steamship company, arrived this evening, having on board the occupants of W. K. Vanderbilt's yacht Alva, which the steamer ran down this morning.

The Alva, under command of Captain Morrison, left Bar Harbor at 4 o'clock Saturday evening, bound for Newport, R. I., having on board the owner and his guests—Frank W. Vanderbilt, Geo. De Forest, Louis Webb, Winfield Scott White and Frank Riggs—all of whom are summering at Newport.

Early this morning a thick fog set in and Captain Morrison deemed it imprudent to run further, as the yacht was in the track of coasting vessels. After making Pollock Rip light house, anchor was dropped. Whistles and horns were blown at frequent intervals.

Shortly after 8 a. m. the guests were aroused by a heavy crash, accompanied by the tearing of the plates of the vessel. William Vanderbilt was first on deck. Looking through the fog they could see the dark hull of a large steamer, backing away from the yacht. The vessel hailed the steamer, and informed the captain that the yacht must sink.

A steam launch, four row boats and a mapha launch were lowered from the Alva, which was rapidly sinking, and the owner and passengers, with the crew of fifty-two men, were soon rapidly pulling away from the doomed craft. The exit was none too soon, for when they were about a cable's length from the vessel she plunged down, bow first, and nothing but the tops of three masts remained above the water.

The Dimock was going at greatly reduced speed when the collision occurred, otherwise she would probably have run right over the Alva, and a frightful loss of life would have been the result, owing to the fact that all the passengers and half the crew were asleep at the time of the accident.

None of the passengers or crew saved a thing except their clothing. The Alva was one of the finest pleasure steamers afloat, and cost nearly half a million dollars. Efforts will be made to raise her.

EASTERN HOT WAVE.

Many Sunstrokes in Chicago, Detroit and Other Cities. CHICAGO, July 24.—The hot wave still prevails in this vicinity. Twenty-five prostrations, with two deaths, is the official record for today, and there is no apparent prospect for a cool spell very quickly. Dispatches to the Associated Press from various points in the middle states, report the hot wave general, and considerable suffering.

At Detroit it was hotter today than for five years. At St. Paul there were two fatal prostrations, with two fatalities. At Jeffersonville there were a dozen prostrations, with two fatalities.

St. Louis, July 24.—The mercury ranged from 96 to 102 here today, and several cases of prostrations by the heat are reported, two of which were fatal. CINCINNATI, July 24.—This was the hottest day of the year, the thermometer ranging from 101 to 104 degrees. In spite of the intense heat, however, but few prostrations are reported.

THE CHARLESTON AFIRE.

The Big Cruiser Has a Close Call at Port Orchard. PORT ORCHARD, Wash., July 24.—Fire broke out in the coal bunkers of the United States cruiser Charleston, Friday. The fire bell was rung, and within thirty seconds the pumps were started, and after battling with the flames for thirty-five minutes, the fire was subdued. The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion. All the hatches were battened down to smother the flames. The deck in the steeage had to be torn up to reach the fire, when streams of water were turned on which extinguished the blaze. The berth deck in the steeage was partly destroyed, as were also the officers' bunks and part of the fittings. The damage will not necessitate the ship's return to Mare Island as the repairs can be made by the ship's mechanics.

STAGE-ROBBERS LYNCHED

Short Shrift for Red-Headed Highwaymen.

The Ruggles Brothers Strung Up at Redding.

Their Bodies Left Dangling in the Breeze Several Hours.

No Confession Elicited From the Culprits—Abnormal Sympathy of Women Prompted the Lynching.

By the Associated Press.] REDDING, Cal., July 24.—John D. and Charles Ruggles, brothers, who robbed the Redding stage near here several weeks ago, and killed Express Messenger Montgomery and wounded the driver and a passenger, were taken from jail by about forty armed and masked men, at 2:30 o'clock this morning, and hanged.

The recent sentimental attitude of a number of women toward the prisoners, as well as the line of defense adopted by their counsel, who has been evidently endeavoring to implicate Messenger Montgomery as a party to the crime, had been denounced by a number of persons in the county, and it is believed that the lynching was due to those causes.

About 1 o'clock this morning a body of forty men marched down the hill leading to the court house, they having evidently met at some rendezvous some distance from town. Arriving at the corner of Butte and West streets, they marched across the square and entered the court house. They aroused the jailer from his slumbers and forced him to go with them. The sheriff and his deputy were sleeping at home. The jailer was conducted to the lower floor, the door to the sheriff's office was forced, and he was directed to produce the keys to the jail. He told the men that they were locked in the safe. The jailer was then placed in a corner, blindfolded, and guards set over him. With a sledge, drills and powder the men forced an entrance through the side of the safe and into the strong box. The sound of the sledge could be plainly heard from outside.

As soon as the mob entered the second iron door leading to the jail proper, John Ruggles greeted them with a trembling voice, asking if they meant him harm. Charley Ruggles said not a word.

John Ruggles' cell was opened first, and he was told to come out. He said: "Gentlemen, be lenient with my brother; he is innocent of this crime."

No attention was paid to him except to handcuff his hands behind him, he making no resistance. Some one then said: "Let's get the other one out," and the door was opened and Charley Ruggles stepped forth. They were both dressed only in pants, undershirts and stockings.

About 2:15 o'clock, one hour and a half after entering the courthouse, the lynchers came out with the two prisoners. The crowd was silent and undemonstrative. The party marched across the alley and down the next street, some two blocks, then turned to the left, stopping at a blacksmith shop located near the railroad company's large woodshed, and halted. Here a crossbeam was suspended from two pine trees. The ends of the ropes, which had been placed around the necks of the men, were attached to this crossbeam.

When all was in readiness, the leader said: "If you want to make a statement, now is the time, and be damned quick about it."

John Ruggles spoke up and said: "Gentlemen, spare him," meaning his brother.

One of the lynchers asked John if he had anything to say concerning the Casadero stage robbery, also about the murder of the driver in Siskiyou county, supposed by some to have been killed by him. He answered: "I know nothing of these affairs."

He was then asked where the balance of the treasure taken was buried. He replied: "Spare Charley, and I will tell you."

Another voice then said: "Never mind the treasure, tell us if you want to; if not, say what you have to say quick."

The doomed men refused to speak further, and on a signal from the leader they were suspended in the air, about four feet from the ground. Making fast the ropes the crowd dispersed in various directions.

The bodies hung there until cut down by the coroner, about 9 o'clock this morning, and the passengers on the Oregon trains saw them from the car windows, dangling in the morning sun. Quite a number of Redding citizens took a hand in the affair, and the citizens appear to approve of the summary justice meted out to the murderers of "Buck" Montgomery.

The affair was well planned and executed with due deliberation and in order. While the bodies were hanging some one suggested shooting them, but the suggestion was cried down. Two women witnessed the execution, and the shadowy forms of onlookers seemed to be hid everywhere nearby.

FIFTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

Two Obstacles Remain in the Way of Early Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—But two obstacles are now in the way of the early adjournment of congress—the world's fair amendment to the sundry civil bill and the pending anti-options bill in the senate. When they are disposed of, the session will undoubtedly terminate. The week promises to be one of lengthy and perhaps heated debates on these and other subjects, among the latter the pension office investigation.

The committee of conference on the sundry civil appropriation bill made rapid progress today, and succeeded in adjusting all the differences, except the world's fair appropriation of $5,000,000, in regard to which they report a total disagreement.

The other senate amendments which were non-concurred in by the house, provide for the addition to the bill of about $6,000,000 distributed through all the branches of the service. The senate conference is expected to abandon about $4,000,000 of this amount.

The conferees have stricken from the bill all new legislation inserted by the house in regard to district attorneys and marshals. The managers on the house side have agreed to the senate increase in the appropriation for surveying public lands from $200,000 to $375,000, and various other large amendments were agreed to or compromised, to fix the amounts as follows: International monetary conference, $80,000; enforcement of Chinese exclusion act, $100,000; special fund to prevent the spread of epidemic diseases, $100,000.

Among the senate amendments stricken out are those appropriating $10,000 each for the widows of three supreme court justices.

It is learned late this evening that the senate conferees have refused to accept O'Neill's Pinkerton amendment, adopted in the house.

MINE VICTIMS.

Sixteen Lives Lost by the York Farm Colliery Explosion. POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 24.—The number of victims of Saturday's explosion in the York Farm colliery has increased to sixteen dead and one dying. Not one of the men working in the vicinity of the explosion will be able to tell the tale, except Llewellyn, the man who first noticed the presence of gas and the usual running of coal, and who, by strictly complying with the colliery rules, had gone to inform the fire boss of the indications. His story is that he and Christian Hornicker, whose body is still buried in the mine, were together when fire shot in breast No. 1 on the second lift, and immediately there was a strong rush of gas and a run of coal. This gas rushed up the air way connecting the first and second lifts, and was ignited by an explosion, followed by a second explosion.

All the bodies have been recovered, except those of Harrison and Hornicker, and it is expected that they will be brought to the surface before morning. The complete list of victims is: George Kries, William Jones, William M. Wayman, Anthony Rutlavitch, Herman Warner, Thomas Jones, Anthony Stock, Henry Madara, Edward Curran, Thomas F. Landers, Robert Allott, C. D. Allott, James Hartsohl, John Harrison, Christian Hornicker, George Stock.

Of the above, Henry Madara, Thomas Landers, Robert and Charles Allott and Edward Curran, who were still living when taken from the mine, died today, and Stock is unconscious. Most of the victims leave families.

THE WAGNER FESTIVAL.

Tannhauser Produced by a Corps of Distinguished Artists. BEVERLYHILL, July 24.—Tannhauser was given at the Wagner theater today. Herr Greening, of Hanover, who interpreted the titular rôle, at times unduly subordinated the vocal opportunities of the part to emphasize its dramatic aspect. Taken altogether, however, his rendition compares favorably with that of Winkelmann. Frau-jean Wilberg, of Schwerin, with girlish figure and face, was very fascinating as Elizabeth. Her voice has improved since last year. Herr Scheidman of Dresden, the possessor of a superb baritone, sang Wolfram. His rendition of the "Evening Star" song in the last act was perfection. Doring of Mannheim, as Landgrave and Zeller of Weimar, as Walther, both acquitted themselves well. Pauline Mailbach sang Venus well. The ballet in Venusburg was arranged by Zucchi, of Milan, who danced as one of the Graces. The other dancers were mainly recruited from the Berlin opera house. The work of the orchestra was magnificent.

A DENVER SENSATION.

Two Men Arrested for an Ancient Bank Robbery. DENVER, July 24.—A sensation has been caused by the arrest of J. H. Cross and J. McDaniel, charged with the robbery of President Moffatt, of the First National bank, which created such a sensation three years ago, Moffatt being forced to give up $21,000 at the point of a revolver. McDaniel asserts that Cross was the robber, but the latter denies all knowledge of the crime. Mr. Moffatt visited the jail this afternoon, but declined to say whether or not he was sure Cross was the man who robbed him. The local police officials ridicule the idea that either Cross or McDaniel were connected with the affair. Private Detective Sawyer, who made the arrest, is confident, however, that he has made no mistake.

FROM DARKEST AFRICA.

News of Emin Pasha's Health and Movements. BERLIN, July 24.—Dr. Stuhlman, Emin Pasha's second in command, writes to Schweinfurth from East Africa, denying that Emin Pasha invaded British territory or tried to recover ivory he left at Wadaija, rebels having seized and carried it off. The fatigues of the marches, says Stuhlman, sapped Emin's health, his eyesight became worse until he could not read or write, and he continued to suffer from insomnia and from hemorrhages from his old ear wound. Stuhlman parted with Emin some distance west of Victoria Nyansa.

A CRIMINAL CAPTURED.

A Man Arrested in Chicago for the Murder of a New Jersey Girl. CHICAGO, July 24.—Morris Berg was arrested here late last night for the murder of Mary Anderson, a Danish girl, who was found murdered in the woods near Perth Amboy, N. J., last month. Johnny Bursel, one of the small boys chased from the scene of the crime, was committed, identified Berg as one of the men who chased him. Berg vehemently protests his innocence, and says he was never near Perth Amboy.

THE KILLING OF EXPLORER BODSON DESCRIBED BY A SURVIVOR.

LONDON, July 24.—The Times says the Marquis de Beauchamp, colleague of Captain Stairs and Captain Bodson, in the ill-fated Catanga expedition, has landed in Marseilles. He described how Meiri had attacked the expedition, and how Stairs sent Bodson to King Meiri to parley with him. Meiri was about to kill Captain Bodson when the latter, in self-defense, shot Meiri. Bodson was then himself killed by the natives. The expedition for twenty-six days was without food, except ants and locusts. Captain Stairs died at Shinde. One hundred and ninety natives attached to the expedition also perished.
