A Pasadena Arrest for Switching Cars on Colorado Street.

Closing of the Unitarian Church Fair at Pomona.

A Church Fight Settled in Court at Santa Ana - Redondo Shipping Notes-Anaheim Notes-Redlands Improvements.

PASADENA, Dec. 3.—On the 19th day of September, 1892, the city council of Pasadena passed an ordinance, in substance, that on and after 30 days from the date of this ordinance no switching of train cars or engines shall be done across Colorado street by any party or parties; and further, that any person or persons violating the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

The ordinance was intended to stop the switching of Santa Fe trains across Colorado street, and when presented met the determined opposition of both the railroad company and Mr. Pinney, who owns a private switch that is effected by the ordinance.

Since that time the railroad company has continued to switch across the street as usual, paying no attention to the ordinance, taking the ground that the city exceeded its authority in passing the prohibitory measure.

Yesterday a warrant was sworn out against John Dibble, a Santa Fe freight engineer, charging him with the violation of this ordinance.

A test case will be made to ascertain whether the city has a right to the control of its streets or not.

Today they paid a visit to Pasadena and called upon a number of our prominent citizens.

SANTA ANA.

A Church Fight Settled in the Courts.

SANTA ANA, Dec. 3.—For the past week the entire attention of the superior court has been held on the case of Rev. Jenkins of Villa Park. From the testimony of several witnesses examined it seems that there has been quite a passage at arms between the reverend gentleman and the members of the First Congregational church of the little foothill town, over question of salary. Mr. Jenkins claims that the deacons of the church secured his services and agreed to pay a certain sum for the first year, and increase the amount the following year, but the deacons contradicted the statement and the jury had a big job in rendering a verdict, as they were out about 35 hours before an agreement could be reached. They allowed him $121.57 salary, and interest on the same. The jury fees amounted to $120, while the actual cost of the entire case was about $225.

NEPTUNE'S STEEDS.

Hark to the wild war-steer
That roars and rages and rages
When the Storm King breathes his thunder
Along the shuddering shore
The ocean's weird robes
For the wild white steeds of Neptune
Are coming home again.

No hand nor voice can check them,
These stern steeds of the sea;
They were not born for bondage,
They were born free.

With arched crests proudly waving,
Too strong for human rein,
The wild white steeds of Neptune
Are coming home again.

With rolling emerald chariots
They charge the stilted strand;
They rear and leap and land;
With deep chests breathing thunder
Across the quivering plain
The wild white steeds of Neptune
Are coming home again.

Not with the trill of bugles,
But with a music sweeter far
And shriller seaward banners,
That mighty army comes,
Oh, the harbor bars are moaning
At a wall of death and pain,
For the wild white steeds of Neptune
Are coming home again.

Well may the sailor women
Look out to sea the long,
And long for absent lovers—
Their lovers on the sea—
Well may the harbor seamen
Watch the wild white steeds of Neptune
Are coming home again.

How sad their mournful neighing—
That wailing, haunting sound;
It is the song of sorrow—
A dirge for dead men drowned,
Though we must all go seaward,
Through our watches wait in vain,
The wild white steeds of Neptune
Will howl and come again.

LETTER BAG.

Mr. Flynn on the Outfall Sewer Syphon.

EDITORS HERALD: In a communication addressed to the council of Los Angeles and signed by several prominent citizens of this city, grave doubts are expressed as to the utility of one of the inverted syphons of the outfall sewer. There is no cause for anxiety about this syphon or about any other part of the design of the outfall sewer.

Flowing to its full capacity the syphon will have a mean velocity of about four feet per second and a discharge of about 32 cubic feet per second. For some years after the construction of the sewer the supply of sewage will not be equal to its full discharging capacity, but there is more than ample water available at all times to supply the deficiency.

There is always water running to waste in the river below Buena Vista-street bridge, which can be utilized for this purpose. The sewage will be sold at Inglewood, and it will be to the interest of the official in charge of the sewer to keep it full at all times, in order to derive the greatest possible income from it. The velocity in the sewer—four feet per second—will be more than sufficient to keep it clear not only of sewage silt but even of heavy substances, such as brickbats, should they reach the syphons.

As the interior system of city sewers is built up so will the sewage increase and the quantity of river water required diminish, until the sewer is carrying sewage alone.

This inverted syphon arrangement is not experimental. Similar syphons are used in sewerage systems and in irrigation and water works all over the world. I will quote one instance: In the Paris sewer system the syphon for conveying the sewage from the south to the north side of the river Seine is composed of two pipes, each 3 feet 3 inches in diameter and 556 feet in length. This has worked satisfactorily.

Hydraulic miners are aware of the extensive use of inverted syphons in mining, where they are used to convey water highly charged with sand and silt, and they know that so long as they are given a high velocity they keep themselves clear of silt deposits.

For nearly six years, under different administrations, I have been engaged at different times in the city engineer's office in almost every detail of design, specifications and construction of the city sewer system. I have seen how persistent Mr. Dockweiler has been in pressing on the council the necessity of adopting a route for the outfall sewer on which the sewage could be utilized for irrigation purposes, and not uselessly discharged into the ocean. He succeeded in convincing the council of this and he has adopted a route and plan for the outfall sewer which is, in my opinion, all things considered, the best for the interests of the city. On completion of the outfall sewer the city will have at its disposal 32 cubic feet per second of diluted sewage, which is equivalent to 1600 miners' inches. There are several irrigation districts in California where they have expended several hundred thousand dollars to store and convey to their land the equivalent of this supply. The profits resulting from the sale of the water will more than repay the whole cost of the sewer.

The taxpayers of Los Angeles owe Mr. Dockweiler a debt of gratitude for having adopted a route by which the sewer, instead of being a source of loss is a source of permanent and increasing revenue to the city.

P. J. FLYNN,
Civil and hydraulic engineer.

Some Pertinent Inquiries.

EDITORS HERALD: I beg to ask E. H. Hutchins the following questions:

First—Did not one of your inspectors reject some manhole covers on the Fifth-street sewer, between Main and San Pedro streets, on account of their weight being less than 40 pounds each, as required by the city specifications, as reported by the city specifications?

Second—If such be the case, is not a fact that the same manhole covers were afterwards used in the construction of a sewer on Court street by Contractor White and the work accepted by you?

Third—Is it not a fact that you require in excavations for sewer work where the cut is less than 12 or 14 feet that all tunnels shall be cut down after the sewer has been laid?

Fourth—If such be the case, why is it that the tunnels which were left on the Second-street sewer, between Alameda and Los Angeles streets, and those on the sewer now being built and partially covered under the Zureth contract on Alameda street were not cut down after the pavement has been laid immediately after?

Fifth—Is it not a fact that your inspectors require some contractors on sewer construction and not others to follow out the city specifications to the letter in regard to the cutting down of tunnels left?

Sixth—Is it not a fact that you have allowed and are now allowing Chinese-made brick to be used in the construction of all work wherein they are required in your department?

Seventh—Is it not a fact that the street railway tracks of this city are in a most horrible condition as regards the pavement which aligns them?

Eighth—Is it not a fact that some four or five months ago the Los Angeles Consolidated Electric railway tore up the pavement at the junction of Marchessault and Upper Main streets, and have not as yet replaced said pavement?

INQUIRY.

A Plain Statement from Councilman Innes.

EDITORS HERALD: I desire through your columns to reply to an editorial item in the Times of this morning where the statement is made that I was active in "legging for that jim-crow printing office, the alleged Daily Journal, which made a mess of printing the ballots for the city." The statement is further made that I appeared to be in favor of something akin to Chinese cheap labor in the matter of printing.

At the suggestion of City Clerk Teed, a committee was appointed from the council to advise with and assist Mr. Teed in matters pertaining to the calling and holding of the city election. Mr. Teed, Mr. Alford and myself were appointed on that committee.

No meeting of that committee was ever called or held to my knowledge, where the matter of printing the city ballots was ever discussed or mentioned. I had no knowledge, until after the tickets were printed, by whom the work was to be done, and do not now know the price to be paid therefor; and furthermore, I never knew that the Daily Journal had made an application for the job of printing the city ballots.

WASHA MALLA FAN TAN.

A Successful Raid Last Evening by the Police Force.

A very successful raid was made on a Chinese fan-tan game last evening by Detectives Able and Benson and Officer Harris. Nine Chinamen were captured, together with the gambling paraphernalia. During the afternoon Officer Harris noticed several of the fan-tan high-rollers assembled at 308 Marchessault street, the headquarters for the "bloode," and in consequence believed that the usual game would soon open up.

Chief Glass detailed Detectives Able and Benson to make the raid, and about 5 o'clock Detective Able took a commanding position on the corner of the building where he could watch the play and the players. Officer Harris walked into the room on the first floor, where the game is usually dealt, and then walked out toward Alameda street, as if he were satisfied that no game was in sight. A Chinese lookout stood on the pavement in front of the house, and Officer Harris disappeared around the corner of the "lookout" gave the signal and the game began. But Officer Harris quickly returned by another direction, and standing opposite, lighted a match. This was the signal for the raid. Detective Able came down stairs, went to the back door and knocked for admittance. At that moment Detective Benson and Officer Harris were at the front door.

The "look-out" saw them approach, gave a wild shout and ran down Marchessault street as if an evil spirit were after him.

While one of the gamesters went to the back door to admit Detective Able, the other nine inmates had scrambled to the front door, through which they hoped to escape. As one of their number opened the door, Detective Benson and Officer Harris glided in and captured eight of them—seven managing to escape. In the meantime Detective Able, with his capture, came up to their assistance.

The officers found in the room the paraphernalia for playing fan-tan, a small amount of Chinese money, and $165 in gold, which one of their number had stuffed into a stove. They also found three large revolvers secreted in a pile of wood in a corner of the room. Each of the nine Chinamen were mentioned as to the ownership of the "batteries," and all denied ever having seen them. The prisoners, together with the gaming implements, money and revolvers, were taken to the central police station. The Chinamen were charged with gambling. Five of them were released on $100 cash bail each.

THE POPE'S STRAIGHT PATH.

His Holiness Will Not Deviate from His Chosen Policy.

ROME, Dec. 3.—[Copyright, 1892, by the New York Associated Press.]—Diplomatic and ecclesiastical circles variously comment on the appointment of Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli as archbishop of Bologna. It is understood that the pope made this unexpected decision because Cardinal Serafino has been considered as the chief opposition against the republican policy of the holy father, and even as a candidate favored by the emperor of Austria for succession to the tiara. The pope wished by this decisive act to show that he will never be turned aside from the path he selected to pursue. The event is a triumph for Cardinal Rampolla and Cardinal Emedochowski, and also for France and Russia. It is said on good authority that the pope has not responded to the approaches of certain powers who desired to submit to his arbitration international questions looking to bringing about an understanding between France and Germany, with a view to a European alliance against Russia. On the other hand, the holy father has just taken a step toward rendering closer the Russo-France alliance. There has not been an exchange of views, but a protocol will be prepared on the subject.
