

VIRGINIAN EXTRA.

ABINGDON, VA., NOV. 7, 1862.

This slip is issued for several reasons: first, because we are out of paper, and as this is sufficient, we will not give the other reasons. It is impossible to tell when we will get paper in these times of uncertain transportation and uncertain everything else; in the meantime we will try to keep the mill going with slips. A slice is better than no bread.

Gen. Marshall.

Gen. Marshall is here, with a portion of his command. We presume the most of his forces will be in this vicinity within a day or two. We understand (not officially) that as soon as he can get his forces together and properly reorganize them, he will move, none of our business where, but to a point, in all probability, where his men will find something to do.

Terrible Accident.

A most terrible accident occurred in this vicinity on Wednesday. Mr. Frank Smith's sons, four in number, the oldest being about 15, found a loaded shell in one of the former camps of our troops. They took it home, and went into the cellar to open it. Striking it with a hatchet, it exploded, mangling two, perhaps fatally, and badly injuring the others. The wonder is, that all were not instantly killed.

Several Abolition Regiments, of their way from the East to Virginia, were tilted back last week, to carry the election in New York for the Black Republicans, at the point of the bayonet if necessary. The election was held on Monday, and as the Conservatives had determined to maintain their ground at all hazards, we will not be surprised to hear of a bloody day.

Substitute Wanted.

An able-bodied man, not subject to Conscriptio, and willing to serve as a substitute in Stuart's Cavalry, may meet with favorable success by applying at this office within the next ten days.

It is rumored that Gen. Echols is falling back from the Kanawha Valley, and that a large Abolition force is advancing in the direction of the Saltworks.

The Hon. Mr. Simms, Senator from Ky., is at present sojourning in this place.

See advertisement of Col. Jas. L. F. Campbell, Auctioneer, for the sale of 30 acres of the Carter tract of land in this county.

Gen. John H. Morgan hangs the Yankee Provost Marshal of Lexington, Ky.

We have it upon what we deem very reliable authority, that after our army fell back from Perryville, Gen. John H. Morgan dashed into Lexington and hung, in the street, the Provost Marshal of that city. It seems that this dirty tool of Lincoln, had notified the mother of General Morgan that she must leave Kentucky, and, in the event of her failing to do so, would resort to some severe measures to make her go. The noble son learning this, resolved that he would take his life at all hazards. This he did, as reported to us by truthful Kentucky gentlemen, in a gallant style.—Knoxville Register.

The above has since been confirmed. The official had destroyed Mrs. Morgan's furniture, torn her into the street, and abused and insulted her in the grossest and most brutal manner. He was hung in front of the house he had destroyed.

From Yankeedom.

From Northern papers of the 30th:

A correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune, writing on Tuesday says:

The rebels are making a rain very strongly on our front. Their snipers and two pieces of artillery, on the side of Charlestown, are visible from Bolivar Heights. They guard the line so vigilantly that no contrabands or refugees come through. Yesterday they captured one of our pickets. No doubt is entertained about the falling back of the rebel army. McClellan and Burnside have moved their headquarters.

A letter, dated opposite Shepherdstown, says:

Two men belonging to Gen. Humphrey's division were shot dead while on picket yesterday. Ever since the capture of one of the rebel pickets the other night, their pickets shoot at ours at every opportunity.

A dispatch, dated near Harper's Ferry, Wednesday night, at 11 o'clock, shows that the rebels are not very far off.

It says:

No news of importance has been received from Gen. Beaumont to-day. The news received to-day from the vicinity of the main body of the rebel army, shows that Hill, Jackson and Hampton are encamped between Martinsburg and Banker Hill, the majority being near the latter place.

A request was made to-day to remove the bodies of two soldiers buried near Shepherdstown, but it was denied until the consent of General Lee or Stuart could be obtained, which occupied the hour. This shows that the leading rebel Generals are not a great distance from our lines, and that the rebel army has not yet retreated up the Shenandoah Valley. The rebels have some their sick and wounded back to Strasburg, evidently anticipating an early movement of the Army of the Potomac. It is believed that no large force of the enemy have crossed to the eastward of the Blue Ridge.

Skirmish in Culpeper.

RICHMOND, November 3.

Passengers report a skirmish in Culpeper yesterday morning, in which eighty Yankees were captured.

FROM YANKEEDOM.

General Halleck Superceded by McClellan.

FREDERICKSBURG, Nov. 3d.

Persons from Maryland to-day say that Halleck has been sent to the West, and McClellan is now General-in-Chief, and is to remain in Washington.

General Hooker is to take McClellan's place as commander of the Army of the Potomac.

RICHMOND, Nov. 3.—The Examiner of this morning mentions a report that a dispatch has been received at the War Department, from General French, of Petersburg, announcing that the Yankees, fifty thousand strong, are advancing upon that city along the line of the Norfolk and Petersburg Railroad; also that the enemy, to the number of twenty thousand, had landed at City Point. Nothing reliable is known relative to these reports, but it is not believed that the Yankees on the Southside have anything like the force which report assigns them.

RICHMOND, Nov. 2d.—A detachment of the 13th Virginia Cavalry attacked the Federal rail way train near Manassas Junction on Friday, destroying it, and captured sixty-six prisoners who are now at Gordonsville.—A Cavalry expedition last week proceeded down the Peninsula to capture the negroes who murdered Messrs Graves and Shriver; but the negroes had gone to Fort Magruder below Williamsburg. The enemy at Williamsburg have been reinforced.

Gen. Stuart telegraphed to this place on Saturday that he was engaged with the enemy then near Upperville, and again on Sunday somewhere in Loudoun. He says that they have been fighting for several days. His child will be buried to-day, but the stern duties of war keep the bereaved father away from the opening grave of the loved and lost. Such is war.—Lynchburg Virginian, Nov. 4th.

Late and Interesting from the West.

CHATTANOOGA, Oct. 31.—It is stated by several gentlemen who left Murfreesboro' on the 29th, that Breckinridge had given Gen. Negley two days in which to remove the women and children from Nashville. At the expiration of this period, Nashville is to be surrendered or shelled and burned.

Gen. John H. Morgan is said to be on the North and Forrest on the South of Nashville. Breckinridge is at Laverne.

Morgan has about thirty pieces of artillery. Breckinridge, and Forrest have about sixty pieces of artillery.

Several ladies have left Nashville. The Yankees did not even inspect their baggage. Permits to leave were readily granted by the Abolition authorities.

Nashville in Danger.

A Cincinnati correspondent writes as follows to a New York paper:

It is feared that Nashville is in danger of being taken, and our gallant forces there, under General Negley, captured. If Bragg makes a rapid dash that way, I do not see how the place can be saved. No relief can be sent in time to be of any service. It is not at all improbable that Bragg's force is now pushing towards Virginia to join Lee's forces. In that case it will be well for McClellan to look out for a trick like that of Jackson before the five day's battles. Bragg has forty-five thousand good soldiers, and such an acquisition would be invaluable to Lee.

Capture of a Yankee Ship in the Potomac.

Among the prisoners brought to Richmond on Friday evening were the officers of a Yankee ship, taken under the following circumstances: Lieuts. Wood and W. Lee, of the navy, with ten volunteers from the "Patrick Henry," went off twelve miles in Chesapeake Bay, from the shore above York river, one night last week, boarded and captured the ship alluded to without difficulty. She proved to be the clipper "Alleghanius," of New York, 1200 tons register, with a crew of twenty-one men; bound from Baltimore to London with 1,420 tons of goods. After removing the prisoners and instruments her captors set her to and burnt her. The adventurers passed two or three steamers on the way out and back.—Enquirer.
