HUMOROUS ITEMS.

Josh Billings says: "Hunting after fame iz like hunting after fleas—hard to ketch, and sure to make you on-easy if you do or don't ketch him."

After a wedding it was formerly a custom to drink honey, dissolved in water, for thirty days—a moon's age.—Hence the origin of honey-moon.

An Irish school-master wrote the following copy for one of his pupils: "Idleness covereth a man with nakedness."

The worst yet: An exchange got off the following horrible conundrum: "Why is an empty champagne bottle like an orphan? Because it has lost its pop."

A Troy Dutchman, in trying to reach the ferry boat, fell in the water.—His first exclamation on being hauled out was, "Mine Gott, let's have a price!"

A disreputable scamp describes his deceased uncle as "a greedy old pig." Being asked why he so spoke of him, he said, "because he left me nothing in his (s) will!"

Mrs. Rugg, a widow, having taken a Mr. Price for a second husband, and being asked how she liked the change, replied, "Oh, I have got rid of my old Rugg for a good Price!"

Mrs. Partington hearing them talk about the strike of the "Wire Drawers" in Massachusetts, said, "Well what won't people do for fashion next, it expelled me into wearing Hoop skirts, but I can't see no use in any body wearing wire-drawers."

"How is your husband, dear?"—asked one lady of another. "Oh, he's in a very bad state," was the reply.

"And, pray what kind of a state is he in?" persisted the other. "In State prison."

"Boss, I want twenty-five cents," said a jour-printer recently to his employer. "Twenty-five cents! how soon do you want it, William?" "Next Tuesday week." "As soon as that? You can't have it, I've told you so often that when you are in want of any large sum of money you must give me at least four weeks' notice."

The following is reported as an authentic affair: We can't vouch for its truth.

"Married, at Flintstone, by Rev. Windstone, Mr. Nehemiah Sandstone and Miss Wilhelmina Whetstone, both of Limestone." Look out for Brimstone next.

A Glasgow merchant, on his death-bed, sent for a Free Church clergyman. Having some fears regarding his future prospects, he asked the reverend gentleman:

"Do you think if I were to leave $10,000 to the Free Kirk that my soul would be saved?"

"Well," answered the cautious minister, "I couldn't just promise you that, but I think it's an experiment well worth trying."

During the debate in the Continental Congress on the establishment of the Federal army, a member offered a resolution providing that it should never exceed three thousand men; whereupon Washington moved an amendment that no enemy should ever invade the country with a force exceeding two thousand men. This joke was a perfect success, and the laughter which it excited smothered the resolution.

Rev. Mr. B——, passing Deacon R's premises one evening, was greatly horrified at hearing that pious official swearing in the most accomplished manner at his cow, which had kicked his milk-pail into the middle of next week. Observing his minister looking over the fence at him, the deacon said apologetically: "I am really afraid, Mr. B——, I shall never be able to enjoy religion as long as I keep that cow."

A Spinster went to a well-known lawyer and engaged him to manage a suit for her, in which she claimed a legacy, to which her right was disputed. The suit was lost, and the poor maiden said to the lawyer:

"How can I ever repay you for all the time and trouble which you have taken on my account? I have nothing but my heart to give you."

"My clerk takes the fees—go to him," answered the lawyer gruffly.
