J. EDGAR THOMPSON, President of the F. C. R. R. Co., is in the Western country with a party of capitalists.

B. F. Butler, it is said aspires to the office of the Governorship of Massachusetts. He was champion of "Credit Mobilier."

WASHINGTON CITY has had a case or two of cholera. It is also reported from Cincinnati, Memphis, Nashville, and other western cities.

ENGLAND is puzzled how to receive the three women who accompany the Shah of Persia as wives, in his visit to the "Realm." She cannot recognize polygamy, and to recognize any one and not all three of the ladies cannot fail to prove an insult to Persia.

A CERTAIN Englishman has brought his mind to the conclusion that there are better people in the world than the Negro race, and that the world had better be rid of them. He has conceived the scheme of extirpating them. His plan is simply to colonize Africa with 200,000,000 Chinamen, who, he thinks, in the course of a generation or two, would redeem that country from its wilderness state, and solve the Negro question for all time to come. Wonderful man!

The Republicans of Maine, in their State Convention, on the 19th inst., at Bangor, passed the following on the Congressional salary grab:

Resolved, That the Republicans of Maine denounce the recent action of Congress, known as the salary grab, increasing the salaries of its members, and especially its retroactive feature, by which nearly $5,000 was voted for each member for services already paid for, as a gross violation of the pledges of the last National Convention, and demand the immediate and unconditional repeal of an act so disgraceful to Congress and so odious to the people.

SCIENTIFIC men profess to believe that drouth is of great service, in that, it brings to the surface of the ground, gasses from the far down depths of the earth that are highly beneficial, indeed essential to the promotion of vegetable life. Who knows enough about the gasses that pass in and out of the ground during the various phases of weather to pronounce the theory of the scientists incorrect. Whether correct or incorrect, the declaration itself imparts a certain degree of consolation. How consoling it is to be taught that drouth is a great benefit, a substantial good and not a curse, but a blessing.

MR. WIGFALL, once a United States Senator from Texas, and a leading spirit in organizing the Southern Confederacy, was recognized near Baltimore, among a company that had assembled on the 17th inst., to decorate the graves of the Southern soldiers, and called on for a speech. He delivered himself in such a manner that his friends on the platform took occasion to have him close as soon as possible. Wigfall don't want the fires of the Lost Cause to die out.

It is a little queer that these people who profess such an undying love for slavery do not go to live in some of the Eastern countries, where it is practiced without discouragement. It is a loss of time and labor to preach for it here.

THE Secretary of the Interior has made a curious decision upon an architectural question. The Homestead laws require that, in order to validate a claim of pre-emption of land, a house must have been erected upon each quarter section. Some astute fellows have undertaken to comply with this provision nominally, not really. Building a house at the point where the boundaries of four quarter sections come together, they have made the building partly upon each quarter section. This is so smart an arrangement that it might be supposed that the Interior Department would not submit to it. The law requires a house to be erected on each quarter section of land. The cunning fellows interested in this experiment have really but a quarter of a house upon each quarter section, and yet Mr. Deland decides that this is sufficient, and that a quarter of a house is, in the Land Department law, a house. The decision has a tendency to encourage frauds upon the government, and is such a one as speculators in land will greatly approve.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

NEWS DISPATCHES.

A special agent of the Government reports the following of cattle stealing on the Mexican border under date of May 31st: On the 15th inst. there were stolen and driven to the Mexican side of the Rio Grande three hundred head of Texas cattle, a portion of the herd belonging to Messrs. Read & Brother, who were en route with them to San Augustine, New Mexico.

This theft was committed by three or four different parties who stampeded and crossed from ten to fifty head each, according to the strength of the party and opportunity.

Through the assistance of the general politico at El Paso, and his various deputies, about one hundred head were recaptured. The remaining two hundred were driven into the mountains, scattered killed and otherwise made way with, so that there are no present or future prospects of further recoveries. It is not claimed that this robbery was committed by Mexican citizens altogether, for it has been ascertained that Mexicans on the American side of the border were instrumental in bringing about the stampede, if they were not the originators of the entire scheme.

A special despatch to the Cincinnati Inquirer reports the arrest at Owingsville, Ky., on the 16th inst. of an outlaw, named Hagan, who has confessed the names of eighty members of a band of desperadoes, of which he was a member. He says this line of robbers extends from Pendleton county through Kentucky and Virginia into North Carolina.

The manufacturers of Stoves in the United States held a convention at Niagara Falls on the 18th and 19th inst.

It has rained in Arkansas almost every day for a month. Oh! for a few days of it here.

The village of Maysville, Tuscola county Michigan, was nearly destroyed by fire on the night of the 18th inst.

Under date of the 17th, a despatch from Augusta South Carolina relates the following: Arthur G. Glover shot and killed William Goumilion and his father, Lovett Goumilion, at Edgefield Court House, S. C., this morning at ten o'clock. Glover and Lovett Goumilion had some words a few weeks since, during which Glover cursed him. Young Goumilion threatened to kill Glover, and a fight had been anticipated. Glover sent for father and son to meet him at a store in the village.

On entering, young Goumilion was shot in the head by Glover with a Der-ringer, and died instantly. The father appearing on the scene, was also shot in the head by Glover, and mortally wounded. Glover surrendered himself. The affair creates intense excitement in Edgefield, where the parties were well connected. About thirty years ago Lovett Goumilion killed Joseph Glover, uncle of Arthur Glover.

A despatch from Missouri on the 17th inst. says: Joseph C. Howard, arrested here for stealing horses in Franklin county, was taken up to Pacific City last night, to be placed in jail at Union, the county seat. He was put in the calaboose at Union. About nine o'clock P. M. an armed mob of 200 men took him out and hanged him. He made a confession implicating several other men in horse stealing who escaped.

A despatch of the 17th inst. relates how J. S. Thomas, sheriff of Prescott county Arizona, had an Indian fight. It says on last Sunday he was fired at by Apaches near Rio Verde. He returned the fire from his buggy, and killed two and wounded one. The rest, numbering seven or eight, fled. Thomas' horse ran away, but his owner escaped unhurt.—General Crook has gone to San Carlos reservation. Conflicting reports are current regarding the Apaches. Some say they have all gone on the war path, and others that one or two bands only have gone.

The National Associations of Millers met at Toledo on the 17th inst. Members were present from five States and the District of Columbia. Jacob Barnes presided. The Committee on Permanent Organization reported the draft of a constitution and by-laws, which was discussed until the hour of adjournment.

A Nashville, Tenn., despatch of the 17th inst. says: The cholera is unabating in Nashville, and there is considerable exodus of people from the city. Yesterday three draymen were attacked on the street. A number of convicts are down with the disease. Thirty deaths from cholera were reported yesterday, of which eight were whites and twenty-two colored. Business is almost totally suspended and commercial interests are suffering badly.

While the Modocs were being removed from Peninsula, Tule Lake, on the 17th inst. to Fort Klamath, one of the Indians, known as Curly-headed Jack, who surrendered with the Hot Creek band to General Davis at Fairchild's Rancho, shot himself and has since died. It is reported that some of the Indians who were ironed nearly succeeded in filing off their irons, but were detected in time to prevent their escape.

A despatch from Minnesota under date of the 16th inst. says: A special from Bismark, on the Northern Pacific railroad, reports that the Northern Pacific surveying party, which left Lincoln yesterday morning, when about two miles from the latter place, were attacked by about 150 Sioux Indians. Two companies of infantry and a detachment of cavalry came to their aid, and four Indians were killed. An escort of 200 armed men is now accompanying the surveying party and no serious trouble is anticipated. After the skirmish the survey was resumed.

An Albany N. Y. despatch of the 18th inst. says: Two suicides occurred in St. Johnsville yesterday. It appears that a physician, named A. D. Wheelock, a married man, was paying attention to Miss Ruth Smith. The parents of the young lady objected to his conduct on the ground that he was not divorced.—Yesterday, from some reason unknown (proceedings for divorce having been commenced), Miss Smith took arsenic and died, and the doctor, on learning the fact, took a dose of morphine, and also expired.

A Sarnia, Canada, despatch, of the 19th inst., says: Mrs. Workman was hanged in the jail-yard to day for the murder of her husband in February last. The woman, up to the time of execution, declared that she did not intend to kill her husband, and that his death was the result of a drunken brawl. She ascended the scaffold with a firm step, and manifested fortitude and nerve which astounded all present. She expressed a hope that her case would be a warning to wives who have drunken husbands, and to husbands who have drunken wives. She died almost instantly after being dropped.

Mrs. Susan B. Anthony was sentenced by the Court at Canandaigua, N. Y., on the 19th inst., to pay a fine of one hundred dollars and cost of prosecution for voting at the election last fall. Fifty years after this posterity will laugh at that decision.

A despatch of the 19th inst. says:—Chinews have turned strikers at Beaver Falls, Pa., and left the place. A paper in the Western part of the State says that it was not a strike but a quarrel among bosses that caused a number to leave.

The town of Michigamme, on Michigamme Lake, in Marquette county Michigan, was entirely destroyed by fire on the 19th inst. Over two hundred houses were burned and the loss of property is immense. Eight lives were lost.

A despatch from Washington on the 20th inst. says: The Secretary of the Interior to-day decided that the erection of a house by two, three or four pre-emption or homestead claimants in such manner as to occupy a portion of each of their quarter sections under one roof is a legal compliance with the law requiring a house to be built on every quarter section in order to secure title to it.

A despatch from Canandaigua N. Y. under date of the 20th inst. says: Relative to the legal prosecution of Mrs. Susan B. Anthony for voting, The motion for a new trial in the case of Jones and other inspectors of election, &c., was this morning denied. Upon being asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced, Mr. Jones arose and said:—Your honor has pronounced me guilty of a crime. The jury has had but little to do with it. In the performance of my duty as inspector of election, which position I have held for the last four years, I acted conscientiously, faithfully, and according to the best of my judgment and ability. I did not believe that I had the right to reject the ballot of a citizen who offered to vote, and who took the preliminary and general oaths, and answered all questions prescribed by law.

The instructions furnished by the State authorities declared that I had no such right. As far as the registering of names is concerned they would never have been placed upon the registry if it had not been for Daniel Warner, the Democratic Federal supervisor of election appointed by this court, who not only advised the registry, but addressed us, saying, "Young men, do you know the penalty of the law if you refuse to register these names?" And, after discharging my duties faithfully and honestly and to the best of my ability, if it is to vindicate the law that I am to be imprisoned, I willingly submit to the penalty.

Each of the defendants appealed to the honesty of their intentions in their actions. They were sentenced to pay a fine of $25 each and costs of prosecution $30.

A common crime in London is to entice away children, strip them of their clothing, and then leave them naked in the street. Twelve such cases were recently heard before one magistrate. In one of them a mother who had hunted frantically through the streets for her child, was so fortunate as to encounter him, at eleven o'clock at night, in the hands of a woman who was dragging him towards Westminster bridge, exhausted and stripped of nearly all his clothing. The persevering mother rescued her child and arrested his abductor.

Recently a young man, who was attending a night writing-school, near Danville, Indiana, was smitten by the charms of a lady who was present, and at the close of the school bustled forward to solicit the pleasure of escorting her home. The invention of the circular saw is generally attributed to Captain Kendall, of Maine, who died a few weeks ago at the age of eighty nine. This is a mistake. The circular saw was invented by Joseph Murray, of Mansfield, England, son of an old servant of the Byron family, whom Lord Byron, the poet, often speaks of in his letters as "Old Joe Murray." The first saw of the kind ever made is still shown by his descendants.

Sir James Eyre, in his well known little book, mentions three curious cases of idiosyncrasy—the case of a gentleman who could not eat a single straw berry with impunity; the case of another whose head would become frightfully swollen if he touched the smallest particle of salt; and the case of a third who would inevitably have an attack of gout a few hours after eating fish. Let us add to this the instance of the clergyman who always fainted when he heard a certain verse in Jeremiah!

THE UNDEVELOPED WEST; OR, Five Years in the Territories.

January, 1868, found me an invalid in the goodly city of Eauville. A bronchial difficulty, produced ten years before by severe application to study, had in a year of army life developed to a confirmed asthma; and now, in the moist and enervating climate of Southern Indiana, I was shaken by an ominous grayed cough, the heaviness of a mother and the despair of friends and creditors. I tried fifty remedies: cubeb, troches, caramels, hoarhound confections were my hourly refreshment; a score of nasty syrups in villainous green bottles adorned my mantel; pastilles smoked upon my stove, and my chamber was redolent with the fumes of burning nitre.

My friends sympathized and suggested; one had heard his grandmother say she never knew a tea made of chestnut leaves to fail in such cases, if taken in time; another quoted an equally venerable source in favor of bloodroot and whiskey, with snuff of powdered galin-gale; a third had all confidence in the regular school, while a military friend just from Texas contented himself with the cheerful suggestion, "My boy, the angels have taken a fancy for you; try a southern climate." If there is anything worse than dying of consumption, it must be the reception of the advice prevalent on the subject.

The general voice ran in favor of travel. One thought a sea-voyage a dead sure thing; another was enthusiastic for Florida, and a third was positive the Lake Region would straighten me out. In a multitude of counsellors, non-professional, there was anything but safety. My physician, watch in one hand, the other on my pulse, looked solemnly wise and thus pronounced: "Go west, young man; go west." I went west.

For the interesting particulars that the traveler relates, the reader should send for "The Undeveloped West; or, Five Years in the Territories," being a complete history of that vast region between the Mississippi and the Pacific, its resources, climate, inhabitants, natural curiosities, etc., etc. Life and adventure on prairies, mountains, and the Pacific coast, with two hundred and forty illustrations, from original sketches and photographic views of the scenery, cities, lands, mines, people, and curiosities of the great West. An Arkansas gentleman has divorced himself by the simple process of posting the following notice on several door posts and rails in the vicinity of his dwelling. It is headed "Cast-off Peggs," and reads: "Marion Ark Crittenden County May 31 1873 Notice is hereby given in ten Days Notice, that Peggy Davis no more mine for she is nothing but a Piecebreaker for there is no getting along with her no ways that a man can do and Reather then to be in trouble all the time I part in public that it will be understood by all People." Secretary Richardson is disagreeably faced by a rash promise made some four years ago to Dr Mary Walker, the lady in coat and trousers, that if ever he rose to the then improbable station of Secretary of the Treasury, he would give her an appointment in Alaska. The lady doctor now demands the appointment, and the Secretary is in search of the promised office and the means of sending her to it. His predecessor offered her a place among the lady clerks of the department, if she would abjure her pantalons, but she declined.

A young man in Indiana, Pa., seduced a young lady, under promise of marriage more than two years ago, and left suddenly for the far West, in order to escape the consequences of his villainy. A half brother of the injured lady procured a requisition from Governor Geary, and followed the fellow for two years, finally catching him at Lincoln Nebraska about two weeks ago. He returned with his prisoner last week, and had him put under bail for trial.

A young lady poet, who ought to be repressed, and who evidently wants to be repressed, thus advertises for her young man: "Come in the evening, or come in the morning. Come when you're looked for, or come without warning. Kisses and welcome you'll find here before you, And the oftener your come the more I'll adore you."

ANNOUNCEMENT.

SENATE. Mr. Editors:—As the time is drawing near when the Republicans of this county must select a standard-bearer in the Senatorial contest, we would announce the name of Dr. J. P. STRANBERRY, of Deale township. In a district where the party lines are so closely drawn, we must select our best man—one who, with an incorruptible character and personal popularity, will run the full party vote, and draw from the Democratic ranks.

Dr. STRANBERRY in his late canvass showed that he is the strongest candidate we can get in this county, and there are many circumstances that indicate that if sustained by the Republicans of this county, he will get the nomination in the district.
