We the Chief Mate and passengers wrecked on the Bar of Little Egg Harbour, on the 7th inst. in the ship Saint Francis of the Port of Genoa, from Nantz in France, bound to New York, Nicholas Cutler, Master, who unfortunately drowned; take this opportunity of publicly acknowledging our gratitude to Ebenezer Tucker Esq. Surveyor of the Customs of the Port of Little Egg Harbour, for his humane and laudable exertions in our behalf in endeavoring to secure and recover the effects & estates of the crew, who were plundered by the unprincipled Smuggling men and Inhabitants on the coast; but we have to regret that when we first grounded, Mr. Tucker was absent at Philadelphia on business, or we have every reason to believe we should have saved property from the wreck to a considerable amount.

Witness our hands at the Port of Little Egg Harbour, this 15th day of October 1794.

P. S. Any person who has got any of the cargo of said ship, and will deliver it to the Officers of the Customs of Philadelphia, New York or Egg Harbour, shall have a Salvage according to law.

C. W. PEALE.

EVER solicitous to render his MUSEUM still more and more an object of rational interest and amusement, and subservient to the interests of useful science, has on the suggestion and with the advice of a number of his friends, provided a Book, which will be always open for the inspection of those who visit his Museum, in which book it is proposed to insert all such discoveries, inventions, improvements, schemes, observations, experiments, projects, hints or queries relating to the arts or sciences, as any of his visitors, or correspondents, may from time to time communicate.

Such as may chuse to conceal their names may either send their communications anonymous, or at their desire, C. W. Peale will insert their names, with the signatures of their respective communications in a private book, which he will keep for that purpose.

The advantages of such a public register are obvious. It will rescue from oblivion many useful hints, which might otherwise have died with their authors. It may secure to inventors their just claims; and prevent others from taking the honor or profit of a discovery to which they are not entitled, and as the Museum is now visited by persons from almost all parts of the world, such a register, it is presumed, will soon contain and be the means of disseminating a vast fund of useful knowledge, and promote that spirit of enquiry and invention, for which the people of the United States are already so justly distinguished.

From the French of M. Berquin

Extract from the Preface.

"To the honor of Mr. Berquin's taste, it may be said, that he has united simple elegance with interesting variety, but rigidly separated both from the slightest approach of whatever is vulgar or puerile; a merit much more easily praized than imitated. The art of amusing child en, whilst at the same time the Infant Genus is raised and the Heart engaged, appears from his works to be no contemptible effort of the mind. Wherever, therefore, the utility of such an undertaking is acknowledged, the reputation of Mr. Berquin must ever be held in deserved esteem.

"Happily such is the agreeable versatility of Mr. Berquin's style and genius, that it would be difficult to pronounce in what department he excels; whether in the lively or the pathetic; the simple language of narrative, or the animated points of conversation; whether in shrewd remarks upon private life, or in florid description of the beauties of nature.

"Pieces of every various excellence that is to be found in the writings of Mr. Berquin, compose the following volume, which, it is hoped, will be thought a valuable substitute (where such may be preferred) to the larger and more extensive works of the same author."
