WAS A NOTABLE EVENT

Many Witness the Most Prominent Social Affair of the Season.

THE CONNELL-FULTON WEDDING

Ceremony and Reception, Which Were Attended by Many Prominent People, Described in Detail—Some of the Superb Gowns Worn—Those Who Were Present—Many of the Gifts Mentioned and Particulars of Reception.

Last evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Elm Park Methodist Episcopal church were married Annie Augusta, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Connell, and Charles W. Fulton, of Boulder, Colorado. The ceremony was performed before a vast assemblage of invited guests and spectators which taxed the seating capacity of the edifice to its utmost.

After the marriage had been solemnized by Rev. W. H. Pearce, D. D., a wedding supper was served and a reception held at the family residence on Clay avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Fulton departed on a night train for a tour of several weeks, after which they will return to Scranton for a short visit before leaving for Boulder, Colo., the home of the groom.

After the chimes in the church tower had ceased ringing and following an introductory organ marial recital, occurred the wedding, which was one of the most marked social events of several years. The ceremony had been looked forward to by the best element of the city's social circles as a fitting finale of the season. The popularity of the bride, particularly in his own state, and the prominence of the bridegroom, all tended to add additional interest to the wedding.

The groom is the firm of Fulton Brothers, who conduct a real estate, investment and brokerage business, with offices at Denver, Pueblo and Boulder, Colorado.

ENTRANCE OF BRIDAL PARTY.

Promptly at the hour announced the bridal party entered the church and proceeded down the aisle to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march. Annie McAnulty and Helen Connell, flower girls, were attired in white mulle and each carried a leghorn hat bespiced with roses; following and proceeding the bridesmaids came the ushers, William H. Clark, of Saginaw, Mich.; Dr. Z. M. K. Fulton, of Philadelphia; N. Y. Smith, of New York; J. J. Jermyn, Mark K. Edgar and George M. DeWitt, of Scranton.

The six bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Bentley, Miss Adelaide Dodge and Miss Blanche Wood, of Honesdale; Miss Florence Edgar, of Scranton; Miss Kate Jay, and Miss Maria Charlesworth, of this city. Three were gowned in pink and three in light green crepe; all looked radiantly beautiful and each carried a huge bunch of pink and white roses.

The bride followed, leaning on her father's arm. Her gown was of cream satin, made entrain with high neck and large puffed sleeves; the trimming was of buff lace. A veil of tulle, attached to the sides of the train and was fastened to the collar by a beautiful star cluster of diamonds, the gift of the groom, and a dainty spray of lilies-of-the-valley. She carried a large bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley.

The bride was received from her father at the church by the groom, accompanied by Theodore E. Connell.

AN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY.

During the reading of the ritual and ceremony, "O Promise Me," from Robin Hood was played. The faint strains of the organ, the peculiar beauty and significance of the ritual and the splendor of the edifice, all tended to make the ceremony particularly impressive and beautiful.

Mr. and Mrs. Fulton passed from the church to the Marche de l'Opera Tannhauser.

Mr. Connell's wedding gift to his daughter was a check for a handsome sum.

The groom's present to the bride was a diamond star cluster. As souvenirs he gave the ushers each a scarf pin consisting of a gold wreath surrounded with pearls. The bride's present to each of her attendants was the same article made as a pendant.

The bridal bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and the bouquets carried by the maid-of-honor and bridesmaids were remarkable for their beauty and good taste displayed in arrangement. They were creations of Wardroff, the celebrated New York florist.

The guests were received at the house by the bride and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Connell, Miss Dimmick, of Onondaga, N. Y.; Miss Bentley, Miss Wood and Miss Dodge, of Honesdale; Miss Jay, Miss Edgar and Miss Charlesworth, of Scranton; W. H. Clark, of Saginaw, Mich.; Dr. Z. M. K. Fulton, of Philadelphia; Theodore E. Connell, E. H. Connell, Rollo G. Jermyn, Mark K. Edgar and George DeWitt, of Scranton.

THE HOUSE DECORATIONS.

Nothing was lacking to make the floral decorations at the family residence on Clay avenue a lavish display of the beautiful. For the next two days Clark's assistants had been transforming the house into a fragrant bower of loveliness. Strings of smilax, palms, potted plants in blossom and cut flowers, principally roses in pink and white, formed the main features of the adornment. The bay-window of the reception parlor contained many smilax wreaths strung from central point in the ceiling and dotted with myriads of white roses. A large pier glass was arranged in much the same manner, and in addition, the mantels were backed with large American beauties roses and the base with cut flowers.

The kitchen, by rows of numerous incandescent lights and a bank of potted plants and palms before the range, was transformed into a fairy dining room. Pink shades curtained the lights and the same delicate color was displayed in the table decorations. In this room a large table was arranged and in the family dining-room numerous smaller ones, from which a running supper was served by Caterer Davis, of Quakertown, Pa. It would be impossible to mention the menu in detail; it is sufficient to say it contained most of the season's delicacies.

A bank of palms and plants in the dining room shielded the musicians, eight of whom, furnished by Bauer, discoursed appropriate selections during the evening.

The wedding gifts were arranged in a room on the second floor. Among them were the following: A complete knife, fork and spoon silver dinner set.

SMITH'S LITTLE POINT

He Objected to the Present Style of Drawing Common Pleas Jurors.

HIS OBJECTIONS ARE OVERRULED

Judge McPherson Thought That in the Absence of Any Evidence to the Contrary, Mr. Kasson Must Be Considered a Disinterested Person. Quick Case Given to Jury—Verdict for Mr. Ackerman.

THE JURY DRAWN

Attorney Cornelius Smith in court yesterday challenged the present system of drawing jurors in common pleas court on the technical ground that a strict construction of the law debars a prothonotary or his clerk from drawing jurors as they are not disinterested persons within the meaning of the act, according to the way Mr. Smith construes its language.

Mr. Smith is counsel for Mrs. Estelle Clayton whose action against Hill & Connell was called for trial at 2 o'clock yesterday, Judge Edwards directing that it be tried before Judge McPherson in court room No. 2.

When Deputy Prothonotary Kasson began to call the jurors Mr. Smith said he had a motion to make. Judge Edwards declined to hear it saying the trial judge was the proper person to fore whom to make a motion concerning the case.

BOYS ALMOST SUFFOCATED.

Buried Beneath Weight of Coal in Leggett's Creek Breaker.

Two little boys named Lewis and McMahon, aged 12 and 13 years respectively, had a narrow escape from death in the Leggett's Creek breaker yesterday.

The boys slipped into a chute which contains the prepared coal, where their legs caught and they were unable to release themselves.

The coal poured down upon them and when recovered they were almost suffocated. Their perilous condition was discovered by a workman who saw their legs sticking through the coal.

Doctors Sullivan and O'Brien were summoned and after much difficulty the boys were resuscitated. Artificial respiration had to be resorted to. One of the boys is still in a precarious condition.

TEN ROUND BOUT FOR POINTS.

It Took Place on the West Side Last Night Between George Robinson and Dave Corcoran.

A motley crowd of about 200 men and boys gathered in Bear's hall, West Side last night to witness the boxing tournament given by the Olympic Athletic club.

There were a number of lovers of the many art in the audience, a few "dead game sports" with a sprinkling of tough young men by way of variety.

The latter came to see good action and void the tory "dead slow on de level, see" because the blood did not materialize in very large quantities.

After preliminary bouts between Joseph Robinson and Carter Morris, colored, Sullivan and Ryan and two 13-year-old boys named Fred Martineau and Walter Zink, the main event of the evening, a ten round bout for points between George Robinson, colored, and Dave Corcoran, white, was announced.

Harry Courtwright and Jack Fee headed Corcoran and Harry Le Roy. Charles Jones, the champion for Robinson, who entered the ring at 190 pounds. His opponent was 185. The referee was Edward Walton.

Robinson was in best condition physically but Corcoran proved himself the most active. Robinson was aggressive and Corcoran the diplomat in his manner of avoiding punishment. He constantly played for Robinson's wind and face, several times drawing blood from the colored man's nostrils. The first blood of the fight was drawn by Robinson, however.

The fight lasted thirty minutes and was declared to be a draw by the referee. Robinson was the least fatigued of the two. Neither of the men suffered much punishment.

WEDDED LAST EVENING.

Miss Emma Bradley and Arthur P. Ridgway United for Life.

A very pretty wedding occurred last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey Bradley, 748 Wyoming avenue. The nuptials celebrated were those of their daughter, Miss Emma, who became the wife of Arthur P. Ridgway. The ceremony was performed at 9 o'clock by Rev. W. H. Pearce, pastor of the Elm Park Methodist Episcopal church. The bridesmaids were the Misses Alice Von Storch and Rose Marshall, and Miss Anna Bradley was maid of honor. The groomsmen were Adel Moore and J. A. Ridgway. W. L. Hendall and John Norton acted as ushers.

At 10 o'clock and while the Elm Park church bells were being chimed by request of Dr. Pearce, the couple stood up under a handsome floral bell and were made man and wife, the ceremony being witnessed by a large number of guests. The bride looked exceedingly well and wore herself in a handsome manner during the ceremony. She wore a white silk Henrietta trimmed with moire silk and point de gence.

After the marriage service congratulations followed, and then refreshments were served. The rooms were pleasantly lighted, and the decorations consisting of palms and fine cut flowers, were shown to good advantage. The bride and groom were the recipients of many beautiful presents that were greatly admired by the guests.

Among the out of town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. G. Reynolds of Laplante, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Croxon, of Honesdale.

Mr. and Mrs. Ridgway left for New York on the midnight train. Upon their return to this city they will reside at their home on Adams avenue.
