GRAND ARMY POSTS PRESENT

Those Who Are Members of the Colonel Monies Post Attended Services at Penn Avenue Baptist Church, Ezra Griffin Post Were at the First Presbyterian Church—Both Were Eloquent and Thoughtful Efforts.

Services commemorative of Memorial Day were held last evening in two of the city churches. At the First Presbyterian Rev. James McLeod, D. D., preached to Lieutenant Ezra Griffin post, No. 133, Grand Army of the Republic, and at the Penn Avenue Baptist church Rev. Warren G. Partridge addressed the Colonel Monies post. There were large audiences other than the veterans at both services.

At the Penn Avenue Baptist church nearly every seat in the auditorium was occupied when at 7.30 o'clock the Colonel Monies post was escorted to the church portals by Companies A and B of the Boys' brigade. The veterans first filed in and were followed by the younger organization. This feature of the passing of the old and coming of the new was an impressive part of the programme.

The services included the singing of special hymns such as "Onward Christian Soldiers," "America," etc. Rev. Mr. Partridge's address was from Deuteronomy xxiv, 6: "No man knoweth of his sepulchre until this day." From the leading of the slaves out of bondage by Moses, was drawn the thought that according to God an evil and a nation's wrongs are not comparable. The address was as follows:

This text refers to Moses as a valiant soldier and a consummate general. He led a horde of slaves from the fetters of Egyptian bondage to the frontiers of their new free and magnificent country of Canaan. From these slaves he equipped and disciplined an irresistible army of 600,000 heroic soldiers and led them successfully for forty years through the wilderness and founded a free and powerful nationality.

This general endured the shock of battle, the mutiny of his soldiers, the hardships of long marches in a hot and hostile country, and at last came through this baptism of blood, vanquished every foe and stands in the forefront of history as the greatest military of ancient times.

"Thousands of these brave soldiers found their graves in a strange country, and no monument commemorates their heroic deeds nor perpetuates their memory. The winds of the desert for four thousand years have mourned a requiem over their graves and they will sleep in unknown graves until the resurrection morn."

On Memorial Day our own nation decks with flowers the graves of those who fell in our own civil war to preserve the Union. What a vast number of these graves are marked "unknown." Of this class of slain veterans it can be said as truly as it was of Moses, "No man knoweth of his sepulchre until this day."

BITTER FRUITS OF REBELLION.
There are in our country as the bitter fruit of rebellion, seventy-nine national cemeteries; of these all, except two, contain only a few hundred interments, contain unknown graves. These seventy-nine cemeteries are found in Alabama, Arkansas, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Indian Territory, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, West Virginia—twenty-four states, one territory and the District of Columbia. The whole number of soldiers who are buried in our national cemeteries is 315,170. Of this vast number 146,876 are marked "unknown."

To that multitude of regiments and companies they must have belonged and in what a multitude of hospitals, marches and battles they must have fallen. Imagine these graves "unknown" rising to life, in their uniforms of blue, each seizing a musket.

Here would be a vast army of 146,000 valiant men who were our brothers. They were the flower of our Anglo-Saxon race. Most of them were in the prime of life. Thousands of them were young men and many of them were only boys.

We think not today of the enemy; we think not of partisan strife or of factional animosities. We think only of the nation's dead and the great lessons of their lives.

We see in these soldier's graves the sublime lesson of self-sacrifice. It is comparatively easy to give your time, money, or your labor to a great cause; but to give your life is the most difficult self-sacrifice in all the world. "Greater love hath no more than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." Thousands of soldiers gave their lives, thousands like some of these veterans before me tonight gave a limb, their health and years of the best life of their country. In their crippled fortunes, in the rattling crutch, the empty sleeves we see what these noble men were willing to sacrifice, inspired by the noblest patriotism.

political atmosphere. The nation had for a generation been tottering on the brink of civil war. The heroic efforts of Webster during his whole public career were consecrated to the task of averting civil war. Henry Clay, the compromiser, by his eloquence and statesmanship postponed the civil war by almost a generation. But war was inevitable; was the Goliath of American civilization. The war clouds burst in terrible fury, and for four years our country was bled to death. The bitterness and hatred of the anti-bellum days are dying out; the North and the South are clasping hands in Christian forgiveness and brotherhood, and every year peace and unity are cementing the bonds that clasp the sister states in one permanent and indivisible republic.

DEBT CAN NEVER BE REPAYED.
To these veterans before us, to their living comrades all over the land, to their slain comrades this nation owes a debt of gratitude it can never pay.

As we gather on Memorial day to strew their graves with flowers let us remember that we owe to their memory the gratitude of loving and loyal hearts, and that we can in no better way emulate their patriotism than in living nobly for the country for which they died. Let us look up through our tears for these fallen heroes with a prayer to Almighty God to protect our united and peaceful country.

"Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain who build it."
AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.
Veterans Embarked by the Sermon of Dr. McLeod.
A large number of the members of Lieutenant Ezra S. Griffin post, at the First Presbyterian church listened to the special sermon delivered by Rev. Dr. McLeod. There was a magnificent audience present, the grand auditorium being crowded to its fullest capacity. The musical part of the programme was under the direction of Talia Morgan. The choir numbered over forty voices and sang, among other selections, "Praise Ye the Father" by Gould. The reading of the pastor and responsive chant singing by the choir was a new feature of the service of the church, but was greatly appreciated.

Miss Annette Reynolds sang in her usual artistic manner, "Thy Loving Kindness," and after the last hymn a male quartette, consisting of John Lewis, Talia Morgan, Heister James and E. R. Griffin, sang without accompaniment and with touching effect, "Let the Dead and the Beautiful Rest." Rev. N. F. Stahl, chaplain of Ezra S. Griffin post, occupied a seat on the platform and offered an earnest and eloquent prayer.

The sermon by Rev. Dr. McLeod was a powerful discourse, replete with patriotism and sound Christian doctrine, and at times so stirred the enthusiasm of the old veterans that they could scarce refrain from giving vent to outbursts of applause. His remarks were based on psalm cxlvi: 20: "He hath not dealt so with any other nation."

Dr. McLeod said the words of the text were spoken more than 3,000 years ago and had direct application to the Jewish nation. At that time, nor 1,000 years later, and in some respects not even up to the present time, had the Lord dealt with any other nation as with that people. He spoke of their survival of misfortunes of war and captivity, for they were a feeble folk, as something wonderful, attributing it to the fact that God was with them. He had a purpose to serve with this people for of old he said to come Christ, the Redeemer of Mankind.

GOD HAS BEEN GOOD TO US.
But the text, the speaker said, was also applicable to this nation. For when we think what we were and what we now are, we can truly say, "God hath not dealt so with any other nation." Then after extending a cordial welcome on behalf of himself, the officers and congregation of the church to the war veterans present, Dr. McLeod briefly referred to the past of our country. He would not approve, he said, of all the puritans did, but they are to be judged by the times in which they lived. Nevertheless he paid them a glowing compliment. It was their sons, and congregation, who correlated the doctrine that all men are created free and equal; their sons who signed the Declaration of Independence.

In tracing the providences of God in the founding of the republic Dr. McLeod declared that it would be just as true to say that God had no hand in shaping the Jewish theocracy as to say that he had no hand in shaping this American government. It was no accident, he asserted, that the pilgrims came to these shores; no accident that led to the founding of the colonies; no accident that they rebelled; no accident that the government was a republic instead of a monarchy; no accident that raised up such men as Webster, Clay, Lincoln, Grant; no accident shattered the manacles of slavery from the limbs of a race and forever wiped out the foulest blot on our national escutcheon. It was not bravery and valor alone that saved the nation—the hand of God was in it all.

Although he had stated facts that should not be forgotten yet, proclaimed Dr. McLeod, there are among us those who seem to look elsewhere than to a divine source for the stones out of which this fabric of government was built. They do not see the hand of God in it, and have no respect for His laws. The sanctity of the Sabbath is ignored, wholesome laws are set at naught, and yet despite all this, "God hath not dealt so with any other nation." The wonderful resources and possibilities of our country were next dealt upon. But how to preserve the goodly heritage preserved by soldierly valor is a problem. There must be unity, concord, intelligence, education. Whether right or wrong we have universal suffrage. Seventy-five per cent of the colored voters cannot read, while the same is true of a large percentage of the ignorant and vicious that come to us from foreign shores.

THE MODERN SAMPSON.
A blind Sampson in our midst who may raise his hand and shake the pillars of our commonwealth and shatter it. This blind Sampson is the uneducated masses with ballots in their hands.

Dr. McLeod's remarks on this subject were eloquent and earnest, the tremor and created a deep impression as did the entire balance of the sermon. He closed with an appeal to the old veterans to seek the heavenly crown as their final reward.

WILL FIGHT TO THE END

Druggists Defy Rev. Mr. Dony and His Agents.
THEY KEPT THEIR PLACES OPEN
Will Be Arrested Again for Violating the Law, So Mr. Dony Said Last Evening—He Is Prepared to Carry the Fight Out on the Present Lines if It Takes All Summer—Says There Has Been a Vast and Favorable Change.

The present indications are that the Sabbath observance war is going to wax considerably hotter than it has yet been. The druggists in the central part of the city are still firm in their determination not to yield to the new order of things which the Sunday observing people are seeking to establish, and yesterday kept their places of business open as usual. Soda water was sold to the thirty in large quantities, for the day was warm and there were many parched throats. Even the smoker was not forbidden the luxury of his Havana, for cigars were sold as freely as was the popular summer beverage.

Mr. Dony's agents were abroad however, and noted these violations of the law, taking down the names of persons who might be wanted as witnesses, and it is safe to say that complaints will be lodged before an alderman either today or tomorrow. The druggists expect it, but say that they are not to be deterred from supplying the wants of the people by any action that may be taken. Those who complained of themselves before Alderman Fitzsimmons last Monday, by paying the usual fine, and were afterwards held liable to a second fine by the decision of Alderman Post, state that they will appeal to the courts on writs of certiorari, alleging that the alderman erred in not taking judicial notice of the fact that there had been a prior conviction in their cases. The point raised is a mooted one and the decision of the judges will be awaited with considerable interest.

WHAT DR. DONY SAYS.
The sermon by Rev. Mr. Dony said last night that the Sunday closing movement is receiving more opposition from the druggists than any other class of offenders.

"Over 75 per cent of the druggists," he said, "are with us for Sabbath observance. The remainder who oppose the movement are mostly located in the central city. It matters not what course they follow in trying to balk us, we're in the fight to the bitter end and shall make them pay fines until success is assured. However, there may be an arrangement made this week whereby they will be content to cease secular business on the Lord's Day."

Regarding the present status of Sunday observance Mr. Dony was of the opinion that there has been a vast change for the better which is apparent to any who who will take the trouble to observe the matter.

"The usual arrests will be made this week, he said.

When asked what bearing the business men's meeting with the executive committee of the Pastors' union at the Young Men's Christian association would have on the policy of the movement, he said he could not state.

"THE FACE OF ROSENEL"
DEATH OF MRS. TUNSTALL.
She Had Been in Poor Health for Some Time.
Mrs. Margaret Tunstall, wife of John Tunstall, died Saturday in her seventy-first year. Although she had been in poor health for some time, her death was unexpected.

William C. Tunstall, son of the deceased and proprietor of the Providence Register, was married only last Wednesday to Miss Mame Hughes, of Pennsylvania. A telegram was sent to him at Boston telling him his mother was dangerously ill and requesting his immediate return.

IT IS A SPLENDID COMPANY.
Mrs. John Drew Given Excellent Support in The Rivals.
Coming to virtually close the season with a splendid presentation of "The Rivals," Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, with Mrs. John Drew and a strong company supporting, will certainly be greeted by a larger house tomorrow evening at the Academy of Music.

Of 70 odd years of age Mrs. John Drew is such a Mrs. Malaprop as it will take more than another seventy-five years to bring forth. The art he meting to its naturalness, and that is its attraction.

Equally as finished, as elegant and as perfect is the work of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew. The former as Bob Acres is oddly attractive and eccentrically amusing, and the latter as Lydia Languish is all that can be desired.

The pleasing characters of the play, Sir Lucius O'Trigger, is delightfully portrayed by Charles Vernon.

The entire company is beyond any but hypercritical criticism.

DEATH OF MRS. NICHOLAS FAHNER.
She Had Reached the Advanced Age of Eighty Years.
Mrs. Nicholas Fahner, of 1148 Court street, died Friday at the advanced age of 80 years. Deceased was an old, respected resident of Park place, having lived here for a long time.

BURGLARS AT PINE BROOK.

Attempted to Enter House of James Touher in Green's Place.
At an early hour Sunday morning burglars attempted to force an entrance into the house of James Touher in Green's place, Pine Brook.

Mrs. Touher heard the noise made by the intruders and succeeded in putting them to flight before they secured anything.

CELEBRATED FIRST MASSES.
Rev. P. J. McHale and Rev. Michael T. Shields Begin Duties of Their Holy Calling.
Rev. P. J. McHale, of Providence, ordained on May 19 at Niagara Theological seminary by Bishop Ryan, of Buffalo, celebrated his first mass yesterday at 10.30 in the Church of the Holy Rosary in Providence. Rev. N. J. McHanna was deacon of the mass, Rev. John O'Toole, sub-deacon, and Rev. W. P. O'Donnell, master of ceremonies.

The choir of the Holy Rosary church sang the mass in magnificent manner, and the beautiful edifice was taxed to its fullest capacity by the congregation and many home and out-of-town friends of Father McHale.

Father O'Donnell preached the sermon, taking as his text: "For every high priest taken from among men is ordained for men in the things that appertain to God that he may offer up gifts and sacrifices for sins." St. Paul, Hebrews, 8th chapter, 1st verse.

It was a brilliant and scholarly treatment of the text and a fitting climax to the services in honor of the beginning of Father McHale's priestly life. After the mass those present who would be unable to attend the solemn vesper at 8.30 in the afternoon were given his blessing by the newly ordained clergyman.

The vespers were sung by Father McHale. Rev. W. P. O'Donnell was deacon and Rev. John J. O'Toole sub-deacon. At the conclusion, all in the church approached the sanctuary rail and received the young priest's blessing.

Father McHale was born in Hawley and when very young his parents moved to Providence, where he spent his boyhood and attended the public schools. His classical education was acquired at St. Vincent's college, in Westmoreland county. Then he entered the seminary of Our Lady of Angels at Niagara Falls, completing his philosophical and theological course.

Next Friday he will leave for Trenton and be assigned to a charge in that diocese.

At 10.30 yesterday in St. Patrick's church, on Jackson street, Rev. Michael T. Shields, who was ordained on May 19, with Rev. P. J. McHale, celebrated a solemn high mass, assisted by Rev. J. B. Whelan, the pastor, as deacon, and Rev. Daniel J. Dunn as sub-deacon. Rev. F. P. McNally was master of ceremonies.

A large congregation was present at the mass. The sermon was preached by Rev. Father Whelan, on "The Dignity of the Priesthood."

After the ceremony Father Shields blessed the members of the congregation. He is a young man of splendid physique and magnetic bearing. He was born on the West Side and received his fundamental education in the public schools of this city. In 1885 he entered St. Lawrence college at Montreal, where he spent a year, then going to St. Michael's college at Toronto, where he finished his classical course.

His philosophical and theological studies were begun and ended Our Lady of Angels' seminary. He was adopted by the late Bishop O'Farrell, of Trenton, in whose diocese he will labor, leaving to assume his charge next Friday.

A reception was held at his home, 909 Scranton street, Saturday afternoon, which was attended by Father O'Toole, of Providence; Golden, of the cathedral, and McCabe, of Avoca, besides a large number of his friends.

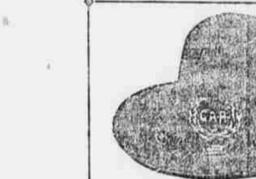

The best wishes for every possible success in their sacred calling go with both clergymen.
