SERMON BY MR. PARRY

Delivered in the First Baptist Church on South Main Avenue.

HIS DISCOURSE WAS IN WELSH

Listened to with Absorbing Attention by a Large Congregation—The Text Dealt with in a Logical, Convincing Manner—Rev. Mr. Parry's Evening Sermon Was Delivered in English—Beautiful Hymns Rendered.

The First Welsh Baptist church, South Main avenue, although large and commodious, was crowded yesterday morning upon the occasion of the visit of the Rev. Abel J. Parry from Wales. The services were in Welsh, the hymns having the peculiar sweetness of rhythm which can only be found in the original form of language in which they were written.

The other hymn, "Ni Thro' by Wynob Eto'n o'i" is well known to all and can be recited by almost every church-going child in Wales. The singing was characterized by the hearty manner essential to the sons and daughters of Wales.

The venerable divine in taking his text selected the first and second verses in the second chapter of the epistle of St. Peter: "Wherefore laying aside all malice and all guile and hypocrisies and envies and all evil speakings, as new born babes desire the sincere milk of the word that may grow thereby." In discoursing upon this text in Welsh he commanded the absorbing attention of his large audience with his sermon, of which we give a synopsis.

He explained that in entering a house where we saw a group of children playing on the hearth we would be long to observe that the youngest and weakest of the group would be the central figure. Every action of his would be noticed, every move watched, and every care shown. His smile would cause pleasure all around, and soon we would say, "Here is the King of the Hearth."

The little one, therefore, was a most important factor in the family, and connected with him was the important question of the development of his strength, his physical, mental and moral growth. Supposing the little babes did not grow, what would become of the world? And this, said the preacher, is the burden of my text, "The growth of the babe;" but this is a spiritual babe, a babe in Christ, in whom the new life has just begun.

Every man knows that there are three things absolutely essential to the growth of the babe—1, food; 2, appetite; 3, health. There are things which the text tells us are necessary to the growth of the spiritual babe and here is the food. The sincere milk of the word and the "appetite" which is the basis of the "health" which is the basis of the "appetite" being a spiritual life laying aside all malice, guile and hypocrisy and clearing the constitution of all these moral diseases there will be found a condition of health and the spiritual appetite.

The food the preacher remarked was the sincere milk of the word and there were three matters connected with it. Take "word," the "word" is described as milk and the milk is said to be "sincere," the food is "the word," then the question comes whose "word" constitutes the spiritual food.

We need not go far to find the source of this word. In the last verse of the preceding chapter we have the expression, "The word of the Lord endureth forever, and this is the word which by the Gospel is preached unto you," and as new born babes, therefore, desire "this word," the word which by the Gospel has been preached unto you, is none other than the word of the Lord which endureth forever.

Here then we have this word of Christ declared to be a divine word, and in fact here is that which is declared to be a "seed." "The seed of the new life." Hence the same word which gave the life becomes the means of its nourishment, and if we went back another verse we find the same word described by another term, "seeing ye have partaken of the word of the Lord." This same word, then, is the word of the gospel, which gospel is the word of God, "the truth;" then the spiritual life must be fed with the truth. Then again we are told that the word is "milk," that is, there are truths in the gospel suited to babes and we are especially directed to this milk as being the genuine article.

It is sincere because it is truth. The reverend divine then proceeded to deal with the term in the following manner: that this was the food within the spiritual sphere and not material, but which suited the mind or the intellect or, said he, "it is one of the eternal realities" and everything else is but a mere shadow. Hence we note that it is declared of it that "the word of the Lord endureth forever" it is food which never deteriorates.

Leaving then the first part we come to the appetite. We have observed what is suggested as spiritual appetite. There must be craving for this milk it is a sure indication that there is something wrong with its little system. If men lack this instinctive craving for divine things it proves the existence in their spiritual elements of something morally wrong. There must be no malice or guile or hypocrisy or envy or evil speaking which mars the spiritual palate.

REMNANTS OF THE OLD MAN.

"These elements of moral disease are the remnants of the old man; they are the things which appear in the young babe? How inconsistent it would be for a child of a few months old to display the habits and manners of an old man of sixty, endeavoring to practise an old man's vices and to wear an old man's raiment. It is infinitely more inconsistent to see in Christians the habits and ways and manners of the old man which was crucified. The things of the old man must be laid aside from the life of the young Christian before there can be this wholesome craving for the sweet enjoyment of spiritual things of the divine word. Those who obey the truth shall thrive, they shall flourish from such things as malice, guile, hypocrisies, and envies and those who read God's word should not lend their tongues to evil repeating. He then addressed an eloquent peroration, chiefly for the younger members of his audience, in which he said that the object of this was to secure growth so that they may grow thereby. The text spoke of babes. Every true Christian passes through the babe's stage, but he must grow out of it, for Christ needs men and women in His church and to work His will in the world. "Quit ye like men" is an exhortation emphasized in the case of the Corinthians, and should be emphasized in the case of every believer.

The evening services were conducted in the English language, when Mr. Parry preached again to a very large congregation.

RECEPTION TO REV. MR. PARRY.

It Was Held at First Baptist Church Saturday Night. Rev. Abel J. Parry, of Wales, a distinguished minister of the Baptist denomination, was tendered a reception by a number of his countrymen in this city, at the First Welsh Baptist church on the West Side Saturday evening. The meeting was held at 8 1/2 o'clock by Rev. W. S. Jones, who introduced Mr. Parry in a handsome and complimentary manner.

Thomas D. Davies, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, then delivered the address of welcome, speaking in the Welsh language, after which Morris Thomas sang a solo, accompanied by Professor Prothro, of the organ. Other speakers were Rev. W. E. Davis, of Providence, and Rev. Hugh Davies, pastor of the Welsh Christian church, of the West Side. John W. Jones, of Bellevue, next sang "The Hero," Professor Prothro's production. The accompaniment was by Mrs. D. B. Thomas.

Rev. David Jones, of the First Welsh Congregational church, extended welcome in behalf of the denomination and was followed by Rev. D. P. Jones, of the Tabernacle Congregational church, who concluded his remarks by reading a poem dedicated to Mr. Parry. Professor Prothro, accompanied by Mrs. D. B. Thomas, sang a solo and recited a hearty prayer.

Rev. Dr. Harris, of the Baptist church at Taylor, spoke in English, welcoming the visitor from across the sea in behalf of the Taylor congregation. Among other speakers were Rev. T. J. Morris, of Bellevue, Rev. William Jones, of Pontypridd, Wales, and T. J. Jones, of the Welsh Baptist church, of the West Side. Mr. Parry appropriately responded to the many words of welcome spoken in his behalf. Edwin Brown, of Bellevue, an exceptionally fine bass soloist, was also one of the singers.

This is the first visit Mr. Parry has made to the United States, but it is not likely that he will soon forget the kind reception extended to him by the prominent Welshmen of Scranton. As a pulpit orator Mr. Parry ranks high and is always heard with delight by his countrymen.

CONFERENCE RECEPTION.

Proceedings in Honor of the Visit of A. J. Parry.

All the pastors of the Welsh Baptist Association of Pennsylvania will meet in a conference tomorrow at 3 p. m. in the First Welsh Baptist church, South Meade street, Wilkes-Barre, and at 7:30 p. m. a reception will be given to Rev. Hughes of Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal company, of Scranton, has promised to be present.

Mr. Parry is considered a man of the nation and is admired by all denominations in Wales. The Welsh people of America feel proud of him and consider it an honor to give him a good hearty reception.—Wilkes-Barre Record.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

Jacob Lutz Fell 25 Feet But Was Still Able to Walk Home. Jacob Lutz, of Cedar avenue, employed as a painter at the car shops of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, fell from the roof of the paint shop Saturday afternoon, escaping with injuries which may be considered slight, although he was not do any work for at least a month.

When the accident befell him he was patting in a skylight in the roof of the shop. The rain made the tarred surface of the roof slippery, and in shifting about he lost his balance and rolled headlong to the ground beneath. In his descent he struck several beams, but which had the effect of landing him fully ten feet from the side of the shop.

If he had fallen straight from the eaves it is probable that he would have sustained fatal injuries, as he would have landed on a number of car wheels and car trucks.
