IN LOCAL THEATERS.
Our theater-goers have a rare treat in store in the promised appearance of Fanny Rice in a new comedy at the Academy of Music this evening. Miss Rice has always been well received here and her performances have given universal satisfaction. Tonight she will introduce to her many admirers a character entirely dissimilar to any in which she has heretofore been seen. The dainty subretrie has for several seasons been identified with comedy opera and farce-comedy, but in her new play, "Miss Innocence Abroad," she has, it is claimed, outdone all her former efforts.

In the forthcoming presentation of that paragon of spectacles, the "Black Crook," the most beautiful effects are highly colored. The ballets are very entrancing, and the large number of corymbes employed, clad in the most beautiful of dazzling costumes, makes it a veritable marvel-gras transferred to the stage. The massive scenic effects are surely trophies of the artists brush. The European specialties are worthy of especial note. The acrobatic feats and the dancers are among the most prominent of foreign importations. "The Black Crook" will be seen here Friday and Saturday matinee for seasons been identified with comedy opera and farce-comedy, but in her new play, "Miss Innocence Abroad," she has, it is claimed, outdone all her former efforts.

The following attractions are booked for the Frothingham: Nov. 3, "Innocent"; "War and Peace," afternoon and evening; Nov. 5 and 6, Joe Murphy, "Sham Rhuo" and "Kerry Goo"; Nov. 7, Mrs. Langtry in "Society Butterfly"; Nov. 8, Herbert Cawthorn in "A Cork Man"; Nov. 9 and 10, American players in "Monte Christo," "La Belle Russe" and "Oliver Twist."

Her team has been trained this year by Will Young, of Williamsport, Pa., and ever since they dominated the foot ball attire this season they have played with a snap before unknown to them. Bucknell, of Lancaster, Pa., on Saturday, Oct. 20, by a score of 42 to 0, during forty-five minutes of play. Also Wyoming defeated her by a score of 35 to 0.
