MEROLA IS IN ITALY.

County Commissioners Have Been So Informed by Detective Barring, Who Has Investigated the Matter.
Information was received yesterday by the county commissioners that Crescenzo Merola, the murderer of Emanuel Loro, of Old Forge, had been located at his old home in Southern Italy. The news arrived from the United States consul at Italy through Detective Barring's agency, but no detailed accounts have been disclosed as to the locality in southern Italy in which Merola is now held.
The murder was one of the most brutal on record. On Sunday, June 17, the deceased, Emanuel Loro, an Italian barber, requested payment of 15 cents from Merola, in discharge of a debt, when the murderer without any provocation or cause, fired a revolver at Loro, who begged that his life should be spared, when four more shots were fired into his head and the victim walked unconcernedly away. Although a large crowd of their countrymen were assembled, no effort was made by them to hinder him in his escape.
Sheriff Fahey and Detective Shea made every effort to track the murderer, and later the county commissioners offered a reward of $500 for his arrest.
The international treaty between the United States and Italy does not provide for extradition in cases similar to the present, so that it will be necessary to forward certified copies of the evidence to Italy, where Merola will be tried and punished, if found guilty of the crime.

GROVER IS A FINE FELLOW

So Orators Singlerly and Wright Told the Audience at the Army.

WILSON BILL IS A GOOD THING

Speakers Tell How Business Has Been Reviving Since It Was Passed—The Meeting Was Preceded by a Parade of the Democratic Clubs.

The climax of the Democratic campaign to which the managers have been working up for some time took place last night. A parade followed by a rally at the army, by Adams avenue, were the features. Addresses were delivered by William M. Singlerly, candidate for governor, and Robert E. Wright, of Allentown. Governor Robert E. Pattison was advertised to be one of the speakers, but remained at Allentown and addressed a meeting at that place last night. Members of the Singlerly party also addressed meetings at Hazleton, Stroudsburg and Bangor last night.
Mr. Singlerly arrived in this city at 6:20 p. m. from Wilkes-Barre. He journeyed over the Delaware and Hudson railroad and was accompanied by the following: Mrs. Singlerly, his daughter and granddaughter, W. W. Greenland, candidate for secretary of internal affairs, Clarion; Robert E. Wright, Allentown; William Rodenamel, Hazleton; John Stein, Philadelphia; W. W. Moore, Pottsville, and representatives of the Philadelphia newspapers.

Reception of the Visitors.

When the train containing the visitors rolled into the station there was a large delegation of the prominent Democrats of the county and a band on hand to receive them. A procession was formed and the visitors escorted to the Wyoming amid the blazing of red fire and shooting of rockets. After supper a parade took place in which the Democratic clubs of the city, Archbald and Carbondale participated. The paraders carried Chinese lanterns and transparencies on which various mottoes were inscribed.
The parade was a large one but was so long getting in motion that the visitors did not participate in it. They were escorted to the army and began the parade while the marchers were still parading the streets. There was a large attendance at the army and many also congregated outside the building. It was 9 o'clock when ex-Congressman Lemuel Amerman, who acted as presiding officer, arose and after a few introductory remarks introduced William M. Singlerly as a citizen, warmhearted and honest. He also referred to him as the "next governor of Pennsylvania," whereas Mr. Singlerly smiled.
Mr. Singlerly's Address.
Mr. Singlerly was given a generous reception as he stepped to the front of the platform and said he was much pleased and gratified with the ovation. Continuing, he said:
"We have started on the trail of a calamity howl and we have followed our Democratic friends, who not for political designs probably, but for political effect, have shut their eyes to—(interruption)—after silence was restored he proceeded to say to you, gentlemen of Scranton, that through Pennsylvania I started last Monday week, through the blunders of our region and at Johnsonburg they have full orders which are unable to fulfill and, notwithstanding, a short month, 300 cars of coal were shipped, being the largest in the history of Johnsonburg. I am not here to make misstatements or draw wrong inferences, but to speak certain economic truths, which have been exemplified every day and every hour in mining districts, proving my faith. During the past two weeks in my campaign I have found but a single industry dead, and that was in the Lehigh iron region, and that because the furnace owners, instead of looking to the business side of business, have been in politics and through the blind goddess of protection. Furnaces have been started up, which have been closed for years, and you have nothing, my friends, to be ashamed of in this administration."
President's First Speech.
The first act of the president was to repeal the force bill, which perpetuated the power of the Republican party in certain parts of the states, by the point of the bayonet instead of by the ballot box. Men of Lackawanna, stand by us with all your might and strength, so as to purge the corrupt assessors' list and help to swell the Democratic majority. The next great act of this administration was the repeal of the Sherman law which was passed for the purpose of supporting a few poor barbers in the western states.
The repeal of the McKinley bill and passing of the Wilson bill was the first real stride of this country in thirty years in reduction of taxation and return of prosperity. After the campaign of 1888, the best of the country was carried and never in the history of the United States had there been such distress, lockouts and strikes as there have been since the passage of that bill. The Wilson bill had been called the work of a mountain school-teacher, the sophistries of a booby and the vagaries of a scholar, but if such sophistries or vagaries can re-create industries, we want more mountain school-keepers over all this country. There is this part to the Wilson bill. The iron ore should have been on the free list. Pennsylvania today makes one-half of the pig iron made in the United States, but produces only one-fifth of the iron ore.
Preaching Democratic Principles.
I am here preaching the Democratic principles as we believe it to be understood, we believe in equal rights to all and favors to none. We have been told that the Democrats were dishonest and the party was disorganized, demoralized and disheartened, but my answer is, I never saw such a party as this.
Philadelphia and Pittsburg are the most corrupted cities in the whole of the United States, and I say tonight that outside these cities the Democratic party will record a majority and I ask you in this part to stand by the iron ore and majorities of Pittsburg and Philadelphia.

THE BOY WAS KIDNAPPED.

Dastardly Political Plot to Bereave a Father in Order to Force Him from an Important Diplomatic Post—Clue Obtained in This City.
A boy of noble birth who was kidnapped nearly two years ago in South America is supposed to have been brought by his abductors to this city.
The Argentine consul in Philadelphia and the consul general in New York instigated a search for the boy in Scranton early in October, and although Italian and French detectives and the police department have been at work on the case, but little success has attended the efforts. There is evidence, however, that the kidnapers were in this city with the lad but left for parts unknown. Altogether the story reveals a real life drama of intrigue and crime which is unusual and full of interest. For obvious reasons the names of some of the people concerned are withheld.
During the winter of 1892-3 while the Southern and Central republics and empires of South America were in throes of excitement and uncertainty consequent upon revolution and incident war in many sections of the continent, an Argentine of fame and high repute was because of his diplomatic post and return to the republic of Argentina, but their identity was made impossible from the fact of the many political knife thrusts and machinations peculiar to that turbulent period.
The abduction occurred in January, 1893, and during the last few months the Argentine consuls in all parts of the world have employed detectives and used every possible endeavor to locate the boy and his kidnappers, Sacher, the Frenchman, and the Italian woman, Canate. Carlos Rohl, the consul general of the Argentine Republic in New York city, and Edward Shippen, the Argentine consul in Philadelphia, worked together in the matter and through detectives obtained information that the boy and the pair who stole him were in Scranton.
Scranton police department by Scranton police force department by the New York and Philadelphia consuls, who said the kidnappers were in Philadelphia, and that they were working together in the matter and through detectives obtained information that the boy and the pair who stole him were in Scranton.

At times I suffered terrible pain, and, although I tried many remedies, I never obtained any permanent relief until I procured Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. The action of this remedy was wonderfully quick, and, although I have only taken a small quantity, I consider myself permanently cured."
Munyon's Rheumatism Cure is guaranteed to cure rheumatism in any part of the body. Acute or muscular rheumatism cured in from one to five days. MEETING OF HAPPY OMEN

Large and Enthusiastic Republican Rally at Carbondale Last Night. SHOWED WHAT WILL COME NOV 6

Major Everett Warren and Attorney George M. Watson, of Scranton, the Principal Speakers—Many Persons Unable to Gain Admittance.

One of the most enthusiastic and gratifying meetings of the present political campaign was that held last evening in Carbondale under the auspices of the Lackawanna Republican club. The gathering made its own success without any aid from the temporary glow of skyrockets, the noise of brass bands or shallow and loud oratory; it was a meeting of thoughtful laboring men and merchants and a sufficient number of Democrats to indicate that the current issue is one of thought and not strictly politics.
Every seat in Odd Fellows' hall on Salem avenue was occupied when the meeting was opened at 8:15 o'clock, and an equally large number were standing about the rear wall, the hall and in the doorway. It was estimated that the number of persons unable to secure even standing room represented fully half as many as the number within the hall. The principle speakers were Major Everett Warren, president of the State League of Republican clubs, and Attorney George M. Watson, both of Scranton, but before adjournment was made lusty calls were made for John H. Thomas, candidate for clerk of the courts; R. W. Archbald, candidate for judge, and Charles P. O'Malley, candidate for the legislature from the Fourth district.
Mayor E. E. Hendricks, Attorney John F. Reynolds and J. E. Burr composed the committee which met the 8 o'clock train from Scranton and escorted the speakers to the hall, where the meeting was presided over by D. W. Humphrey.
A Representative Gathering.
Among those on the stage and in the audience were: Ex-Mayor Rettew, J. W. Dimock, A. W. Daley, Dr. F. E. Jenkins, S. A. Dilts, J. B. Shannon, William Shannon, William Lathrop, G. Patterson, C. A. Keese, J. Bone, F. J. Simmon, Robert Maxwell, S. R. Moon, G. Nicholson, Reese Hughes, R. A. Jadin, George E. Mills, H. G. Baker, Edmund Jones, Joseph Robinson, J. Van Dermark, Will Isgar, A. L. Patterson, Dermot Robbins, S. Courtwright, T. B. Vannan, Joseph Vannan, George Hudson.
Attorney Watson was introduced as the first speaker of the evening. In a very concise and logical way he referred to the political history of the United States from the first congress of 1789 to the present day. He argued that those previous during which the country had been blessed with thrift, growth, prosperity and great happiness were during years of Republican government and principles of protection.
With the lesson of years behind it, the Democratic party at its last national convention in Chicago declared in the platform that protective principles and reciprocity were unconstitutional. They thus stated their belief in Cleveland and Henry Watrous, rather than in James Madison and the supreme court of the United States, which declared the constitutionality of protecting the interests of our own country rather than those of another.
The speaker concluded by remarking upon the trend of immigration toward the United States, its resources and other evidences of its having been the richest and best government on the globe, and emphasized that the only way to undo the wrong of the past two years and give the nation the position to which it is entitled is by electing Republican officers, nationally and locally.
Campaign of Ideas.
Major Warren gave particular attention to the fact that present politics is not a scramble for position, but is a warfare of ideas. He said in part: "We are on the skirmish line of the great battle which is to be fought in 1896. Maine and Vermont have already spoken in repudiating terms which admit of no question and now the inquiry is, What will Pennsylvania do? We do not doubt what the answer will be, but we want her voice to ring through-

MAJOR EVERETT WARREN.

BIG HOLE IN LEE CLOT.

A Cave in the Mine Workings Below Has Affected the Surface—But Little Done to Buildings.
A cave which may assume serious proportions in one of the most densely populated sections of the city has occurred on Lee clot, between Adams and Washington avenues and Vine and Olive streets.
The earth has already fallen to a depth of sixteen feet in the passage way between the two frame dwellings, 514 and 516 Lee clot. The surface area of the hole is about six feet square and the fall carried away a portion of the foundation wall of No. 516, and shows a yawning hole in the cellar. In the cellar of No. 518, the adjoining northerly house, a fissure of several inches in width has appeared.
The cave-in happened at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning and the 16-foot hole between Nos. 514 and 516 has gradually grown larger since that hour. The houses have not been tipped from an upright position, but this may happen if the hole continues to grow larger.
All of yesterday numerous sightseers thronged about the vicinity. The occupants of the house are somewhat alarmed, but have not moved out. Preparations were being made yesterday by the property owners to flush the hole with culm and dirt. The houses affected overlook the new high school lot, at the corner of Vine street and Washington avenue. In fact, the disturbed area borders the high school lot on the east.
Less than two months ago was completed the work of finishing the workings of the Pine Brook shaft, which extended beneath the high school lot. Previously and during the flushing operations, that particular section contained several cracks and fissures, but it was hoped that the engineering operations would make the surface secure. The cracks at that time so disturbed the houses in the vicinity that it was necessary to repair the walls and to adjust doors and windows so they could be opened and closed.
FIRM FOR PROHIBITION.
Position of Scranton Methodist Preachers on the Political Question.
A meeting of the Prohibition Preachers' league was held yesterday morning and afternoon in the hall at 402 Lackawanna avenue. The political phase of the temperance cause was discussed, resolutions adopted and a constitution declared fealty to Prohibition principles and pledging the ministers to advocate the cause from pulpit and otherwise whenever such a course may be desired.
Dr. Cook's Argument for Prohibition.
Dr. Joseph Cook delivered his lecture on "Kumblers as Robbers and Beggars" at the Frothingham last night to a large audience. It was one of the most powerful arguments for prohibition ever heard in this city and held the close attention of the audience from beginning to end.
