MYSTERY OF A DEATH.

The Causes of the Suicide of Young Reynolds Are Unexplained—Who Are the White Girls?

By the United Press. New York, Nov. 13.—George H. Reynolds, the father of the young man, Nelson Reynolds, who committed suicide in this city yesterday, made a statement to the coroner this morning. He said that for the last couple of years Nelson had acted in a moody way, and did not seem to think life was worth living. On Monday morning the family received a letter in which he said he no longer among the living. Mr. Reynolds thinks that the only plausible theory for his son's death was melancholia.

He knew but little about the two young women, Katherine and Mary White, who called at the house before and after the death of the young man. About two weeks ago one of the girls, accompanied by young Reynolds, applied at a house for a room without board. They were shown a room and then they went away, promising to return with the girl's sister. A few hours later the two girls accompanied by Reynolds, went to the house and engaged the room. The young man was a frequent visitor after that. His last visit was Thursday night, when he brought a mandolin and played in the girl's room for several hours.

The White sisters have gone away. They left their room about 5 o'clock on Monday afternoon, when they went out as was supposed to dinner. This morning the landlady found their bed undisturbed. Their trunks were strapped and all their things packed. As their room had been paid for until Nov. 15, she supposed that they probably intended to send for their baggage before their departure. The landlady is loath to believe that the girls were mixed up in young Reynolds' death, as she says they were very nice people. It was said today that young Reynolds had taken a great fancy to Kate White, the oldest girl, but that his family objected to anything serious.

FUNERAL OF ALEXANDER

Impressive Ceremonies on Arrival of Remains at St. Petersburg.

VISITORS THROUGH THE CITY

Czar Nicholas and the Prince of Wales Walk in the Procession—United States Represented by Minister Breckinridge—Emblems from America.

By the United Press. St. Petersburg, Nov. 13. The preparations for the funeral of the body of Alexander III in this city, today, were hardly quiet in those in Moscow, and in consequence of a thaw, followed by fog and snow fall, the procession had to march through deep slush and mud. The heralds yesterday announced that the body would arrive at 10 o'clock this morning. The hotels were crowded to their full capacity with visitors from all parts of Russia and the continent, and windows along the route of the procession had been readily rented days ago at 100 roubles. Preceding the ceremony of removing the body from the Nicholas station to the fortress three guns were fired. After the third gun the church bells were tolled and throughout the day minute guns were fired. When the funeral train arrived at the Nicholas station at 8:55 a. m. the station was crowded with the nobility of Russia and representatives from every other European country. The hearse stood ready to receive the remains of the dead emperor and around it was ranged the guard of honor, all representatives of the navy. In addition to these there were a large number of clergymen, choristers and others awaiting the arrival of the train, and beyond the limits prescribed by the police and military was an immense crowd of people.

An Impressive Spectacle.

Amid the solemn music of the band, and the chanting of priests and singers, the long funeral train slowly stole into the station, until the mortuary car was opposite the steps leading to the hearse, when it came to a full stop. With candles and incense the priests stood in a group lining the steps, the metropolitan of St. Petersburg and the higher clergy at the top, and the roll of the drums of the grenadiers mingled with their chanting, showing the harmony of the tributes of the church and army to their former head. A boy choir began a chorus, in which the men joined, and the volume of vocal music swelled high upon the frosty air. The procession moved at 10:30 o'clock. The coffin was covered with a golden pall lined with heavy ermine.

The prince of Wales walked with the czar's remains, each wearing a uniform similar to the one he wore in Moscow, only more elaborate. This characterization is true of the whole procession. It was conducted upon the same plan as that in Moscow, only more elaborate. The floor of the cathedral of St. Isaac's was covered with black cloth, the edifice, built of massive stone and full of dignity, was in sharp contrast to the ram-like cathedral of St. Michael the Archangel in Moscow.

Entering the Cathedral.

The procession arrived at the cathedral at 1:30 p. m. The coffin was in one placed at the catafalque and a requiem service followed, lasting an hour. The body was exposed to the public view, and immediately long lines of people, anxious to see the dead czar's face, began passing through the cathedral. The lying in state will continue until the day of the funeral. Constant masses will be celebrated. President Cleveland and the United States were represented in today's ceremonies by Minister Breckinridge and his entire staff of the United States legation, and by Lieutenant Rogers, naval attaché at Paris. The American colony sent seventy wreaths to be placed on the czar's coffin.

MINISTER IN A DUEL.

Desperate Encounter Between a Pinsky Clergyman and a Burglar.

By the United Press. New York, Nov. 13.—Rev. Frederick C. Seckerson, the assistant pastor of the Clinton Avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, had a thrilling experience with a burglar early today, and narrowly escaped with his life. Mr. Seckerson was awakened this morning by the sound of some one moving about the room. By the dim light he discovered the form of a man moving stealthily about. The clergyman reached for his revolver and sprang to the door. The burglar drew a formidable buckhorn handled bowie knife, with a blade ten inches in length, with which he made a lunge at the clergyman. The blade penetrated the fleshy part of Mr. Seckerson's left forearm, inflicting an ugly wound from which the blood flowed freely.

MINISTER IN A DUEL.

Both men then grappled, and a hand to hand struggle for life ensued. Mr. Seckerson managed to fire a shot at the man, which evidently took effect, as he at once released his grasp and staggered toward the open window, through which he made his escape. The burglar has not yet been caught.

The club membership investigated the case and found Jones' statement to be true, and have begun legal proceedings against the maltese vendor.

THEY ARE NOT PLEASED.

Railroad Officials Express Themselves Somewhat Freely Upon the Report of the National Labor Commission.

By the United Press. Chicago, Nov. 13.—Railroad officials in Chicago, when asked for their opinions and other remarks on the subject of the report of the national labor commission strike investigation, were averse to indulging in extended comments, excusing themselves on the ground that they could not judge the reports from the published extracts. A general manager, who would not consent to have his name published, said: "That report is the most foolish production which has emanated from the present national administration. I guess, if all was known, that Debs had a good deal to do with the writing of that report. Nothing else, however, was to be expected from a commission composed of such men as Carroll D. Wright. It is in effect that a set of hoodlums may hand themselves together to destroy property and assault and kill employees on duty, while it is conspiring and contriving for the managers of railroads to adopt measures for the protection and operation of properties entrusted to their care. General Manager Merrill of the Burlington, said: "The report is just what I expected from the method the commission pursued in taking testimony. It did not appear to be the aim of the commission to have the railroads' companies' side presented, as it should have been done. Report cannot change the policy of management of the railroads."
