

JURY NOW HAS THE CASE

End of the Suit of the Scranton Gas and Water Company.

THE ARGUMENTS TO THE JURY

Attorney Johnson Spoke for the Defense and Attorney Burns for the Plaintiff. Other Cases That Came Up for Consideration in Court.

At 4:15 yesterday afternoon the hard-fought case of the Scranton Gas and Water company against the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company was given to the jury, after an exhaustive charge by Judge Gunter. It is not probable that the court room at one time ever before contained a greater number of successful men of the world than were gathered yesterday afternoon to listen to the closing details of this now famous trial. They were the representatives of millions of capital, much of which is invested in this progressive city, and has partially been instrumental in making it the thriving municipality it is.

When court opened yesterday morning, Judge Barnard, superintendent of the converting department of the North works; Henry Wehrum, chief engineer of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company, and Carl McKinley were called to the stand to prove the amount of water used by the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company, which it used independent of what it received from the Scranton Gas and Water company.

Edwin Moylin, of Harrisburg, was called to prove the water rate in other cities, but Mr. Amerman objected on the ground that the Scranton Gas and Water company could not be bound by the rates charged by other companies. Judge Gunter sustained the objection. That closed the testimony, and then the attorneys for the plaintiff and defendant presented their law points to the court and argued them.

At 11 o'clock Attorney Johnson, of Philadelphia, began his closing argument to the jury for the defendant. He spoke for almost an hour, and was followed by Attorney I. H. Burns, who addressed the jury on behalf of the plaintiff for an almost equal length of time. He characterized the action of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company in using the water of the Gas and Water company without its knowledge as theft, nothing more, but the judge said that the charge was clear and explicit. He laid all the facts plainly before the jurors and for their benefit reviewed the various law points. The outcome of the trial is awaited with great eagerness.

There is much conflict of opinion among the jurors evidently. Up to 11 o'clock last night they were unable to reach a verdict. Sounds from the jury room indicated that exciting debates were in progress.

At Davis' theater today Sherman and Morley's comedians will present "A Jay Circus," a most amusing skit. The olio contains many strong novelties. "A Jay Circus" will be seen every afternoon and evening for the remainder of the week.

"The Passing Show," the attraction at the Frothingham on Monday evening, Dec. 3, is well named, for it is a burlesque made up of hits from the most popular plays, operas and specialties of the play. The beauty of it all is that these glimpses are given by actors fully capable of performing such delicate tasks. What else but a thoroughly artistic and enjoyable entertainment can be expected when such people as J. E. Henshaw, George Schiller, of "Evangelist" fame; Charlie Ross, Lucy Daly, Vermona Jarbeau, Gus Pixley, William Cameron and a score of other leading people who have made names for themselves appear on the stage. Altogether there are fully 110 people connected with the show. Among these are the pickaninies, living pictures, and no end of novelties.

SOCIAL EVENTS OF NIGHT

Manner in Which Thanksgiving Eve Was Enjoyed in This City.

FUNCTION OF EXCELSIOR CLUB

It Brought Together Brilliant Company in the Renovated Club Rooms on Wyoming Avenue--Social of the Y. M. I. at Seigel's Academy.

The cosy rooms of the Excelsior Social club on Wyoming avenue were filled with a distinguished company last evening to celebrate the twenty-seventh anniversary of the club. The rooms had been entirely renovated and a large number of visitors was invited to participate in the opening of the club's social season.

Flowers and plants were ranged on the wide staircase which led to a ladies' parlor, luxuriously furnished and hung with expensive tapestry. The gentlemen's parlor is of heavy leather furniture with a magnificent mantelpiece of Louis XIV style. Both rooms are specially adapted for the purpose of a social club and are replete with all modern conveniences.

On the third floor the large ball room was exquisitely decorated with elegant plants. Bauer's orchestra was in attendance and discoursed excellent music. About fifty couples joined in the opening waltz upon the finely polished floor and at midnight the company adjourned to the banquet room, where a sumptuous repast was furnished by Mr. Hanley.

Among the out of town visitors were Miss Laura Newhouse, Arthur Long and Felix Levy, of Wilkes-Barre; Miss Pauline Cohen and Arnold Cohen, of Pittston; Mrs. Fred Moses and I. Singer, of Carbonale; Miss Lily Israel, of Philadelphia. The arrangements of the evening were carried out by the board of officers: Joseph Levy, president; Max Rice, vice-president; M. Schwartzkopf, treasurer; William Moses, secretary, and the directors, J. R. Cohen, L. Oettinger, Samuel Kramer, Jonas Lauer and S. Morris.

Siegel's academy of dancing contained a select and cultured assemblage of young folks last night at the social of John Boyle O'Reilly club, Young Men's Institute. The grand march began at 9:30 to the music of Elmano, Professor Karl R. Saft presiding at the keyboard.

The rooms were fragrant with the odors of hot house flowers and potted plants and represented a veritable fairy garden, as the strains of music floated on the air. M. A. McGinley was master of ceremonies and Edward J. O'Malley, assistant to him. The reception committee consisted of M. T. Howley, Dr. F. L. McGraw, P. J. Lynott, J. A. Nallin, A. P. Brown, J. J. Scott, James Gaynor, T. P. Gordon, J. J. Davis, Frank McDonald and James McDonald. On the floor committee were: M. A. McGinley, Edward J. O'Malley, William McGee, John Burke, M. F. Brown, Joseph Lavin, Edward F. Mitchell, Peter Howley, M. E. Handley, R. J. Murray and J. J. Varley. Every detail passed off rippling, so carefully and efficiently had the arrangements been made. Suffice it to say that pleasure reigned supreme and unalloyed enjoyment was the order of the hours until the usual time of terminating the occasion.

Out-of-town visitors who were there were: Miss Mamie McDonald, Syracuse; Miss Beatie Lynch, Wilkes-Barre; Miss Mamie Lee and John McDonald, Edward Hooley and Frank Schalline, Binghamton; Miss Minnie Mangan, Miss Mary Breshnahan, Miss Nottie Collier, Miss Annie Early, Pittston, and James Kenny, Parsons.

Ball of the Scranton Athletic Club. Youth and beauty are two objects that participated in the very enjoyable pleasures of the ball of the Scranton Athletic club, its Thanksgiving reception, which was held at Germania hall, South Side, last night. The hall was handsomely accoutred with decorative display. From the ceiling to the chandeliers festoons of hunting wares and stretched plants took up space, the lights shone brightly on the dazzling waxed floor, and the music by Lawrence's orchestra was charming.

Haydn P. Austin was master of ceremonies, and, with Miss Lizzie Schubert, they led the grand march, which began at 9:30. Seventy-five couples danced in the first number. The reception committee were: H. F. Moore, Charles Sunday, Jacob Scheim, and William F. Fink. John S. Scheuer was prompter.

Dance of A. O. U. E. of E. Turner's hall was well filled last evening by a very large company upon the occasion of the third annual ball of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Division No. 7, Board of Erin. The forest band orchestra discoursed excellent music and dancing began at 9 p. m. C. C. C. acted as master of ceremonies, and was ably assisted by C. T. Boland. The arrangements were satisfactorily carried out by this reception committee: Captain James O'Hara, H. C. O'Hara, A. J. Mulderig, John J. Looney, M. C. Burk, John F. O'Connor, Thomas Gilbride, Patrick Nealon, John M. Moran, John Ford, Charles Hoad, and J. J. O'Hara.

Dancing was kept up until an early hour and a very pleasant evening was spent. Social of Machinists. The annual ball of the Electric City lodge of the International Association of Machinists at the Music Hall last evening was a great success. A large company was assembled, and credit is due to the committee of arrangements for the satisfactory manner in which they performed their duties. James Burnett acted as master of ceremonies, and the following gentlemen comprised the committee: James Burnett, chairman; J. Backus, secretary; W. York, treasurer; F. Gilroy, Frank Brady and J. Walker.

HENSEL WILL PROBE. Will Ascertain If Foreign Loan Associations Are Violating Law. Announcement is made from Harrisburg that the attorney general is going to probe the business of foreign building and loan associations operating in this state with a view to ascertaining whether they are within the law. It is suspected that the attorney general's department from the information already secured that these associations are doing strictly a banking business and are not conducting affairs on the line of a building association proper.

This decision is doubtless based on a petition recently presented to the attorney general by W. O. Laughna, of Harrisburg, asking that the department investigate the financial standing and responsibility of the Guarantee Savings, Loan and Investment company of Washington, D. C. According to the petition this company holds out to the public through its widely circulated literature that it has a guarantee fund paid up of $500,000, while it is alleged it has not even a guarantee fund

COUNSEL FOR FRANK BEZEL

Court Asked to Assign Someone to Defend the Murderer.

WILL BE CONSIDERED FRIDAY

What Bezek Has to Say About the Murder--He Loved a Girl Who Was Below His Station in Life and She Duped Him.

Franz, Bezek, the young Slav who murdered his sweetheart at Mayfield several months ago, was taken before the court yesterday afternoon to have counsel assigned to defend him. His trial is set down for next Monday, and as District Attorney Kelly had information that Bezek had no counsel he asked the court to assign some one to defend him that the case might not have to be continued Monday because of no time to prepare a defense.

Bezek, when questioned through an interpreter by the court, said his uncle at Mayfield had money to pay his attorney fees, and that he wanted to consult with Martin Woyshner and would employ an attorney on Sunday. The answers received through the interpreter were unsatisfactory, and it was decided to have the accused brought into court again Friday morning, when Martin Woyshner, who seems to be his confidential adviser, will also be present. The question of counsel will then be taken up again.

Bezek is a very bright and intelligent young man and is in his twenty-seventh year. He apparently does not realize how low close he stands to the shadow of the gallows. He talks a little English, but finds it difficult to make himself understood in that tongue. In conversation with a Tribune reporter yesterday he told the history of the events that led him to kill his sweetheart. His father is a mill farmer in Slavonia and when a youth Franz enlisted in the Austrian army. He returned to visit his father at intervals, and during one of these furloughs fell in love with the daughter of a neighbor, who was not so well-to-do as Franz's father.

The latter was proud of his position and forbade his son to marry the daughter of his poor neighbor. But Franz loved truly and when the girl suggested that they should come to this country to her relatives he gladly consented and paid her passage. Three days after arriving here he found that he had been duped and that the girl whose passage he had paid to this country was about to become the wife of another.

Filled with jealous rage, Bezek is of a quick and impulsive nature, and when he learned the perfidy of the woman he loved he sought her out and took her life and then attempted to kill himself.

He says that his only regret is that he was not as successful in his own case as in that of his sweetheart. Since his arrest he has written to his father, but the latter does not seem very kindly disposed toward him.

The Employe of the Traction Co. Who Turns in Most Money in the Contest. Among the under officials and clerks in the office of the Scranton Traction company an organization has been formed of which George McDowell is president and John Hundon treasurer, and through that organization a unique offer has been sent out.

It is for the purpose of assisting in the contest now waging for a diamond ring between the general managers of the Scranton Traction company and Wyoming Valley Traction company, J. Henry Wood and W. R. Graham respectively, the contest being for the benefit of the Sacred Heart church of Plains. Whichever employe of the Scranton Traction company that collects the most money for Mr. Beeten's cause will be presented with a brand new tailor made uniform.

TODAY'S FOOT BALL GAME. Will be an Exciting Struggle Between Our Boys and Wyoming Seminary. Our foot ball team, reinforced by three new players who are promised to be artists in their line, will tug for victory this afternoon at the base ball park with the eleven from Wyoming seminary.

It will be the last game of the season at the park, as it will be flooded for skating purposes. An extra effort will be made by the Scranton team to win, but at any rate the game will surely be one worth witnessing. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

CHARITABLE CHILDREN. Pupils of St. Cecilia's Academy Give Donation to Associated Charities. Members of the St. Cecilia's academy on Wyoming avenue made substantial gifts yesterday to the Associated Board of Charities of vegetables, clothing, shoes, chickens, etc., which were distributed by Mrs. Duggan and a member of the St. Paul de Vincent society to thirty-five poor and needy families.

These gifts will make many homes happier today. DENMORE DOINGS. Will Brunding is attending the West End Home company fair at West Pittston. Arthur Johnson is spending Thanksgiving in Binghamton with his friend, Fred Russell. Charles Potter left yesterday noon for Utica, N. Y., on a business trip and will return Friday.

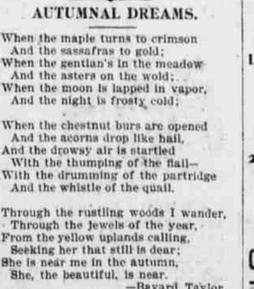

William Miller and H. E. Spencer, of the Dunmore Cash store, are spending with Mr. Miller's parents in Jefferson. W. H. Banks and Frank Mahon were hunting near Stroudsburg yesterday. They were among the most successful hunters of the season, bringing home a large number of rabbits and other game.

J. C. Carpenter, who has been working for G. W. Potter for the past six months, has given up his position, and is spending Thanksgiving with his family in Abington. He will return and accept a position with the Spencer Coal company. One of the pleasantest surprise parties ever held in town was given to Malinda Cole Monday evening. Music and social games were indulged in until a late hour. At 11 o'clock all were invited to partake of an elegant repast. Those present were: Miss Hattie Benjamin, Lucy Ella, Eva Hess, Lizzie Wetters, Ethel Jackson, Florence Donly, L. Parfrey, Lizzie Walker, Katie Benjamin, Maria Walker, F. Spencer, R. Spencer, J. Parfrey, E. Cole, Lizzie Brady, Messrs. A. Castleton, F. Hallcock, C. Weber, W. Young, T. Zeigler, W. Zeigler, E. Jackson, T. Swartz, D. Decker, J. Cole, T. Walker, E. Swartz, S. Swartz, W. COUNSEL FOR FRANK BEZEL Court Asked to Assign Someone to Defend the Murderer.

WILL BE CONSIDERED FRIDAY What Bezek Has to Say About the Murder--He Loved a Girl Who Was Below His Station in Life and She Duped Him.

Franz, Bezek, the young Slav who murdered his sweetheart at Mayfield several months ago, was taken before the court yesterday afternoon to have counsel assigned to defend him. His trial is set down for next Monday, and as District Attorney Kelly had information that Bezek had no counsel he asked the court to assign some one to defend him that the case might not have to be continued Monday because of no time to prepare a defense.

Bezek, when questioned through an interpreter by the court, said his uncle at Mayfield had money to pay his attorney fees, and that he wanted to consult with Martin Woyshner and would employ an attorney on Sunday. The answers received through the interpreter were unsatisfactory, and it was decided to have the accused brought into court again Friday morning, when Martin Woyshner, who seems to be his confidential adviser, will also be present. The question of counsel will then be taken up again.

Bezek is a very bright and intelligent young man and is in his twenty-seventh year. He apparently does not realize how low close he stands to the shadow of the gallows. He talks a little English, but finds it difficult to make himself understood in that tongue. In conversation with a Tribune reporter yesterday he told the history of the events that led him to kill his sweetheart. His father is a mill farmer in Slavonia and when a youth Franz enlisted in the Austrian army. He returned to visit his father at intervals, and during one of these furloughs fell in love with the daughter of a neighbor, who was not so well-to-do as Franz's father.

The latter was proud of his position and forbade his son to marry the daughter of his poor neighbor. But Franz loved truly and when the girl suggested that they should come to this country to her relatives he gladly consented and paid her passage. Three days after arriving here he found that he had been duped and that the girl whose passage he had paid to this country was about to become the wife of another.

Filled with jealous rage, Bezek is of a quick and impulsive nature, and when he learned the perfidy of the woman he loved he sought her out and took her life and then attempted to kill himself.

He says that his only regret is that he was not as successful in his own case as in that of his sweetheart. Since his arrest he has written to his father, but the latter does not seem very kindly disposed toward him.
