vinced that it is a case along the lines of the famous one of Chief Whitaker. Chief Robling and Detective Dyer are still on the trail with a lock of the young woman's hair and a grim determination to find the man who clipped off the braid concealed about his person.

The chief has taken the matter very seriously and between his efforts to locate the culprit and keep the Tribune from finding out what the police are doing about the case he is rapidly losing his peace of mind.

Mr. Bell took as his text from Jeremiah vi, 16, "Now we believe not because of thy saying for we have heard Him ourselves and know that this is the Christ."

FUNERAL OF SHIFFER. Impressive Services Held at the Residence on Millin Avenue—Many Organizations in Line.

In the presence of a large number of friends and representatives of the various organizations of which he was a member, the funeral of William Shiffer, who met an instant and accidental death on Wednesday, was held from the home of his stepfather, William Shiffer, at 122 Millin avenue, yesterday afternoon.

At 2 o'clock the service was begun. Two sermons were delivered, one by Rev. John Griffiths, late pastor of the Sumner Avenue Presbyterian church, who spoke in English, and one by the Rev. M. Nord, of the German Presbyterian church, whose address was in German. Music by a quartet composed of Mrs. E. Heckel, Miss Lida Felch and Messrs. Howard and E. A. Heilman.

At the conclusion of the service the remains were viewed by the several hundred persons present, many of whom were compelled to remain outside during the service on account of the large crowd.

The remains rested in the parlor and the floral emblems, which were elaborate and beautiful, required considerable space. Most of the pieces were presented by organizations to which Shiffer belonged and were nearly all emblematic.

During the ceremony in the house, Company E, Thirteenth regiment, the Sons of Veterans and the various home companies of the Scranton fire department, all in uniform, were lined along the Millin avenue front of the residence. The line of march taken by the cortege was by way of Spruce street and Washington avenue to the Danmore cemetery.

First in the line came the Thirteenth regiment drum corps, followed by Company B, under command of Captain Kauback. Next came a long line of members of Lieutenant Ezra S. Griffin post of the Sons of Veterans. They were under the command of First Lieutenant E. Frank Gardner. Detachments from the various companies of the fire department followed. Chief Hickey was called away by a fire alarm in Providence before the march was started and in his absence the firemen were preceded by the six district chiefs of the department, J. Timlin, Fred Warnke, M. McManus, Lewis Schwass, J. J. O'Malley and Charles Raynor.

Nearly every home company in the city was represented, the largest being a large delegation from the Nax Aug company, to which Shiffer belonged.

Following the fire department came members of the Electrical Workers' organization of this city, and the bicycle club of which the deceased was a member. Next came the floral bearers, who rode in carriages. They were C. W. Hines and Perry Singer, representing Company B; W. Cahoon and Geo. A. Gardner, representing the Sons of Veterans; and D. R. Schomberger and H. Reed, of the Nax Aug company. The horse, bearing the casket, which was draped with the American flag, followed and on each side walked the pallbearers: Joseph O'Hara and George Carlson, of Company B; J. M. Schutte Jones, of the Sons of Veterans; John McDonald and H. V. Stock, of the Nax Aug company; and M. McManus, representing the Electrical workers. Following the horse came the carriages of which there were about two scores.

When the cortege reached the cemetery the militia formed line above the open grave and after the ritualistic services of the Presbyterian church had been enacted by Rev. M. Nord and prayers were offered by the several members of the several organizations, the company fired a salute consisting of three volleys, which concluded the ceremony.

AMUSEMENTS. This evening Joseph Greene and Jere McAuliffe and strong supporting company will begin a week's engagement at the Academy of Music. The stars are well known to Scranton theatergoers, having been seen here a number of times as members of the Sherry company. Greene is an excellent actor and sustains excellent roles in all the pieces produced by Mr. Shea, while he was with that company. Mr. McAuliffe is one of the most entertaining comedians on the stage. This evening he is coming with the company will produce "The Bowery New York," which was especially written for Messrs. McAuliffe and Greene by E. E. Rose.

Tuesday evening Thomas Q. Seabrook and his splendid supporting organization will present his latest success, "The Speculator," at the Frothingham. In one bound Mr. Seabrook has bridged a chasm that exists between the stalling roles of the comic opera and the more audacious lines of legitimate comedy, and in his new and radical departure in the impersonation of the character of John Fullerton, "The Speculator," has achieved a distinct success that has won for him the universal praise of the press and public throughout the United States.

Thursday evening the always popular singing comedian, Andrew Mack, will be seen at the Frothingham in "Myles Aron." Mack invests the title role with a most pleasing personality and displays a knowledge of the dramatic art, remarkable in so young a man. On the occasion of his coming visit he will repeat all of his former songs, as well as a number of new ones.

Among the leading burlesque organizations which will appear at Davis' theater this season, "The New Night Owls Burlesquers" give promise of being the box office winner. Among the specialties are "The Blue Bird" from the London, England, musical halls; Watson and Dupree, singing artists; Lew H. Carr, travesty comedian; John J. and Lillie Black, sketch team; May Clark (an Oson), the burlesque star; Gordon and Lip, a musical monomaniacs; Mabel Hazleton, tough girl and character artist; the great Solbke, and a ballet of sixteen beautiful Coryphees in "La Danse Rieuse" and "The Ballet La Equestre." The Night Owls at Davis' theater for three nights and matinees beginning this afternoon.

WE OUGHT TO. From the Philadelphia Press. Consul General Lee may not have resigned; no one can yet tell; but there is no possible doubt that the protection of American citizens and their property in Cuba has been extended so ineffectively that no American Consul General could remain at Havana with self-respect.

Should a Man Who would Carry a Gun Such As This. Patrolman Jolter saw the handle of a pistol protruding from the hip pocket of an Italian who jumped off a Peckville car last night on Lackawanna avenue, and as the man was under the influence of drink and a bad looking fellow he decided to take the weapon away from him.

The patrolman thought to find an ordinary cheap American revolver, such as is most commonly carried, but to his great surprise when he grasped the handle and withdrew it, along came an even foot of gun. It was nothing more or less than an abbreviated G. I. -ling gun.

It is the most ferocious looking weapon ever taken from a prisoner in the central station house, and in the matter of size is also first in the list of arms now in the police court museum.

It is twelve inches long and of 44-caliber, the cylinder being easily six inches in circumference, and the hammer as large as that on an ordinary shotgun. The cartridges each have a pin solidly set in the shell, by which means it is exploded. A place was cleared on the window sill for the gun and the owner was put behind the bars.

Saturday night, and when shown to the cell room where wayfarers of their kind are accommodated, they became excessively tired and had to be cautioned by Desk Sergeant Ridgeway several times to lie down and behave themselves.

They insisted, however, on running about the place and having a good time, and when the patrolmen tried to be a virtue the sergeant locked them up. They kept up a terrible din for the greater part of the night by kicking the side of the cells, slamming the bunks and yelling at the top of their voices. And in the intervals they had the nerves to plead for leniency. They got ten days apiece.

They gave their names as William Springfield, Thomas Harvey and William McDonald, and said they were honest workmen hailing from Chicago.
