From State Encampment Grand Army of the Republic.

The local delegates from William H. Davies' post, No. 187, of this city, who attended the state convention of the Grand Army, at Johnstown, John Kelly and A. W. Daley rendered their report to the post on Wednesday evening. The G. A. R. car which had been placed at the disposal of the comrades by the officials of the Pennsylvania road was filled with representatives and the Women's Relief Corps, with the Ladies. The encampment met in the opera house, when after prayer by Chaplain Sayre an address of welcome was delivered by the mayor of Johnstown, Hon. George Wagner. The response was given by Department Commander Darte. Then followed reports and election of officers chosen by acclamation. There were 972 delegates present representing 608 posts and 35,550 active comrades.

Morrison of the Woman's Relief Corps, and Mrs. Wittenmeyer of Philadelphia. The delegates also described in glowing language the grand parade of the veterans. William H. Davies post was nobly represented by their delegates who said: "The work of representing the post was to us pleasant, though laborious. We appreciate our commonwealth and organization more highly than ever before and the memory of the many friends we have found among the veterans of the nation will be sweet and pleasant while life lasts."
