Colonel and Mrs. Boies felt rewarded for their inspiration of throwing open their conservatories for a chrysanthemum show for the benefit of the Homeopathic hospital on Saturday. There were many visitors and the results will give a snug sum for the operating room furnishings.

The splendid autumnal beauties were never so fine as this season and the collection embraces many new varieties. Among the ones most admired is the "Mrs. Ferris" with its exquisite pink-tipped petals and its enormous blooms. Of course the "Golden Wedding" and the many beautiful and unusual varieties were seen in profusion at the exhibition and there was a multitude of favorites well known for the past three or four years. They were all in prime condition, voluminously full, and made a wonderful picture in their artistic grouping.

An attraction which afforded much interest to the many children visitors as well as the older ones, was a colossal bunch of bananas in process of growth in the tropical plant house. There are probably three hundred bananas on the tree and these, when ripe, are of delicate flavor and unusually large as many friends of Colonel Boies can testify in past years.

It is to be regretted that the thought of opening the conservatories for this purpose had not occurred to the owners earlier in the week when a more extended notice could have been given the exhibition and its object, and when even a larger number of visitors might have been able to be present during the afternoon and evening. As it was, however, the affair was a success.

Mrs. Henry W. Palmer will speak tomorrow afternoon at the Epworth league convention on the "Boys' Industrial Association," which is such a feature in Wilkes-Barre, and in the interests of which Mrs. Palmer has labored so unceasingly for years. There were many men speakers in America who are so interesting in their public addresses as this lady. She is a practical business woman on the platform and best of all she has something to say. The subject of the E. I. A. is one upon which she is most eloquent and her presentation of its history, together with illustrations from her own experiences among the poor boys of the valley, and no one can hear her and not be fascinated by the subject. It is a pity that with the endless objects which interest women in this city that nothing has been done for the neglected little workers in mines and on the streets. Mrs. Palmer has just returned from Buffalo and Erie where she made addresses, and she of course will have a large audience tomorrow at Elm Park church.

Mr. J. M. Chance will conduct the musical at the Second Presbyterian church this evening when, by request, will be repeated the beautiful programme given a week ago. Much has been said about the wonderful development of Miss Jordan's voice on this occasion and many have expressed a desire to hear her solos as well as the vocal solos of others who will assist with the programme.

SHE ADDRESSED TWO MEETINGS
 Mrs. Norvell Heard at Second Presbyterian and Elm Park Churches.

HER TALK IN THE AFTERNOON
 It Was for Women and the Large Edifice Was Filled—in the Evening She Spoke to a Mixed Assembly in Elm Park Church—Her Remarks Were Listened to with the Deepest Attention.

Interest in Mrs. Norvell's evangelistic work here reached its culmination yesterday in largely attended services. The women's meeting of the afternoon was remarkable for depth of feeling which the surrounding and the spirit of the occasion seemed to arouse. Before the time for closing came, twilight crept into the auditorium and from the western windows alone the fading sunshine fell. Across the opalescent panes like dim, fairy tracery dropped the shadows of ivy tendrils making an indescribable beautiful picture. As deeper grew the gloom and more earnest the speaker's intonations, a breathless, intense silence settled down upon the listeners and the scene was most impressive. Mrs. L. M. Gates presided over the meeting. Others on the platform were: Mrs. E. H. Ripple, Miss Links, college secretary of the association; Mrs. L. M. Gates, Miss Van Nort and Mrs. Lowry, secretary of the local association. A chorus of young women sang with exceptionally good effect, and there was excellent orchestra music. Mrs. Gates made a few brief and appropriate remarks, closing with the announcement that Mrs. Norvell's expenses were paid by the free gift of the audience which she addressed and that therefore while the congregation would contribute its usual collection to Elm Park church, Y. W. C. A. girls at the doors will receive offerings for the purpose named.

MRS. NORVELL SPEAKS.
 Mrs. Norvell spoke from Luke x, the chapter containing the incident of the miraculous draught of fishes and Peter's acceptance of the Master's call, the subject of her remarks being "The Transformed Character." She gave a fascinating description of the scene where Peter came face to face with Jesus of Nazareth, and of his compliance with the demand made upon him. The importance of recognizing opportunity and making the most of it was emphasized. Christ comes once to the heart of every mortal, that heart rejects him at its own peril. Peter knew that acceptance meant desertion of his old life, and complete surrender of himself, his possessions and his vocation. Yet he yielded the best to the Master's control and did as He commanded. Too many Christians accept Christ with reservations. They are willing that He should have a seat in their boat, but they do not propose to yield up the guidance of the helm. There are those who evade the demand by saying "If I had wealth, or talent, or position or influence, then I would gladly give it over to His service, but I can do so little with such small use. And yet Christ takes the most insignificant life and makes it great for His glory.

Peter had been disappointed many times in his vocation. Not on this last night only had he toiled all night long and taken nothing. Hereafter he would depend on Jesus for the success of his undertakings. You may have missed the mark of your ambition, may have met with failure at every hand, but when you take your life and make it a great success.

ARE WONDROUS WISE.
 Peter knew it was not the time for fishing. The fishermen of the East are wondrous wise and while we will fish haphazard in any puddle with or without bait, without knowledge of our work at hand, they know the seas and the habits of the dwellers therein and are seldom deceived. Peter had much wisdom in his vocation, but he did not say to Jesus: "You were not brought up to fish, you don't know about this business." He recognized the fact that Jesus did know the seas, and straightaway turned into the deep with the words: "Nevertheless at Thy word I will."

"The other boat followed and kept apart. The fisherman wanted to see the outcome of the matter. You never took a step of faith in your life but that some one from the world lingered near to spy and tell what you are doing. Bless the Lord that this is so. You will have enough success and to spare for those who watch. There are many who get about the only blessing they ever receive from sitting in the same pew with some one who is enjoying the good the Lord can give to those who trust Him. And there are others who experience comes only from living in the home with one who does know what it is to have large returns for their belief.

Peter knew that he would have more from Jesus than from his life as a fisherman and through the many after periods of trials of his faith he had reason to testify to its truth. It is a mistake to say that a business man who serves the Lord cannot make money, he can, but he must make it not for his own glory, but God's. He never forgets the soul that turns over the boat to His control.

The entire address was an earnest plea for consecration and faith. At its close a request for the devotion to God of all present was made and the audience was dismissed with the Doxology.

During the service songs were sung by the following: Mrs. Brewster, Misses Dryer, Steele, Smith, Ripple, Richmond, Sailer and Miss Garrison, and the orchestra consisted of Misses Long, Hanley, Dolph, Mrs. Hollinder, Miss Phillips, William Hanley and Charles Doersam, organist.

IN ELM PARK CHURCH.
 At the evening service in Elm Park church the largest crowd of any that had heard Mrs. Norvell assembled. Only a few seats in the vast auditorium were vacant. Rev. C. M. Gillin, D. D., introduced Mrs. Norvell. The evangelist spoke upon a part of the twenty-sixth chapter in Ezekiel, which Dr. Gillin had previously read as the evening scripture lesson. Mrs. Norvell drew a line of remarks from the somewhat original arithmetical plan—subtraction, addition, multiplication and division, drawing from each severally the thought of purity, the added new life, and the redoubled glory of the great reward.

The address held interested attention throughout its delivery. After the service young lady members of the association stood at the several church exits and received offerings for the benefit of the work.

TREASURER-ELECT SERENADED.
 His Neighbors Gave a Demonstration in His Honor Saturday Night.

The residents of the Seventh ward held a demonstration Saturday night in honor of the election of M. J. Kelly to the office of county treasurer. Mr. Kelly has for years been one of the representative citizens of that ward, and in celebration of his victory his neighbors decided to jubilate, which they did with right good will.

Councilman James O'Leary and his Cumberland band came down from Providence to help the good work along and with them came Councilman P. F. Gordon, Comedian J. J. Salmon and other residents of North Scranton. A parade, formed on the main avenue, headed by the band, and passed over the principal streets of the ward, its pathway made loud with red fire, the spluttering of rockets and snapping of crackers.

At Mr. Kelly's residence, on Phelps street, the procession halted, and after the band had serenaded Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, Captain P. De Lacy stepped to the front of the porch, and in the name of the people of the ward, told the county treasurer-elect how pleased his neighbors were over his selection to fill a position of such honor and trust.

He reviewed Mr. Kelly's career and said it furnished inspiration to people and was an example of what can be achieved by a man who is steadfast, aggressive and honest. Mr. Kelly had been called by his fellow citizens to fill several public positions, and they never had cause to regret their choice. Neither would the people of the county ever regret what they did on Nov. 2. Mr. Kelly briefly thanked his neighbors for the spontaneous outpouring of their good will, and said he was proud of the fact that from those who lived about him, who knew him best he had received the most loyal support. Afterwards a few remarks were made by John E. Roche, who concluded with a request for three cheers for the next county treasurer. They were given with a will.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly then invited their neighbors into the house, where a supper was served and a period of sociability enjoyed. Songs and recitations were given by William Lynch, J. J. Salmon, William Burke, Patrick Scanlon and others.

THEY HAD TO FIGHT.
 Conductor and Motorman in Charge of a Peckville Car Had an Exciting Time Last Evening.

A rough-and-tumble fight between a trolley crew and some Dickson City toughs tied up traffic on the Peckville line of the Scranton Railway company for a time last evening. The scrimmage was featured by broken glass and heads, blood and frightened passengers. The toughs came off second best, but will be arrested and receive whatever punishment the law affords. John Williams was the conductor and Walter Brown the motorman.

"Big Charley" Callahan and a smaller companion and two other friends whose names could not be learned, boarded an outgoing Peckville car at Providence. Callahan tendered 25 cents in payment of the fares for himself and one companion. There was a dispute about change which was supposed to have been amicably settled, but Callahan's friend was profane in his remarks about it and when nearing the city line expressed a desire to "get at" the conductor, who was designated by an unprintable name.

When the city line was reached Conductor Williams ordered the pair off the car. They refused to get down and Motorman Brown came to Williams' aid. Brown yanked the smaller of the two off the platform and a fight began. The crew had the best of it and finally gained the car platform. The smaller tough followed and had his head pushed through the two panes of glass in the rear car window and door.

The car was finally started, but Callahan and his friend jumped aboard. Conductor Williams had gone to the front platform and returned with a heavy stick used to turn switches. With the aid of this instrument the pair of disturbers were put off the car. Several children were bruised in the scrimmage and the car was vacated by the passengers before the crew for the third time ejected the two Dickson City men.

The friends who accompanied the disturbers had by this time begun to take a hand in the melee and the result might have been reversed but for the arrival of a crew on another outgoing car.

Warrants for Callahan and his companion will be issued today. Williams has a cut finger and bruised hand and Motorman Brown some bruises on the head and face as a result of the fight.

COMPANY FORMED TO SELL POWER
 Tenants Will Be Manufacturing Concerns of Modest Extent.

LARGE BUILDING TO BE ERECTED
 It Will Be Located on Penn Avenue Between Mulberry and Vine Streets. To Occupy a Space 120 by 100 Feet and Be Four Stories, of Brick and Stone—Each Floor, If So Desired, Can Accommodate Twenty Tenants.

Arrangements have just been completed by ex-Senator M. E. McDonald, Architect P. J. Morris and others to begin the immediate erection of a large power building for manufacturing concerns on Penn avenue. The idea is quite common in large cities where thousands of the modest type of manufacturers rent their plants and power from power-furnishing companies. Three years ago an effort was made to interest board of trade members in a plan similar to that about to be operated by Senator McDonald and Mr. Morris, but it reached no definite consideration. A large building on upper Lackawanna avenue was made available for a plant.

Work on the Penn avenue structure is to begin at once. It is to be of brick and stone and four stories high and constructed that two more stories may be easily added. The floor space will be built on a plot of ground on the east side of Penn avenue, between Mulberry and Vine streets. It will have a frontage of 120 feet and extend to the alley, 100 feet. The architect's plans have been completed by Mr. Morris and the specifications for the contractor are nearly ready.

MANY TENANTS.
 The building will be so arranged that leases can be made with as many as twenty tenants to a floor. In other words the company can furnish electric power and light to eighty tenants, although, of course, the floor space will be let to a much smaller number. Some tenants will require a whole floor, or one, two, four or ten rooms, according to the requirements of their several businesses. The plans are so made that partitions can be readily erected or taken down to suit the requirements of the tenants.

From the basement to an immense skylight in the roof there will be in the center of the building an araway 25 by 100 feet with a balcony running completely around it on each floor, thus securing plenty of light for the inside rooms.

Particular attention has been paid to the facility for receiving and shipping. From Penn avenue a balcony readily erected or taken down to suit the requirements of the tenants. These two passageways will join in the area and have a common exit at the rear. At one end of the building is to be a large receiving elevator and at the other an elevator for shipping. Each is to have a companion passenger elevator.

Of machinery, tenants will be obliged to only furnish that which is used in their businesses and the building is to be a large receiving elevator and appliances necessary to connect with the company's shafting. The care of the power machinery, shafting, elevators, hallways, etc., will, of course, be assumed by the company.

GOOD VENTILATION.
 One attractive feature in the structural plans is the provision for the electric generating power plant, boilers, engines, dynamos, etc., at the rear of the building. A system of ventilation is to be so devised that all the unnatural heat from these sources will be carried into the open air without giving it access to any part of the structure after it leaves its place of creation.

The investment of the company, exclusive of the land, will amount to about $50,000. Few such enterprises are attempted outside the great cities, and at least, in which the building and power are provided solely for rental purposes to a great assortment of small manufacturing concerns. When a similar scheme was discussed three years ago, it was the hope of the city fathers to encourage local industries and to secure for Scranton small manufactures from outside the city. The present project is a venture, but business men who know about it say it will result in a pronounced step toward a realization of the hopes of many prominent men that Scranton will eventually possess a sufficient manufacturing interest to make the city independent of the day when the coal deposits will be exhausted.

MORAN'S LUCKY FIND.
 Had the Wherewith on His Person and Didn't Know It.

Patrolmen Marker and Feeney, Lieutenant Davis and Sergeant Ridgeway had a hand in arresting John Moran yesterday morning Moran was fined $5 or a penalty of thirty days in jail. Moran had no money, he said, and was remanded to jail. Yesterday afternoon a friend visited Moran at police headquarters and suggested that he search his clothes for money. Sure enough down in the watch pocket of Moran's trousers was a $5-bill. He gave it to Desk Sergeant Ross and departed.

boy, early Friday morning, went to Keller & Co.'s bicycle repository and upon depositing twenty-five cents for an hour's rental, was given a wheel. At 5 o'clock that evening Shager had not returned the wheel and one of Mr. Keller's employes went out on a still hunt.

At Bittenbender's store Shager was found. He was having a new seat placed upon the bicycle. When accused of stealing the wheel Shager retorted point blank that it wasn't Mr. Keller's wheel. He said he was employed by Rev. A. G. Austin, of Dalton, and stated that he wanted to leave the city on the next train. Mr. Keller took the wheel and allowed Shager to go.

Saturday morning Shager was again seen strolling about the city and for fear that he would make a successful coup, Detective John Moir locked the boy up.

When Acting Desk Sergeant Ross went into the cell room yesterday Shager at first could not be found. After a search the boy was found huddled in a corner in the woman's ward. For fear that he wanted to sneak out, Shager was locked in a cell.

LADIES' SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.
 What the Syracuse Standard Has to Say About That Organization.

Concerning "the Boston Ladies' Symphony orchestra," which appears at Young Men's Christian association hall Tuesday evening next, the Syracuse Standard says:

"It was rather an unusual sight upon which the audience, which filled every chair in the habitable theater, last night, gazed. Twenty young ladies, clad all in white, all favored by nature in the matter of physical charms to no small extent, artistically grouped upon the stage, formed a picture which contained no suggestion of anything unpleasant. The programme rendered was extensive in itself; but the enthusiasm of the audience prolonged it far beyond its original limitations. The orchestra was assisted by Karl Marshall White, who showed himself to be an eclectician of superior ability."
