AN EXCEPTIONAL WOMAN.

Mary Anderson Trapped Sixty-five Wolves in One Winter.

From the Maryland (Pa.) Advertiser.

Living with her son on a small farm in the heart of Potter county, Pa., is a woman whose life story is strange and interesting. This woman is Mrs. Mary Anderson, widow of the former secretary of the State of Ohio.

Her husband was a member of the territory of whose colony at Ohio is an interesting chapter in the history of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Anderson was a widow when wooed and won by Andrew Anderson, her name then was French, she having been the wife of one of the early settlers and founders of Potter county. Today her bones are racked with rheumatism as a result of her pioneer experience, when she hunted and trapped at her husband's side.

It is said that during one winter Mrs. Anderson, and the doctor of the county, snatched them up and carried them home, where she had a fit of hysterics. And all because she needed a little tact.

"Did you ever hear of scolding locks?" They are the short ends of your hair that are always flying loose. They bother you so much, but side curls keep them in order, besides being very becoming ornaments.

"I thought you would like them," she said when her friend had admired them and thanked her rapturously. "You will find them so handy to fasten up your scolding locks."

"What do you mean?" asked her friend in a surprised tone.
