

ACQUITTAL IN THE MARTIN CASE

Jury Agrees Upon Verdict of Not Guilty or First Ballot.

OTHER CASES WILL BE PUSHED

The Prosecuting Committee, it is said, will insist upon the trial of seventeen other indictments for murder hanging over Sheriff Martin and his deputies.

Wilkes-Barre, March 9.—Sheriff Martin and his deputies, charged with the killing of the strikers at Lattimer on Sept. 10 last, were acquitted today. They agreed on their verdict on the first ballot last night, and it is said that even this was a matter of form, as they had reached the decision before leaving the jury.

They came into court shortly after 10 o'clock this morning and handed in the sealed verdict. The usual formalities of question and answer were gone through with and the jury being polled, each man separately announced the finding.

An attempt at applause was quickly suppressed by Judge Woodward. After the jury had been thanked and discharged by Judge Woodward, District Attorney Martin asked that the defendants be required to continue their bail bond, as there are still seventeen indictments for murder hanging over them and nearly eight for feloniously wounding. The bond was continued as requested.

District Attorney Martin says he has not decided what to do with these other cases, but will confer with the prosecuting committee. This committee, it is said, will insist upon further prosecution.

The trial of Sheriff Martin and his deputies began on Tuesday, Feb. 1, and continued for five weeks, about 150 witnesses being called by the commonwealth and the defense. The case was bitterly fought by both sides and has excited more interest than any case ever tried in this section of the state.

SPANIARDS BECOME POLITE.

Just Learned of the Trouble After Arriving in Port.

Wilmington, Del., March 8.—The Spanish steamer Ciudad de Reus arrived in this port today, having left Saville on Feb. 15, the sailors knowing nothing of the trouble between Spain and the United States until informed by a pilot. When Customs Inspector E. P. Allen boarded her the sailors were drawn up in line on deck, and saluted him, an unusual proceeding.

When Mr. Allen asked the cause of the salute the sailors said that they did not know of the trouble, and had determined when they learned of it to be as polite as possible in an American port.

The officers of the steamer told the inspector that if there was to be war they hoped it would occur while their boat was here, as they did not care to fight and were sure of getting plenty of food here. The steamer will load with oil and shortly depart. The captain set out his finest liquors and cigars for the American official.

ANTI-TRUST MEASURE PASSES.

House of the Kentucky Legislature Acts on Bradburn's Bill.

Frankfort, Ky., March 9.—The house this afternoon passed the Bradburn anti-trust bill, which is sweeping in its provisions and penalties. The bill investigates against all combinations of persons or corporations organized for or that attempt to raise or lower the price of any article or to prevent competition in any line of trade; to create or carry out restrictions in trade; to limit or reduce the production of the price of merchandise, commodities, business, custom of life. Here we meet hordes of beggars of all description. The Spanish markets are well kept. They are the greatest cheats I ever saw. The more they have the more they bring their products from their little farm on the back of a donkey. This animal is of great value to the farmer and them in use in all places we have visited. All these sights are very amusing to us. "His" means J. J. W. H. James and myself. We travel together; hire a carriage and take in all we can see, and find it very much the best way to travel. We have had lots of fun in Malaga and Malaga is a beautiful city. The climate and scenery are simply grand. The trip through the country was the greatest ride of my life. Passing farms as level as a table, not a stone in sight, beautiful orchards of oranges, lemons, almonds and olive trees, and very large vineyards. The snow capped mountains of Sierra Nevada are seen in the distance from the Bell tower at Alhambra, the sight is very fine. The Alhambra is an American wonder. It is the greatest Cathedral, one of which we visited, was very fine. Here we saw the metallic casements of Ferdinand and Isabella, some very fine paintings, and rich altars. The immense costly organs, marble columns, arches and domes. Here about 900 met Sunday morning and worshiped God and then we went out and saw the rest of the day, when in season, attending bull fights or conducting business, gambling and everything else that is bad. This information was given to us by Clark's guide, who was with us in our car. The wages paid to farm hands is six or eight cents per day and board, which consist of bread, oranges and olive oil. They make a soup from this and live upon it. At the mines they pay 25 cents per day and board. The servant girls receive two dollars per month and are allowed to see their sweet hearts every evening for half an hour and on Sunday afternoon and evening. But their work is worth 62 cents per pound. It is imported from England. Coal $8 per ton; this is also imported.

DAMAGES TO LA CHAMPAGNE.

Survey of the French Steamer in a Halifax Dock.

Halifax, N. S., March 9.—The recently disabled French steamer La Champagne is at the dock discharging her cargo and a survey has made an examination of her stern. The propeller and shaft have shifted from the outside of her stern, bearing over 13 inches, until the blade of the propeller strikes hard against her stern. There is no sign of a hole or break in the stern plates and the rudder and propeller are intact.

MEDITERRANEAN LETTER.

C. D. Winter Graphically Describes His Trip Through Morocco.

The following letter, received by Mr. Willman from Mr. C. D. Winter, who is on a trip to the Holy Land, will doubtless be of interest to our many readers in Jersey:

H. A. Willman, Naples, Feb. 20, 1898.

Dear Sir: We arrived at this port at 6 a. m. We have visited Gibraltar, Malaga, Granada, Algiers and are now ready to start for Naples, Yessouia and Tunis. Gibraltar is all and more than it is described to be. New scenes of things unheard of and least expected loom before our eyes. We saw many soldiers, some in uniform, some in red-coated soldiers engaged in their various drills, as well as on duty. We examined their forts, galleries, guns, gardens, streets, buildings, custom of life. Here we meet hordes of beggars of all description. The Spanish markets are well kept. They are the greatest cheats I ever saw. The more they have the more they bring their products from their little farm on the back of a donkey. This animal is of great value to the farmer and them in use in all places we have visited. All these sights are very amusing to us. "His" means J. J. W. H. James and myself. We travel together; hire a carriage and take in all we can see, and find it very much the best way to travel. We have had lots of fun in Malaga and Malaga is a beautiful city. The climate and scenery are simply grand. The trip through the country was the greatest ride of my life. Passing farms as level as a table, not a stone in sight, beautiful orchards of oranges, lemons, almonds and olive trees, and very large vineyards. The snow capped mountains of Sierra Nevada are seen in the distance from the Bell tower at Alhambra, the sight is very fine. The Alhambra is an American wonder. It is the greatest Cathedral, one of which we visited, was very fine. Here we saw the metallic casements of Ferdinand and Isabella, some very fine paintings, and rich altars. The immense costly organs, marble columns, arches and domes. Here about 900 met Sunday morning and worshiped God and then we went out and saw the rest of the day, when in season, attending bull fights or conducting business, gambling and everything else that is bad. This information was given to us by Clark's guide, who was with us in our car. The wages paid to farm hands is six or eight cents per day and board, which consist of bread, oranges and olive oil. They make a soup from this and live upon it. At the mines they pay 25 cents per day and board. The servant girls receive two dollars per month and are allowed to see their sweet hearts every evening for half an hour and on Sunday afternoon and evening. But their work is worth 62 cents per pound. It is imported from England. Coal $8 per ton; this is also imported.

And many well kept stores and hotels occupied largely by the French, who are very polite and far better than the Turk. We pass the American consular home, the English church and school, which are very nicely located and are very attractive in appearance. We pass statutory, hospitals, and stop at the governor's palace. It is a finely kept summer home with fine kept groves, gardens, drives, paths all bordered with flowers, many now in bloom. Here we see a very common tree loaded with precious fruit, the palm tree, and the nicest palms you ever saw. The almond tree is now in bloom, it looks like our chestnut trees when in bloom. The palace is beautiful, some of its carvings compare favorably with the lace carvings of the Alhambra. We go to one of the finest hotels in Algiers. It is very attractive, having its gardens of flowers and fruit, and the location gives a fine view of the sea and city. We are allowed to visit the reception room, dining room, ball room, reading room and parlor. We then visit the tropical garden. There we see the very common Palm avenue. The streets are over-shadowed by palms; then Banana avenue, covered with banana and so on. We see banana groves, also groves of oranges, lemons, the rubber trees, paper and dozens of other kinds. Our visit here is interesting and could only wish you all could see them. Here we see the ostriches. As we are going from place to place we are passing Moors going and returning. Here we see a very common sight to see dozens lying asleep with their turban cap for a pillow and only an old, dirty cloth around them, with bare feet protruding from the very fine race track, the French soldiers were drilling as we passed. We visit a Moorish burial ground and this Friday is their Sunday and they carry flowers to their graves, as well as food, and pray and lament. It was a startling sight. The women, dressed in black, from what I could see of them there is no danger of anybody starting at them. And so we pass on witnessing sight after sight.

In the afternoon we visit the poorer part of the city, the quarters of the Moors. We enter their homes of filth and poverty and have the greatest day of our life. An glad we came, the cost is nothing to the sights and enjoyment. We see the homes of the poor, the poor and we have had perfect weather and no sign of storm are in view. We are well.
