HERALD FELL ASLEEP.

Dozed Off in the Arms of the Leader. It is Called Consolidation. The Evening Herald fell quietly and peacefully asleep in the arms of the leader yesterday afternoon. For the first week—a few holidays being excepted—in about four years it failed to appear. The failure was explained in both papers Tuesday in these words: "Owing to recent disposition of business in this city and vicinity, the publishers of The Herald and The Leader have decided to follow the rule of all commercial enterprises under such circumstances, and have consolidated the two papers."

However, the Herald forms no part of the Leader's enterprise and in reality the Herald has ceased to be. It owned no plant, having been printed by S. F. Carpenter, who retains all the type and machinery. The Leader has simply acquired the good will of the business and with it the services of the editor, Frederick F. Forbes, who is one of the ablest newspaper men in the county.

The Herald was started by Professor H. J. Hokenberry, G. R. Samson and S. F. Carpenter. It prospered until the Morning Anthracite divided the field into thirds. The last named soon succumbed, but while it lived the Herald suffered and one judicious move after another prevented it from reaching lost prestige. About two years ago Mr. Forbes purchased Mr. Samson's interest and a little later Messrs. Carpenter and Forbes bought out Professor Hokenberry.

On Tuesday evening a meeting of the borough council was held. All members responded to the roll call except Messrs. Patton and Lewis. Various borough and electric light bills were then read and passed upon.

Burgess McNulty presented a petition signed by a large number of the property owners in the Second ward, asking council to appoint two paid night policemen to protect property in that portion of the borough. The petitioners are willing to pay a part of the salaries of said officers, the remainder to be borne by the borough. Mr. McNulty also reported that Fernis street was in a very unsanitary condition, caused by the waste water from private properties flowing into the street.

The borough suggested that the council erect an electric light lamp on the fountain at Mahon's square. The burgess stated that Jones & Son, in erecting a new store on Lackawanna street, passed beyond the building line, and were encroaching on the borough property to the extent of nearly two feet. It was explained to the council, however, that Mr. Jones will have the building moved to the proper line. The new house company asked council to appropriate about two hundred feet of hose for their use, as the hose they now have is about worthless. The required amount will be secured from the Excelsior Hose company. A fire hydrant will also be put in on the flats.

An ordinance providing for the paving of Lackawanna street, paved first and second readings. The ordinance specifies that the proposed pave is to be of vitrified brick, laid on a concrete base. Two-thirds of the cost of the pave is to be paid by the property owners abutting on the street, the balance to be borne by the borough, and a five years' lien is allowed for payment. The work is to be done under the supervision of Civil Engineer A. B. Dunning, of Scranton.

The police ordinance passed two readings and a petition was read from taxpayers in the central part of the town, asking council's permission to construct a sewer along Delaware and Lackawanna streets. A committee was appointed to confer with the property holders. When the borough's standing is known a series of bonds will be issued to pay off the indebtedness. The meeting adjourned to meet next Tuesday evening.
