The report of the Scranton Clearing House association for last week shows that the exchanges amounted to $1,006,241.45, a condition of the money market that had not been felt for many months. EIGHT MEN MEET A TERRIBLE DEATH. ONE OF THE WORST MINE ACCIDENTS ON RECORD.

Three Loaded Coal Cars Plunge Down the Exeter Shaft and Near the Foot Crash into a Descending Carriage Containing Ten Men—Seven Are Killed Instantly, One Is Fatally Injured and the Two Others Are So Badly Crushed That Their Lives Are Despaired of.

One of the most horrifying mine accidents ever chronicled in the anthracite region occurred Saturday at the Exeter colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal company, in Exeter borough. Three loaded mine cars plunged down the shaft and struck a descending carriage containing ten men, killing seven outright, injuring one so badly that he has since died, and inflicting on the other two possibly fatal injuries. The victims are all foreigners.

LIST OF THE KILLED. JOSEPH ANDRUSKIS, Exeter, Pole, aged 39, miner; wife and child in Poland. MICHAEL SMITH, Pittston, Russian, aged 40, miner; married, three children. ANDREW PINCHO, Exeter, Hungarian, aged 40, married, two children. JOSEPH CLOCK, Exeter, Austrian, aged 21, miner; married. MICHAEL PODSALANSKY, Exeter, Austrian, aged 40, miner; wife and children in Austria. MICHAEL WASLOWSKI, Exeter, Austrian, aged 25, miner; unmarried. MICHAEL BRADZUKA, Exeter, Austrian, aged 28, laborer; unmarried.

FATALLY INJURED. JOSEPH WINSLOW, Sturtevant, Hungarian, aged 28, laborer; wife and six children. (Died at 1 o'clock yesterday morning at the Pittston hospital). INJURED. WILLIAM FUKAS, Pittston, Pole, aged 28, laborer; unmarried; boy, eight-year-old, injured.

CAUSE OF ACCIDENT. The accident was due to a misplaced switch. A trip of six cars was being run from the Red Ash mine, quarter of a mile away, to the Exeter breaker, where the cars were to be dumped and prepared for market. A small locomotive is used to haul the cars between the Red Ash and the Exeter. Engineer David Price and an assistant, Clinton Anthony, a 17-year-old boy, were running a trip Saturday morning at a quarter past 6 o'clock. Instead of keeping coupled to the trip they cut the engine loose, several rods from the shaft, and ran it into a switch "on the fly," allowing the cars to pass by and on toward the breaker without any one attending to them.

THAT AWFUL AVALANCHE. The first three cars plunged down the shaft. The coupling broke between the third and fourth cars and it was halted on the edge of the shaft with its forward wheels in the opening. The shaft is 250 feet deep and the carriage was within ten feet of the bottom. It is estimated, when the awful avalanche came down upon it, that the cars and their load, and the men and wounded men were wedged in a solid mass that blocked the opening into the workings and reached for some distance to the shaft.

Mr. Burke is a tax collector and was called to give a list of those who paid their taxes. Mr. Holgate was looking for men who had voted and not paid taxes, and he claims the information furnished by Mr. Burke was the means of discovering a few.

TOUCHED ON POLITICS. Number of the Sermons Delivered by City Pastors Yesterday Had Reference to the All-Abstaining Topic.

That the church, as a relative force, is deeply interested in the politics of God was evidenced by the many sermons which were preached from pulpits in different sections of this city at one or the other of yesterday's regular services. Though the political issues in the state are enlivened by the candidacy of an eminent representative of the Methodist denomination, only one minister of that denomination announced a topic for discussion yesterday that touched on politics. The preponderance of sermons of a political nature were delivered in the Baptist churches.
