

EVENTS OF DAY IN WEST SCRANTON

REV. DEGRUCHY SCORES THOSE WHO WHISPER AT SERVICE.

Interesting Sermon Upon John Bunyan's "Life and Works"—Illustrated with Stereopticon Views. Frank Meyers Fatally Injured at Capoue Colliery—Last Sermon Upon Prodigal Sons and Daughters Postponed by Rev. J. P. Moffatt. Several Funerals—Many Accidents

Rev. Thomas de Gruchy, of the Jackson Street Baptist church, gave an illustrated sermon last evening to a very large audience. This was the first of a series of lectures to be given by him on "The Life and Work of John Bunyan."

Preceding his sermon Rev. de Gruchy spoke a few words of advice to the people who go to church and whisper and otherwise pass away the time to the detriment of others who attend services of worship. In his introductory remarks the speaker said that "John Bunyan belonged in history to the period known as the Restoration and was born over three hundred years ago. His education was scanty, but nature had endowed him with many talents. He lived in a time when the commonwealth was nourished in the blood of his people. John Bunyan was a Baptist, an ardent religious liberty."

Beginning with tonight, the revival services of the above congregation will be resumed under Mr. Neale's direction. The services this evening will be held in the Plymouth Congregational church on Jackson street, and later meetings will be announced in this Tribune.

INJURIES CAUSED DEATH. Frank Meyers, aged 29 years, a miller employed in the Capoue mine, received injuries while at work Saturday which resulted in his death. He was engaged in cutting coal when a part of the roof fell, crushing his head and injuring him internally.

SEVERAL POSTPONED. Rev. J. P. Moffatt, of the Washburn Street Presbyterian church, who has been preaching some interesting sermons on "The Prodigal Sons and Daughters," had announced the third sermon for last evening's service in "The Prodigal Daughters' Return and Reception," but stated last evening that owing to the lack of time necessary for its preparation, he deemed it advisable to postpone it until a later date. He said the subject involved so many points of interest that he could not do it justice were he to have given the sermon last evening.

TO MRS. PINKHAM. From Mrs. Walter E. Budd, of Patchoquo, New York.

Mrs. Budd, in the following letter, tells a familiar story of weakness and suffering, and thanks Mrs. Pinkham for complete relief.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I think it is my duty to write to you and tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I feel like another woman. I had such dreadful headaches through my temples and on top of my head, that I nearly went crazy, was so troubled with chills, was very weak; my left side from my shoulders to my waist pained me terribly. I could not sleep for the pain. Plasters would help for a while, but as soon as taken off, the pain would be just as bad as ever. Doctors prescribed medicine, but it gave me no relief.

"Now I feel so well and strong, have no more headaches, and no pain in side, and it is all owing to your Compound. I cannot praise it enough. It is a wonderful medicine. I recommend it to every woman I know."

game and Coons, were injured on Saturday evening while coasting on Jackson street. They ran into a telegraph pole.

FUNERALS ON THIS SIDE. Many relatives and friends of the late Mrs. Lydia Phillips gathered at the deceased's residence, 1511 Jackson street, yesterday afternoon to attend the services over her remains.

While Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McDonough were walking along rink street Saturday they both fell and each suffered a fracture of their left arm.

W. E. Thomas slipped and fell on North Hyde Park avenue Saturday morning and fractured two of his ribs on the right side.

Bert Lowry, son of Permanent Man John Lowry, of the Franklin Engine company, while coasting on Lafayette street was seriously injured. He was taken to his home on Hand shed, where his wounds were dressed.

A wagon and team slid down Lackawanna avenue hill on to the Delaware Lackawanna and Western tracks Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock and the wagon was badly damaged. The team was caught before any serious trouble ensued. Clarence Frederic was the driver.

Mrs. John T. Lewis, of 1204 Elyon street, slipped and fell on the icy steps leading from her house yesterday afternoon and fractured her arm. Dr. J. J. Roberts was called and attended the injured woman.

Two boys, whose names are Burlington, of Wilkes-Barre, are the guests of Miss Annie Miles, of Hampton street. Mrs. Richard Hall and daughter, Adaline, contemplate a trip to Florida this week.

Dr. and Mrs. E. Y. Harrison have commenced housekeeping at the corner of Main avenue and Jackson street, over Musgrave's drug store.

T. J. Reynolds, of South Main avenue, leaves today for a business trip through northern New Jersey.

GATHERED IN SOUTH SCRANTON

ST. JOHN'S FAIR COMES TO A CLOSE WITH SUCCESS.

Rev. E. J. Melley, who was in charge, Not Prepared to Speak of Actual Results—It is Expected, However, That About $12,000 Will Be Realized—Winners of Prizes—Workman Narrowly Escapes Death—Mr. Smith, of Moosic, Injured—Other Accidents.

The fair held under the auspices of the congregation of the church of St. John the Evangelist for the past five weeks in the church hall on Erie street, came to a close Saturday night. Unquestionably the fair was as successful, and perhaps, the most successful, of any similar undertaking conducted in the city. At the three masses celebrated at St. John's church yesterday, Rev. E. J. Melley made remarks to his flock with reference to the result of the fair. He said that he was delighted that he was almost unable to express his feelings. At this time he could not give even a rough estimate of the amount realized. He will, however, be prepared by next Sunday to give the figures to his parishioners. Father Melley in his remarks made a significant statement. Early in the spring the retiring pastor said that work will be commenced upon the new edifice for his growing congregation.

Judging from this, it is safe to say that the amount of money realized at the fair will run into the thousands of more than one figure. A leading member of St. John's congregation, speaking to a Tribune reporter yesterday, gave as his opinion that between $10,000 and fifteen thousand dollars will be the result of the fair.

The closing night of the fair was an interesting one. The contest between Misses Julia Donnelly and Miss Tillie Magee for a diamond ring, which was waged with a lively, but good natured rivalry, ended with Miss Magee being victorious, she having to her credit $1,000.00, while Miss Donnelly had $600.23. The amount collected by the young ladies and their friends was a huge surprise. Little Winifred Walsh, a 10-year-old girl, of South Washington avenue, won the piano, valued at $400 and donated by J. W. Guernsey. Edward Carey held the lucky number which took the organ presented by Perry Brothers. Michael Langan, Jr. took the first prize in the drawing for a splendid portrait of St. Vincent, M. J. Hoban was taken by T. H. Walsh, the merchant of railroad avenue. Miss Mary Edwards, on a ten cent chance, won $25 in gold. The contest for the beautiful hand-drawn portrait of Miriam Manley and Anna Dougherty resulted in favor of Miss Manley. She is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James A. Manley.

WORKMAN'S NARROW ESCAPE. Ferdinand Curtis, of Stafford avenue, an employe at the North mill of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company, went through a thrilling ordeal Saturday morning. His work is on the charging floor, and while pursuing his routine duties, the sprocket of his overalls was caught in the cogs of a machine, which fortunately was moving slowly. With remarkable presence of mind Curtis realized the peril of his condition and springing backwards he freed himself.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

MINOR NEWS NOTES.

George T. Griffiths, a corporal in Company F, Thirtieth regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, underwent an operation in the regimental hospital. His recovery is certain. Emily Jones, who underwent an operation at the West Side hospital recently, is rapidly improving.

The fair held under the auspices of the congregation of the church of St. John the Evangelist for the past five weeks in the church hall on Erie street, came to a close Saturday night. Unquestionably the fair was as successful, and perhaps, the most successful, of any similar undertaking conducted in the city. At the three masses celebrated at St. John's church yesterday, Rev. E. J. Melley made remarks to his flock with reference to the result of the fair. He said that he was delighted that he was almost unable to express his feelings. At this time he could not give even a rough estimate of the amount realized. He will, however, be prepared by next Sunday to give the figures to his parishioners. Father Melley in his remarks made a significant statement. Early in the spring the retiring pastor said that work will be commenced upon the new edifice for his growing congregation.

Judging from this, it is safe to say that the amount of money realized at the fair will run into the thousands of more than one figure. A leading member of St. John's congregation, speaking to a Tribune reporter yesterday, gave as his opinion that between $10,000 and fifteen thousand dollars will be the result of the fair.

The closing night of the fair was an interesting one. The contest between Misses Julia Donnelly and Miss Tillie Magee for a diamond ring, which was waged with a lively, but good natured rivalry, ended with Miss Magee being victorious, she having to her credit $1,000.00, while Miss Donnelly had $600.23. The amount collected by the young ladies and their friends was a huge surprise. Little Winifred Walsh, a 10-year-old girl, of South Washington avenue, won the piano, valued at $400 and donated by J. W. Guernsey. Edward Carey held the lucky number which took the organ presented by Perry Brothers. Michael Langan, Jr. took the first prize in the drawing for a splendid portrait of St. Vincent, M. J. Hoban was taken by T. H. Walsh, the merchant of railroad avenue. Miss Mary Edwards, on a ten cent chance, won $25 in gold. The contest for the beautiful hand-drawn portrait of Miriam Manley and Anna Dougherty resulted in favor of Miss Manley. She is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James A. Manley.

WORKMAN'S NARROW ESCAPE. Ferdinand Curtis, of Stafford avenue, an employe at the North mill of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company, went through a thrilling ordeal Saturday morning. His work is on the charging floor, and while pursuing his routine duties, the sprocket of his overalls was caught in the cogs of a machine, which fortunately was moving slowly. With remarkable presence of mind Curtis realized the peril of his condition and springing backwards he freed himself.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

Undaunted by his misfortune, he gave it up, and in severing his connection therewith wrote a most remarkable "editorial obituary" of the Republican. This was reprinted in several newspapers and publications at that time. Removing to Scranton he secured employment on the Republican as a compositor, but being longed for editorial work, he took a sabbatical leave and returned to his old job back to Tunkhannock, when he became the manager of the Republican, then owned by Perry Moran. He remained in that position eight years, at the end of which Mr. Moran died and the paper again became involved financially.

REMEDY FOR THE GRIPPE.

A remedy recommended for patients afflicted with the Grippe is Kemp's Balsam, which is especially adapted to the cases of the throat and lungs. Do not wait for the first symptoms of the disease, but get a bottle today and keep it within reach of the moment it is needed. If neglected the Grippe has a tendency to bring on pneumonia. The Balsam prevents this by keeping the rough throat. All druggists sell the Balsam.

THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE. Published Monday, February 6, 1899. Office: 150 North Third Street. Telephone: 150. Entered as Second-Class Matter, February 1, 1897. Postoffice at Scranton, Pa., under No. 150. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized by Act of October 3, 1917. Paid in Advance for 1899, $1.00. Single Copies, 5 Cents. Yearly, $5.00. Foreign, $10.00. Subscriptions in Advance. Advertising Rates: First Edition, 10 Cents per Line; Second Edition, 7 Cents per Line; Third Edition, 5 Cents per Line. Long Copying, 2 Cents per Line. Display Advertising, 10 Cents per Line. Special Rates for Long Copying. The Scranton Tribune is published every Monday, except on public holidays. It is published for the Proprietor by the Scranton Tribune Co., Scranton, Pa. Copyright, 1899, by the Scranton Tribune Co. All rights reserved.

THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE. Published Monday, February 6, 1899. Office: 150 North Third Street. Telephone: 150. Entered as Second-Class Matter, February 1, 1897. Postoffice at Scranton, Pa., under No. 150. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized by Act of October 3, 1917. Paid in Advance for 1899, $1.00. Single Copies, 5 Cents. Yearly, $5.00. Foreign, $10.00. Subscriptions in Advance. Advertising Rates: First Edition, 10 Cents per Line; Second Edition, 7 Cents per Line; Third Edition, 5 Cents per Line. Long Copying, 2 Cents per Line. Display Advertising, 10 Cents per Line. Special Rates for Long Copying. The Scranton Tribune is published every Monday, except on public holidays. It is published for the Proprietor by the Scranton Tribune Co., Scranton, Pa. Copyright, 1899, by the Scranton Tribune Co. All rights reserved.

THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE. Published Monday, February 6, 1899. Office: 150 North Third Street. Telephone: 150. Entered as Second-Class Matter, February 1, 1897. Postoffice at Scranton, Pa., under No. 150. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized by Act of October 3, 1917. Paid in Advance for 1899, $1.00. Single Copies, 5 Cents. Yearly, $5.00. Foreign, $10.00. Subscriptions in Advance. Advertising Rates: First Edition, 10 Cents per Line; Second Edition, 7 Cents per Line; Third Edition, 5 Cents per Line. Long Copying, 2 Cents per Line. Display Advertising, 10 Cents per Line. Special Rates for Long Copying. The Scranton Tribune is published every Monday, except on public holidays. It is published for the Proprietor by the Scranton Tribune Co., Scranton, Pa. Copyright, 1899, by the Scranton Tribune Co. All rights reserved.

THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE. Published Monday, February 6, 1899. Office: 150 North Third Street. Telephone: 150. Entered as Second-Class Matter, February 1, 1897. Postoffice at Scranton, Pa., under No. 150. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized by Act of October 3, 1917. Paid in Advance for 1899, $1.00. Single Copies, 5 Cents. Yearly, $5.00. Foreign, $10.00. Subscriptions in Advance. Advertising Rates: First Edition, 10 Cents per Line; Second Edition, 7 Cents per Line; Third Edition, 5 Cents per Line. Long Copying, 2 Cents per Line. Display Advertising, 10 Cents per Line. Special Rates for Long Copying. The Scranton Tribune is published every Monday, except on public holidays. It is published for the Proprietor by the Scranton Tribune Co., Scranton, Pa. Copyright, 1899, by the Scranton Tribune Co. All rights reserved.

THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE. Published Monday, February 6, 1899. Office: 150 North Third Street. Telephone: 150. Entered as Second-Class Matter, February 1, 1897. Postoffice at Scranton, Pa., under No. 150. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized by Act of October 3, 1917. Paid in Advance for 1899, $1.00. Single Copies, 5 Cents. Yearly, $5.00. Foreign, $10.00. Subscriptions in Advance. Advertising Rates: First Edition, 10 Cents per Line; Second Edition, 7 Cents per Line; Third Edition, 5 Cents per Line. Long Copying, 2 Cents per Line. Display Advertising, 10 Cents per Line. Special Rates for Long Copying. The Scranton Tribune is published every Monday, except on public holidays. It is published for the Proprietor by the Scranton Tribune Co., Scranton, Pa. Copyright, 1899, by the Scranton Tribune Co. All rights reserved.

THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE. Published Monday, February 6, 1899. Office: 150 North Third Street. Telephone: 150. Entered as Second-Class Matter, February 1, 1897. Postoffice at Scranton, Pa., under No. 150. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized by Act of October 3, 1917. Paid in Advance for 1899, $1.00. Single Copies, 5 Cents. Yearly, $5.00. Foreign, $10.00. Subscriptions in Advance. Advertising Rates: First Edition, 10 Cents per Line; Second Edition, 7 Cents per Line; Third Edition, 5 Cents per Line. Long Copying, 2 Cents per Line. Display Advertising, 10 Cents per Line. Special Rates for Long Copying. The Scranton Tribune is published every Monday, except on public holidays. It is published for the Proprietor by the Scranton Tribune Co., Scranton, Pa. Copyright, 1899, by the Scranton Tribune Co. All rights reserved.

THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE. Published Monday, February 6, 1899. Office: 150 North Third Street. Telephone: 150. Entered as Second-Class Matter, February 1, 1897. Postoffice at Scranton, Pa., under No. 150. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Act of October 3, 1917. Authorized by Act of October 3, 1917. Paid in Advance for 1899, $1.00. Single Copies, 5 Cents. Yearly, $5.00. Foreign, $10.00. Subscriptions in Advance. Advertising Rates: First Edition, 10 Cents per Line; Second Edition, 7 Cents per Line; Third Edition, 5 Cents per Line. Long Copying, 2 Cents per Line. Display Advertising, 10 Cents per Line. Special Rates for Long Copying. The Scranton Tribune is published every Monday, except on public holidays. It is published for the Proprietor by the Scranton Tribune Co., Scranton, Pa. Copyright, 1899, by the Scranton Tribune Co. All rights reserved.

MUNYON'S GUARANTEE.

Strong Assertions as to Just What the Remedies Will Do.

Munyon's guarantee that his Rheumatism Cure will cure nearly all cases of rheumatism, that his Dyspepsia Cure will cure indigestion and all stomach troubles, that his Kidney Cure