COMMENCEMENT AT THE HIGH SCHOOL. EXERCISES ATTRACTED A VERY LARGE ASSEMBLAGE.

Class of '99 the Largest in the History of the School, Being Composed of Eighty-Two Members—Miss Elfrida Sylvester Was the Salutatorian and Charles E. Daugherty Valedictorian—Some Excellent Essays and Orations and an Entertaining Programme of Music. Again, for the third time this week, the auditorium of the high school was crowded to overflowing last night, when the twenty-third annual commencement exercises occurred. At the training school commencement and, at the class exercises, by this year's graduates, on the night before, there was not a vacant seat although the aisles and orchestra space were filled with chairs. Last night, all this space was occupied, and, at the rear of the hall, persons stood four deep, during the whole course of the exercises, while others stood on chairs in the corridors, happy in getting a glance at the stage through the doorways. Not a little difficulty was experienced in making a passageway through the rear of the auditorium for the graduates who came in from the recreation rooms and passed down the two main aisles to the stage, the boys on one side and girls on the other. They ascended the stage from opposite sides in a simple file and passing behind a screen made of the school colors, purple and gold, emerged in pairs at an opening in the center and walking to the front separated and took seats in tiers on either side.

UNDERGRADUATES CHEERED. Cheering was continuous from the undergraduates while the march was in progress, an increase in its volume at times greeting the appearance of a star tackle or short stop or high hurdler. When all had been seated Bauer's orchestra played an overture and at its conclusion Rev. W. G. Simpson, D. D., gave the benediction, being introduced by the principal, Dr. George W. Phillips. A chorus, "Awake! Awake!" by the class, led by Professor C. B. Dorman and accompanied by Bauer's orchestra and Charles Doersam, pianist, was the next number. It was excellently sung as were all the musical selections given by the class.

The salutatory was then given. It was delivered by Miss Elfrida Sylvester and was a very commendable effort. She took as the theme of her essay "Characteristics of American Poetry," contending that we now have a national poetry and can no longer be accused of copying British models. The high and pure degree of morality represented by the New England poets was held up as one of the greatest things to be admired in our poetry. The first oration was by James S. Gibbons, his subject being "Wireless Telegraphy." It was a thoughtful, well written and well delivered effort. His explanation of the uses to which wireless telegraphy could be put indicated no little originality of ideas. The class sang the chorus "Italia," after which Miss Mabel Need with "A Point of Honor" as her text, gave a clever dissertation on "Gibbs" and by the play clearly and thoroughly making the deduction that "naught in late, but all in honor" was a honest utterance of the "force thing made weak by his own strength."

PLEA FOR PARKS. Miss Blanche Lidstone's plea for "Public Parks" contained some very apt and well-worded arguments, and no feature of it was commonplace. She regretted that there were children in the large and crowded cities who were thoroughly schooled in vice before they knew the first principles of foot ball, and was pleased that there are those who would "refer to see the grass grow yellow beneath the feet of the children, than green above their graves."

In crying out against the advertising agents who have been permitted to clutter the rocks to meet the park with their business announcements, she told of the surprise that resulted to one of her girl friends who took a photograph of her brother and his particular baby and at an especially picturesque spot in the park and which, upon being developed, disclosed a background which had as its most prominent feature the glaring catch-word of an insect powder, "Dead Stuck." Miss Flora Levi, with violin obligato by Prof. Bauer, was one of the best received numbers of the programme. "Walter Benedict, in an oration on "Nelson and Dewey," evinced a thorough technical knowledge of the two great naval battles in which these famous admirals won their laurels. Dewey's achievement at Manila was proven by his arguments a far more glorious one than that of Nelson at Trafalgar, and he argued that the great American admiral's place in history should by no means be second to that of the Englishman. "Liquified Air," which is at present causing so much discussion in scientific circles and wonderment among the laity, was the subject of a very clever essay by Miss Pearl Treverton. The first part of the programme was brought to a close with the rendition of the "Vandervilt University March" by a string quartette composed of Miss Fraunfer and Sommar, Messrs. Morse and Moses.

SUMMER. The season is now with us when all things created seem to be with heat, and mankind especially is liable to be attacked in the weakest spot, according to his individual constitution, by sickness and disease. Some harmless stimulant is needed to rally the faded forces of nature to repel this attack. Take at such a time Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

ANALYSIS BY MISS GOULD. The orchestra opened the second part with an overture "The Dawn of Love," which was followed by a scholarly analysis by Miss Margaret Gould of "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner," with some interesting history of the poem and speculations as to its origin and motive. Leon Levy's oration, "Modern Chivalry," was filled with originality and was especially noteworthy for its pure and graceful diction. The Knight Errant, the Crusader, the ancient courtier may be no more, he said, but chivalry still lives and its highest type is pointed out, are found in the lowly fireman, the red cross nurse and the much-abused Salvation Army soldier, to say nothing of our gallant soldiers, such as Phillips, who on the bridge of the victorious Texas gave a foot note to history on his memorable abdication. "Don't cheer, boys; the poor fellows are dying."

A chorus from Verdi, "Oh! Hall Us Ye Free," by the class preceded the valedictory. Charles E. Daugherty was the valedictorian and he had as the subject of his oration "Trust." The discrimination of railroads in favor of large corporations and the power of these latter to control the press associations, in his mind, made trusts possible. In congressional action lay the only remedy, he believed. He was emphatically of the opinion that he was compelled to bow his acknowledgments.

Superintendent George Howell then presented the diplomas after one of his usually eloquent and timely addresses. THE LARGE CLASS. The class is the largest in the history of the school, containing eighty-two members, as follows: Classical Course—Mary Peck Hitchcock, Mary Rebecca Williams, Charles Earle Daugherty, Leon Levy, Rowell, Susan McMillen, Albert Motiska, William Henry Scranton. POLITICS WITH A LOCAL FLAVOR. PREPARING TO ELECT STATE DELEGATES.

Gentlemen Named by Judge Archbald Will Not Be Opposed—At the Convention Tuesday of the Republicans of the Third Legislative District a Set of Crawford County Rules Will Be Considered—Fall Campaign Is Already Attracting a Good Deal of Attention.

Today the first steps will be taken in this county in the direction of electing delegates to the Republican state convention, which will meet probably on Aug. 21 to nominate a candidate for justice of the supreme court, judge of the superior court and state treasurer. Two of the four legislative districts of the county today take the preliminary steps toward the selection of state delegates, each district being entitled to one.

The districts that take the initiative are the First and Third. The First is for the first time electing a delegate according to the Crawford county rules. Only one candidate has registered. Will R. Lewis is the man and in accordance with the rules Chairman W. A. Paine will call the legislative committee together Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. David's hall to certify that Mr. Lewis is the choice of the district for delegate and that Morris V. Morris is the choice for alternate. Mr. Morris is the only one who registered for that position. There will be no balloting today, as the candidates are unopposed.

Mr. Lewis is the gentleman named by Judge R. W. Archbald as his choice for delegate in the First district. E. M. Veroy is his choice in the Second, W. P. Griffiths in the Third and Hon. John P. Reynolds in the Fourth. None of these will have opposition, the Republican voters of the county in the court house to select the state delegate and alternate and pass upon a set of Crawford county rules to govern the primary elections of the future.

The delegates from the Third district will be selected according to the old method. To-day the Second and Fourth districts will take action on the election of state delegates. The Crawford county rules govern in both of these districts. On Monday, July 3, the return judges will meet to certify to the person elected. The Second district judges will meet in the court house in this city and the Fourth district in Burke's hall, Carbondale. The alleged conference at Atlantic City early in the week of a number of men prominent in the Republican circles of the state has been one of the main topics of discussion in political circles during the week. The reports of that conference are largely the work of imaginative newspaper writers who were anxious to make "a good story." If such a conference at the Philadelphia newspapers refer to was held, nothing of a serious import was considered at it. Judge Archbald had several warm friends in that party and if anything occurred there which would in any way prove harmful to his candidacy he would in all probability have had some intimation of it. Nothing of that kind reached him during the week.

The Keen Daily Republican, which is published in McKean county, the home of Judge Morrison, who is said to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for justice of the Supreme court, had the following comment this week on an editorial printed in the Philadelphia Times: "If Judge Yerkes or some other prominent candidate in the east had received the nomination, another reason would have been assigned for pushing Judge Archbald to the front. The friends of the gentleman who believed that his chances of obtaining his party nomination are good are not confined to Lackawanna county. They are quite in evidence in certain departments of the state government. In an advertisement Joseph Adams of Philadelphia, is a prime favorite for the Superior court nomination and the eyes of the people will not be closed as to the schemes which will be resorted to for securing the success of these two candidates."

The Philadelphia Times in its editorial says, "Belief is general that no matter who is nominated for the Supreme court that Joseph R. Adams, of this county, will be named by the Superior court to succeed Judge Beeber." The latter was named by Governor Hastings and it was thought until recently that he would not seek a nomination at the hands of his party. It now seems evident that he is very anxious to succeed himself, J. S. Lelensing, of Altoona, is also after the Superior court nomination.

No little interest is already being excited in the election of next November, when three county commissioners and as many county auditors will be elected. W. G. Thomas, formerly select councilman of the Fourth ward, has already declared with Secretary Adams, of the Republican county committee, as a candidate for the nomination of his party for county commissioner. Additional interest will be lent to this election by the fact that for the first time in this county the nomination will be made according to the Crawford county rules.

The Great 4-Cent Store. When the great 4-cent store burned down two months ago, Mr. John H. Ludwig, the proprietor, thought he would get well-earned rest during the erection of his new building. But his nature is of such a bustling, bustling character, that he finds no happiness in resting. And he is right into business again. Owing to the unsettled state of the building trade at present, his own premises cannot be ready for some months. His present temporary premises are far too small, and will be closed in a couple of weeks, and in order to accommodate the thousands of customers who used to flock to his old store, he has just leased the large five-story building at No. 423 Lackawanna avenue, formerly occupied by Clemons, Ferber & O'Malley. Mr. Ludwig has purchased from Millar & Peck the remainder of their splendid stock of bric-a-brac, china, and house furnishing goods, and these he is now offering at extraordinary low prices to close out, and he will at once have a complete new stock of goods such as he carried in his old store. Mr. Ludwig during his ten years in business has had a most successful career, and the main reason of this is because he has given the public better value for their money than can be purchased anywhere else. Notwithstanding the rapid advance of all kinds of goods, Mr. Ludwig states that he will be able to give his patrons many astonishing values. The public is cordially invited to give his new store at 423 Lackawanna avenue a visit.
