Scott's hotel on Lackawanna avenue, was yesterday sentenced by Mayor Mair to 100 fine or thirty days' imprisonment in the county jail. He had no money and was therefore committed to the jail. At the hearing he gave his age as 40 years, and said he was a switchman by trade, not living anywhere in particular.

CAVE AT MINOOKA.

Number of Buildings Were Damaged by the Sinking of the Surface Early Yesterday Morning.

About 2.30 o'clock yesterday morning, another cave-in occurred at Minooka. The surface settled in such a violent way that about fifteen houses were damaged.

The sinking was accompanied by a roar and rumbling, much more violent and loud than at last Tuesday's cave. The affected territory is near the Greenwood hill, along the main road. The surface has sunk from Kane's drug store on the north to within a short distance of Passolo's hall, the main road, street case track included, having settled about three feet. Thos. Walsh's large house, on the side of the road, was put entirely out of plumb, and now rests at a slanting angle. The house itself is badly damaged, the basement wall being broken, the porch warped and the chimney thrown down.

Two houses, owned by James Connolly are badly damaged, and Martin Walsh's home sunk about five feet. Another of Mr. Walsh's houses, in the rear of his lot, which is occupied by William Farnoff, suffered bad injuries, the foundation being torn, the partitions loosened, plaster being knocked off the walls, and other damages taking place.

Altogether about six acres of land sunk, and fell about five feet into the Corry mine's upper vein. It is a fortunate thing that the land sank in a uniform manner, as it thus prevented a great deal of loss.

An odd fact of the affair is that the houses which were thrown out of position by last week's cave-in are almost restored to their places by yesterday's accident.

The house of Festus Connolly, which was badly thrown out of place by the cave-in last Tuesday, is almost restored to its original position. The houses of Michael King, Patrick Dowell, Frank Toole, John Porter, Frank Kane, John King, Michael Egan and Mrs. Tully, also, were considerably damaged by the settling of the earth. Household articles and dishes were considerably ruined in all these places. Yesterday morning a force of men was sent out by the Scranton Railway company to repair its tracks, and therefore traffic was interfered with, although the track needs roadwidening.

John McDonough, John Wallace and Thomas Sullivan went into the mine yesterday morning and returned, reporting that the upper vein was yet "working" and very threatening sounds could be heard in the mine.

SWALLOWED A PIECE OF GLASS.

For Several Days It Was Feared Rabbi Karfunkal Would Die.

Rabbi Karfunkal, of the Hickory street synagogue, was yesterday pronounced out of danger by his physician.

The Rabbi had a most unusual experience the other day. A careless servant in opening a bottle of horseradish allowed a piece of broken glass to fall into the bottle and this was subsequently swallowed by Mr. Karfunkal.

For several days it was feared he would die.

PIANO WAS LEASED.

All this Mr. Guernsey denies. The piano, he says, was leased to them and they then entered into a contract, giving a judgment note to cover its value. When they defaulted in payment, execution was directed according to the terms of the contract.

A. A. Vosburg and J. F. Scragg represent the plaintiff. The defense is looked after by E. C. Newcomb, A. N. Walker and Ralph Terry.

The case of T. B. Jackson against Ira T. Barber is on trial before Judge Archbald. Mr. Jackson sues to force an accounting. He engaged Mr. Barber to raise a double house, and in doing so, according to Mr. Jackson's story, the house was damaged. He also alleges the work was not done according to contract. J. W. Carpenter represents the plaintiff and C. H. Soper the defendant.

Not Entitled to Relief.

Judge Edwards yesterday dismissed the bill in equity in the case of C. P. O'Malley against the Borough of Olyphant and Flanagan & O'Hara, contractor, ruling that the plaintiff did not bring his suit in time to take advantage of equity proceedings. The costs were placed on the plaintiff.

The Olyphant Sewer Drainage company secured a franchise in 1897 to construct a system of sewers in Olyphant. It appears the company did not take advantage of the franchise and the borough passed legislation to annul it and proceeded to construct a sewer in the First sewer district at the expense of the property holders and borough. A contract was awarded to Flanagan & O'Hara and the work was proceeded with.

The plaintiff came into court last March to secure an injunction restraining the contractors from doing any further work on the sewer, forbidding the borough from making any payments on the contract, alleging that the first franchise had not been renewed; that the ordinance and contract were defective, and that the borough's share of the expense, $2,600.50, would increase the indebtedness of the borough beyond the constitutional limit.

Judge Edwards finds that most of

COURT STARTS OFF WITH A BIG RUSH

SIX VERDICTS SECURED ON THE FIRST DAY.

Despite the fact that the Third Judge Did Not Arrive, a Big Hole Is Made in the Common Pleas List. In Four Cases There Were Verdicts Entered Because of the Non-Appearance of the Defendants—Judge Edwards Dismisses the O'Malley Equity Case.

Owing to the failure of Judge Gordon to arrive as expected, only two courts were in session in common pleas yesterday, when the third week of the November term began. Judge Archbald is presiding in the main court room and Judge Edwards sits in No. 2. Judge Gordon comes today, and will sit in the Superior court room, where a jury has been called and sworn to try the case of Smith against Loomis.

In the case of Harry M. Zeigler & Co. against Wood & Co. and the Dime bank, garnishee, a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $2,923 was directed. A verdict of $77.52 for the plaintiff was likewise directed in the wage case of George Brink against Westcott Stone, and for the plaintiff in the sum of $132 with interest from April 19, 1898, in the case of the Dickson Brewing company against Elizabeth Zeigler.

A verdict of $185.06 was returned in favor of the plaintiff in the case of the Traders' National bank against W. H. Stanton. The defendant endorsed a note of $150 for J. H. Shaw which was given to Thomas J. Conway and went to protest. No defense was offered in any of these four cases.

VERDICT FOR THORNTON.

In the case of Michael Thornton against John J. Gorman a verdict for $2 in favor of the plaintiff was rendered. Thornton worked for Gorman as a plumber for a number of years, and last spring upon leaving Gorman's shop had an accounting. There was a dispute over the figures and Thornton went into court, claiming a balance on his wage claim of $71. The jury allowed him the full amount of his claim plus one dollar for interest. A verdict of $72 in favor of the plaintiff was returned in the case of E. B. Decker against J. J. Morgan.

The case of J. W. Guernsey against W. C. Froud and others is being tried before Judge Edwards. The defendants gave the plaintiff a note for $150 to apply on a contract to purchase a piano. The defendants defaulted in the prescribed periodical payments and the plaintiff, under authority of a clause of the contract, entered judgment for the amount of the note. The defendants secured a rule to open judgment and are now offering as a defense the claim that after the lease or contract was signed by them in blank form, insertions were made which were contrary to the verbal agreement, and further that Mr. Froud, the plaintiff's agent, told the plaintiffs, assured them the judgment note would not hold against their property, but only against the piano. They also aver that when they learned from consulting Attorney A. N. Walker that the judgment note was against all their property they directed Mr. Guernsey to take back the piano.

the contentions of the plaintiff are correct, but rules that he is not entitled to relief in equity because the sewer in question was completed and properties along its route connected therewith at least four months before the complainant filed his bill. Judge Edwards says in the opinion accompanying the decision:

Regardless of the question as to the plaintiff's adequate remedy at law, under his exceptions, or in a defense to a municipal lien, we are clearly of the opinion that, through lack of, he has forfeited his claim to equitable relief. He saw or could have seen, the sewer being built, and the connections made, yet he stands by for four months after the work is done without moving for the relief he now asks in a court of equity.

The borough and the property owners have had the benefit of the improvement. Equity will not lend its aid in a case of this kind, where there has been an unreasonable delay in asserting the right claimed, and especially where the work sought to be restrained, has been fully completed. Therefore, on our part at this late day would be useless.

Says He Was Misled.

A rule was granted yesterday by Judge Edwards to show cause why judgment should not be entered in the case of Edward Daily against M. F. O'Boyle and Anthony O'Boyle. The application was made by Anthony O'Boyle through Hon. John J. Kelly, relief. Fourteen years ago the plaintiff, Edward Daily, and M. F. O'Boyle had a horse trade and the latter gave $125 to boot, which he insured with a judgment note. The note was never paid, and recently Anthony O'Boyle found an agent who acted against his property for the amount of the note and interest.

When he looked the matter up he found that he was held as one of the signers of the note. This, he avers, was a surprise to him. He does not deny the signature, but emphatically avows that he only signed it as a witness. He was ignorant of the manner of making up a note and did not know that he was signing it as a principal. He says he was requested to witness the note and complied with the request, as he supposed. The place where he signed was pointed out to him by the others as the space for the signature of the witness.

To Condemn a Toll Road.

Attorney Clarence Balestine was appointed master; Miss Mattie Thomas, stenographer, and A. B. Stevens, John J. Fahey, A. B. Dunning, Thomas D. Devan and Jacob Schaefer a jury of view to condemn the Ridge Turnpike road from the junction of the road from tolls and toll-gates.

The jury is to fix the amount of damages to which the company, in their opinion, is entitled, and report the same to court, together with the testimony taken in arriving at a judgment of the same.

Lackawanna Coal Company Sued.

A suit for $26,544 was yesterday instituted against the Lackawanna Coal company by Attorney I. H. Burns, acting for B. M. Winton, administrator of the estate of W. W. Winton, assigned to the Winton Coal company.

The suit is to recover royalties on coal mined from a 150 acre tract at Elkton, leased by the plaintiff to the defendant.

Final Lecture OF THE ART COURSE

GIVEN BY PROF. VAN LAER IN Parish Hall.

His Talk Was on American Artists. Lecture Began with the Pre-Revolutionary Artists—Interesting Incidents with the Stuart Portraits of George Washington Were Given. Fine View Given of the Bas-relief of William M. Chase, by St. Gandens—Other Views Shown.

The final number in the series of art lectures given by Professor Van Laer at St. Luke's Parish hall, concluded last night with a talk on American artists.

The professor is admirably equipped for this subject as he has made a special study of his American contemporaries and claims those who are working today are among his closest friends. He opened the lecture by showing a charming view of his own studio. Incidentally he said that no more cordial welcome can be accorded than that which American artists give to all visitors who are interested in their work, and that any of the great studios of New York an art lover will find a most pleasant greeting.

The lecture proper began with the pre-Revolutionary artists, including J. S. Copley, Gilbert, John Trumbull, Washington Allston and Thomas Cole. A fine example of Copley's work was given in the John Hancock portrait and an interesting incident in connection with the Stuart portraits of George Washington was given. There are but three original Stuarts, the first in the Boston museum, the second the Gibbs charming picture, and the last the Lansdowne full length in England. All the others are copies of those three painted from life. There are about thirty by Stuart and nearly ninety replicas by his daughter.

THE VOYAGE OF LIFE.

Thomas Cole was illustrated by the famous series, "The Voyage of Life," prints of which are now very valuable. William M. Hunt was depicted in his studio, and the story of his study under Conture, and his discovery of Millet was repeated. A detail of the Aurora Murat painting at Albany was shown.

Among the finest of the views given last evening was the bas-relief of Wm. M. Chase, by St. Gandens. This was followed by "The Nantucket School of Philosophy," by Eastman Johnson, which many will recollect as seeing at the World's fair.

Some of Dolph's kittens were pictured and the fact that H. P. Smith gets the highest price for his paintings at auctions in New York was mentioned.

A splendid cattle piece by William M. Howe was among the best things on the screen. A little maid by Maud Humphrey, several views by Bruce Crane and a Curran or two were shown. Winslow Homer was well represented. James Tyler's marines were among the best views, while Albert Thayer's Madonna and Charly struck a popular chord.

The late George Inness was given a prominent place, although no stereopticon could give even a faint idea of the rich green, the lush meadows, the noble trees from Inness' brush.

THE ILLUSTRATORS.

Frank DuMont as the illustrator of Mark Twain's "Jeanne D'Arc" was mentioned, and both Kersey Cox and his wife were among the artists who received pleasant notice. Danglefield was represented, although not by the Madonna so popular in the art stores.

John La Forge and his stained glass work were illustrated; J. Alden Weil, Clifford, Bolton Jones, George D. Parent Brush, E. Y. Turner, Benson Walker, Blasfield, Will Low, Bogart, Murphy, Shurtleff and Rehn were among others. Sargent and Puvion De Chavannes were briefly spoken of in connection with their great work in the Boston and Congressional libraries. J. G. Brown's "Mugwump" and "Her Favorite" represented that painter of
