CITY NOTES

SPECIAL PROGRAMME.—There will be a special musical programme at the Mission tonight, 111 Franklin avenue, at 7:30.

SALE OF SEATS.—Sale of seats for the "Spoungers" opens this morning at 9 o'clock for their entire engagement at the Academy of Music next week. Special Thanksgiving matinee.

MONTHLY MEETING.—The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Home Missionary society of the Second Presbyterian church will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the church parlors.

HAND CUT BY CAR.—Harry Hagan, a driver for No. 54 street car, Dunmore, had his hand caught under the wheels of a mine car yesterday and badly cut. It was dressed at the Lackawanna hospital.

CRUEL CONDUCT CHARGED.—James Boyce, of 230 Adams avenue, was yesterday held in $500 bail by Alderman Kason, on the charges of cruel conduct and non-support directed by his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Boyce. The latter alleges that her husband turned her out of doors and refused to support her.

PROGAN'S HAND CRUSHED.—Michael Progan, of Carson street, had his right hand badly crushed yesterday while at work at the Pine Brook shaft. It was struck by a ledge hammer as the result of the slipping of a block while he was holding. He had the wound dressed at the Lackawanna hospital.

TRUCK BY STEEL FRAME.—Michael Meyers, of 816 Wyoming avenue, was taken to the Lackawanna hospital yesterday morning with a broken right leg, the result of being struck by a steel frame while at work at the Lackawanna works on Cliff street. Meyers is 25 years of age and is employed as a laborer.

FEAST DAY.—Bishop Hoban celebrated mass at the chapel of St. Cecilia's convent yesterday, it being the feast day of St. Cecilia. After the mass he addressed the sisters and pupils, giving a brief sketch of the history of the women's club and the translation of her remains by Pope Paschal. The pupils of St. Cecilia's Academy were given a holiday afterwards in honor of the day.

LECTURE TO THE WOMEN'S CLUB.—J. M. Pennington, of the University of Pennsylvania, lectured upon "The History and Construction of the Piano" to the Green Ridge Woman's club tonight, at the Conservatory of Music at 8 o'clock. After the lecture a short programme of concerted and solo numbers will be rendered by the members of the faculty, Mr. Pennington, Miss French and Mr. Hufferstun. This is the first time that the piano has been used in the club and is open to all interested, both men and women.

TOMORROW'S FOOT BALL GAME.—Local patrons of foot ball will be given their last opportunity Saturday afternoon to see the fast team of youngsters who represent Scranton on the gridiron, chase the pigskin. Wilkes-Barre high school will be the opposing eleven, and the ginger game put up all season by the Lucernians assures a well contested match. The two elevens have met once this fall, and the local warriors were victorious. Tomorrow's game will be desperately contested on both sides, and there ought to be a large attendance to cheer on the boys.

GREAT DEMAND FOR SEATS.—It will be good news for those interested in the career of the local club and the interests of the Halmesman hospital to be told that the $100 and 25-cent seats for the operatic carnival for the night of December 1, are practically all sold. There has been an unprecedented demand for tickets and with the exception of the matinee performance very few good seats remain. As the matinee will be in every respect as complete and of as high a degree of excellence as the evening's entertainment, it is hoped that patrons will help to fill up the house for this time. A general rehearsal has resulted in a surprising degree of proficiency in the scenic programme and the public may be assured that it will be the best amateur effort ever given in this city. A. H. Storm, the business manager, has placed placards on all street cars and is moving with great success in his work of advertising the interests of the proposed affair.

DONATIONS FOR OCTOBER.—The directors of the Halmesman hospital appreciate receiving the following donations for the month of October: Miss Sanborn, reading matter; Mrs. Henry Bellin, Jr., medical supplies; Mrs. E. H. Watkins, one bolt muslin, one bolt canvas, two bolts flannel; Mrs. George Sanderson, bed spread, two blankets, curtains, towels, wash rag (Sanderson room); Mrs. R. S. Mactelle, bottle whiskey; Mrs. Hannah Jolly, fruit, old mulling; Lackawanna Dairy company, one and one-half gallons ice cream; Mrs. R. E. Botes, quantity cake, four tins; Mrs. P. P. Christian, six boxes crackers; Miss Maggie Costner, two cans fruit; Mrs. William Shuter, reading matter; A. Friend, fourteen cans fruit; Mr. Day's Sunday school class, Elm Park church, flowers; Mrs. N. G. Robertson, surgical supplies; Mrs. George Catlin, quantity milk; Herbert B. Cox, twenty-four shirts, seventeen pairs drawers, nine vests; Mrs. M. Deane, two infants' flannel dresses, lemon jelly, four baskets grapes; Mrs. George B. Smith, blanket; Mrs. Anna Diersam, reading matter; Mrs. Luten G. (Laford), two gallons ice cream; Mrs. H. B. Florence Weir conducted religious services, all music was contributed by Mrs. F. D. Brewster and Mrs. B. T. Jayne. Instrumental music by Charles Deenam.

TO INCREASE MEMBERSHIP.

Board of Trade Committee to Discuss Ways and Means.

The membership committee of the board of trade will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock for the purpose of considering ways and means for increasing the membership of the organization to at least 300, prior to the January meeting.

The plans under consideration is to have each member of the committee make an active canvass among the business men of the city in an endeavor to induce them to join the board. The question of dues is going to be the subject of much discussion.

Some of the members favor the reduction of the dues to one dollar, but the membership is increased, while others maintain that the dues should be kept at $25 a year, as at present. A compromise on $20 is expected.

PATRICK CARDEN A LUCKY ROGUE

Mistake in Identity Results in His Release from County Jail—An Ignored Bill the Cause.

The county jail authorities and Chief of Police Koblitz and the other local powers-that-be among the custodians of the law and order are deploring the escape from custody of Patrick Carden, a notorious burglar, who was committed to the county jail to await trial on the charge of obtaining goods under false pretences and who early this week was released from jail due to a case of more false pretences.

In the list of bills ignored by the last grand jury appeared a name similar to Carden's own and he was released from durance vile, the lock of his cell was turned and he walked forth a free man.

Shortly afterwards the individual the bill against whom was ignored in his bid for liberty and then the mistake was discovered. The police industriously scoured the city, but in vain, for Carden was gone.

Carden was arrested Monday, Nov. 11, by City Detective Moir and Patrolman Goetzlitz after he had disposed of about one hundred feet of hose at Carr's meat market which he had obtained at the Scranton Supply and Machinery company's establishment by representing himself as purchasing for the firm. The latter alleges that he is an out-of-town merchant and is considered an all around crook.

A BEAUTIFUL AT-HOME.

Given by Mrs. Edwin W. Gearhart Yesterday Afternoon.

Mrs. Edwin W. Gearhart gave a beautiful at home yesterday at her residence on Vine street. The chrysanthemum-adorned rooms were attractive to a degree and filled with a throng of handsome gowned guests they presented a brilliant appearance.

Mrs. Gearhart was assisted in receiving by Mrs. W. H. Gearhart. About the rooms were: Mrs. Edward L. Fuller, Mrs. T. H. Watkins, Mrs. H. C. Shafer, Mrs. G. M. Hallett and Miss Lillian Gearhart. Mrs. H. C. Barker and Miss Strong served frappe from a bower in the hall. Mrs. H. W. Kingsbury and Mrs. H. H. Brady, Jr., presided at the table in the dining room, where the colors were in pink, immensities boxes of pink satin ribbon being caught at the table corners. Mrs. Albert G. Wheeler, of New York; Miss Kipp, of West Pittston; Miss Augustus and Miss Bennett assisted in serving.

Mr. and Mrs. Gearhart entertained at a supper last evening, when the ladies who assisted and a few other friends were present.

G. B. DAVIDSON PRESIDENT.

He Is Now at the Head of Cornell Alumni.

At a meeting of the Cornell Alumni association at Wilkes-Barre Wednesday night, George B. Davidson, of this city, was elected president and F. L. Brown, also of this city, secretary. Harry L. Brown, of Plymouth, was treasurer.

The following from Scranton were present at the annual meeting and banquet: James Gardner Sanderson, T. D. Cummings, George B. Davidson, R. B. Williamson and C. R. Sanderson.

George B. Davidson responded to the toast, "The Scranton Alumni," and James Gardner Sanderson to "Cornell Stories."

ACCIDENT AT OLD FORGE.

Street Car Collides with Wagon Driven by Douglas Green.

While driving along the main road at the terminus of the Scranton Railway company's viaduct at Old Forge, Douglas Green, a Moose baker, had a narrow escape from death Wednesday evening. He had just reached the crossing at the end of the viaduct when a car came down the hill at a very rapid speed.

It collided with the wagon, killing both the horses drawing it, and hurling Green over the embankment onto the tracks of the Delaware and Hudson railroad company, where he was found lying in an unconscious state. He received serious injuries and was yesterday pronounced to be in a very critical condition.

Scranton Business College.

Since the ending of the strike students have been securing positions almost at the rate of one a day. Were Principals Buck & Whitmore able to qualify them rapidly enough the rate would be much higher. The demand is greater than the supply.

LOCAL FOOT BALL.

The Happy-go-lucky foot ball team would like to play the high school second team, Lackawanna school, Dunmore high school or any other team in the city under 125 pounds Thanksgiving morning on the Moses Taylor grounds. If satisfactory through The Tribune before Tuesday, Nov. 27, Palmer Park, Pa.

IN HONOR OF JUDGE KELLY

Dinner at Jermyn by Members of the Lackawanna Bar to Celebrate His Election.

THOSE WHO ATTENDED

W. A. Wilcox, as Chairman of the Committee Which Arranged for the Dinner, Introduced City Solicitor A. A. Vosburg as the Toastmaster of the Evening—Toasts Responded to by Judge Kelly, W. S. Diehl, George M. Watson, Frank L. Phillips, John M. Gunster, James Gardner Sanderson—Poem by Richard J. Beamish.

Lackawanna lawyers seem to never tire of displaying their admiration for Judge John P. Kelly, their brilliant young brother, whom their efforts as much, if not more, than anything else, elevated to the honorable position into which he recently came.

Last night they further attested this admiration with a complimentary dinner given at the Jermyn. And it was a compliment. It was probably the most representative assemblage of lawyers the county has ever seen, and each seemed to vie with the other in doing honor to the guest of the evening. The applause which greeted Judge Kelly when he was formally introduced at the conclusion of the dining table was a veritable ovation and the gray-haired senators and ex-judges among them were the most enthusiastic of the applauders. It was an honor that comes to few men at Judge Kelly's time of life.

Incidentally, it was also a highly enjoyable affair. As is their wont in all things, the lawyers "made the most of it" and as all who were present will agree the occasion was full of opportunity.

The very first speech was the signal for an outbreak of quips and jokes and good natured raillery that would put the clover leaf to shame. The wits of the bar were all there and they were at their best.

THE PLEASANTIES.

To be interrupted in the midst of a flowery bit of eloquence with a cry of "speech," or, if the address had the semblance of having been first confined to paper, to have it met with "hand up your papers," is not pleasant at least for the speaker, one would say, but with the lawyers it was taken for granted that a man is not to be "phazed" and so that sort of thing goes without offending.

Every one voted it a success and warmly congratulated the committee of arrangements, W. A. Wilcox, John R. Edwards, Clarence Ballentine, Walter Briggs, John M. Corbett, William H. Jessup, Jr., Frank M. Lynch, John F. Reynolds and Hon. M. F. Sande.

The dinner was preceded by an informal reception in the Turkish room. The lawyers, as they arrived, were ushered thither and presented to the guest of honor by the chairman of the banquet committee, William A. Wilcox.

At 9 o'clock, the dining began. The tables were arranged to form three sides of a triangle, with the orchestra occupying a place at the open end.

The inner side of the top table was vacant. The other side, however, the Spruce street end of the dining hall, was reserved for the prominent figures of the dinner.

At the center was the guest of honor, Judge Kelly. To his right, President John P. Archbold, ex-Judge W. H. Jessup, Frank J. McGaffrey, John M. Gunster and Richard J. Beamish, while on the left, in the order named, were W. A. Wilcox, chairman of the banquet committee; City Solicitor A. A. Vosburg, the toastmaster; ex-Supreme Court Justice George H. A. Knapp, W. S. Diehl, George M. Watson, James Gardner Sanderson, Hon. J. J. O'Neill and Hon. John P. Reynolds, of Carbondale.

THE OTHER GUESTS.

At the longer tables were: Major Everett Warren, Joseph O'Brien, Colonel Louis A. Waters, Walter Briggs, Frank M. Lynch, John M. Corbett, Clarence Ballentine, District Attorney-elect William R. Lewis, Robert J. Murray, George S. Horn, Thomas P. Duffy, Charles McMeans, Senator J. C. Vaughan, John F. Murphy, C. C. Donovan, J. M. Donahoe, John B. Jordan, Charles L. Van Wormer, W. H. Jessup, Jr., John J. Murphy, A. N. Walker, P. W. Stokes, James W. McDonald, Milton W. Lowry, T. J. Duggan, Edward Merrifield, M. J. Martin, W. W. Baylor, Hon. C. S. Malley, Court Justice George H. Coston, Willard M. Punnell, John M. Harris, R. H. Patterson, Hon. M. E. McDonald, Hon. M. F. Sande, L. B. Carter, George M. Ckell, Walter E. Gunter, Thomas Handley, Charles E. Daniels, R. H. Campbell, W. Thayer, Herbert L. Taylor, Assistant District Attorney W. Gaylord Thomas, O. B. Partridge, J. E. Burr, R. D. Stuart, Major E. D. Fellows, Charles E. Oliver, W. N. Curry, Thomas P. Wells, A. V. Bower, John R. Edwards, James J.

Waiting?

For what? Simple as the question is, one would be safe in stating dollars for one honest answer, considered from a common-sense standpoint. "The world is full of people who are WAITING—waiting for something to 'turn up.'" So long have their imaginations magnified their desires that, with the great majority, an aimless waiting has become a fixed habit—a sort of mania; and the dawning of Eternity's morning will find many of them still—waiting. A sad plight, indeed.

Where or when have waiting ways ever won success? Echo answers echo—"where, when?" No ACTION—steady action, alone, attains the advantage sought. Matters not how small the deed; only so it be constant in action—like success is assured.

Where or when have waiting ways ever won success? Echo answers echo—"where, when?" No ACTION—steady action, alone, attains the advantage sought. Matters not how small the deed; only so it be constant in action—like success is assured.

marked the conclusion of Judge Kelly's remarks.

Following Judge Kelly toasts were responded to as follows: "The Bench as Seen from the Bar," W. S. Diehl, "Wits of Estrempment," George M. Watson; "Compulsory Arbitration," Frank L. Phillips; "Worse and Verse," Richard J. Beamish; "The Junior Bar," John M. Gunster; "Torts," James Gardner Sanderson.

Mr. Diehl during a brief serious period of his response happened to say: "It is not for me to say how the bar looks upon the bench." "Don't, don't, keep that quiet," some one cried out and Mr. Diehl had to take a new tack. Mr. Diehl started to tell a story about Blackstone. Some one with serious air inquired: "Who the deuce is he?" and the laugh nearly "phazed" the speaker.

THE ABSENTEES.

Judge Edwards' absence was due to his being called to Doylestown to hear arguments in two cases tried before him some time ago. Illness prevented Colonel Fitzsimmons from attending and the lawyer was unable to attend. "The Senior Bar." A telegram of regret was received from Deputy Attorney General Fred W. Fleitz, who was unavoidably detained in Harrisburg.

Landlord Godfrey, evidently believing the lawyers were used to pretty good feeding. This is what he presented for their delatation:

- Blue Pointe Stuffed Olives
- Consomme, Montmorency
- Risoles of Oyster Crabs
- Fillet de Sole in Savoury Jelly
- Kidney Potatoes
- Supreme of Chicken
- French Peas
- Julienne Potatoes
- Broiled Quail on Toast
- Punch, Justice
- Venetian Salad
- Strawberry Charlotte
- Nesselrode Ice Cream
- Fruit
- Turkish Drip Coffee
- Toasted English Biscuits

TRIBUTE TO JUDGE KELLY.

The speech-making was opened by the chairman, Mr. Wilcox, in the following choice words:

Recalling the fact that when a bar dinner was last proposed a canvass resulted in finding less than a dozen who would take part, the present committee, it must be confessed, had some misgivings about undertaking a banquet of this kind. We can all see from the number here present how little excuse there was for question this time. True there are some who are not with us but we are glad to say that they have all been detained on unmanageable excuses. The committee have tried to extend the invitation to every member of the bar and have found no one but, being desirous to come and assist in celebrating the election of Judge Kelly because justly regarding him as a friend; as one of the most genial of men; and as one of the combined hosts of law, learning, intelligence and integrity will surely give new honor to and new confidence in the judiciary of our great Commonwealth.

Such a testimonial cannot but strengthen the high respect and confidence of him to whom it comes particularly when it is known that it is the spontaneous unanimous compliment of life's best friends, as well as present, without distinction of politics, age, sex, race, color or previous condition of servitude.

It is appropriate that this should be a record of cheer and acclamation. The toasts now read the speakers are a specially serious lot yet one sentiment there is which we may not pass which may appropriately be separated a little from the rest of the toasts. The committee have directed me to propose it myself before presenting the toastmaster of the evening.

Associated with the name of one who was with us when we last gathered around the banquet table, but absent, sadly so, tonight, it is a sentiment which will find quick response in all your hearts, and I ask that you will rise and drink it with me in silence. I propose to you "The Memory of Judge Kelly."

I take great pleasure in presenting to you the gentleman who has been selected to act as your toastmaster, Mr. Vosburg.

AN ELOQUENT SILENCE.

Mr. Wilcox was accompanied all through his address by a fusillade of happy "brings" and frequently interrupted for long periods by uproarious applause, but when he dropped his voice to propose a toast to the memory of Judge Gunster a deep hush fell over the assemblage and a silence that was more eloquent than the most expressive of words. The speaker rose and continued for many moments until the diners had resumed their seats.

The "Jollity," however, broke forth again as City Solicitor Vosburg was introduced as toastmaster. "Oh, Mr. Loughead," came from some one at the lower end of the upper table and it might be said laughter was kept up incessantly until the gathering broke up at midnight, except for the time that Judge Kelly was speaking.

Mr. Vosburg had an unusually large and excellent fund of good stories and he told them in his usual clever style. When he came to his reference to the guest of honor he showed that he could also be eloquent.

"This dinner," he said, "means just what it purports to mean. It is a cheering and joyful jubilee. Just as we express their admiration for one whom they regard as an extreme citizen, an ornament to the bar and an honor to the bench."

Judge Kelly was visibly affected by the reception he was accorded upon being presented by Toastmaster Vosburg. When the applause had subsided he proceeded to say:

JUDGE KELLY'S REMARKS.

"Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen: I thank you sincerely for this reception. I thank you heartily for the honor this dinner accords me. It is a serious moment for me; I can not attempt to be anything but serious in what I say to-night. There have been many changes with me during the past few months and they are due in a great measure, if not almost entirely, to the members of the bar. Accept my sincerest thanks for your kindness. I am in this regard for many things. I owe many things to the members of this bar. I owe to them seventeen years of pleasant practice; I owe to them my appointment; I owe to them, if not entirely, very largely, my election, and owe to them entirely this honor I receive tonight.

"I feel seriously the importance of the position into which I have been elevated. I appreciate the greatness of the man whom I succeed, that model judge, that model of integrity, the kind, just, courteous, able Judge Gunster. If I was assured I could in some measure fill the gap his departure has made I would be satisfied that my career on the bench would be eminently successful. I also realize what efforts are required for one to keep up to the standard of the local bench set by our worthy president Judge and the senior additional judge. What is expected of me I fully appreciate and I assure you I will strive my utmost to meet the requirements.

"I hope the good feeling, the mutual confidence which has existed between myself and other members of the bar will continue. Let me say along this line that the late campaign from which Brother Watson and myself have just emerged leaves no bitterness, no enmity in me. I have no scores to pay. The election is past and gone. This, I am glad to say, applies to every member of the bar. Again, gentlemen, I thank you most sincerely."

Round after round of applause

marked the conclusion of Judge Kelly's remarks.

Following Judge Kelly toasts were responded to as follows: "The Bench as Seen from the Bar," W. S. Diehl, "Wits of Estrempment," George M. Watson; "Compulsory Arbitration," Frank L. Phillips; "Worse and Verse," Richard J. Beamish; "The Junior Bar," John M. Gunster; "Torts," James Gardner Sanderson.

Mr. Diehl during a brief serious period of his response happened to say: "It is not for me to say how the bar looks upon the bench." "Don't, don't, keep that quiet," some one cried out and Mr. Diehl had to take a new tack. Mr. Diehl started to tell a story about Blackstone. Some one with serious air inquired: "Who the deuce is he?" and the laugh nearly "phazed" the speaker.

WRITS FOR ESTREMPMENT.

Mr. Watson told in a truly humorous vein, of his efforts to find out what "writs of estrempment" meant, making several happy hits on the judges and lawyers. In his concluding remarks, Mr. Watson said: "I had an old uncle who was wont to console me with, 'George, when it rains, let it rain.' Like Judge Kelly, I can say I hear no malice towards anyone as a result of the campaign we have just passed through. I am a firm believer in that good old American doctrine of majority rule being the law of the land. Judge Kelly, I congratulate you on your victory, and I hope you will fully fulfill every hope reposed in you, every promise you have made."

Three cheers for Watson were given with will and a "Writs of the matter with Watson" evoked a thunderous, "He's all right," and it had the true ring of heartiness to it.

Mr. Phillips' reputation as a storyteller suffered none by his effort last night. He concluded one of the best things of the evening, a toast which he says was loaned him yesterday by his friend, Marshall P. Wilder, whom he saw in New York at the horse show. It was, "Here's to our wives and our sweethearts; may they never meet."

Mr. Beamish read his poem at this juncture. It was provocative of an unending succession of laughter, applause and witty interruptions. It is as follows:

THE TALE OF BAYLOR'S POND.

Lakes there are where muskallonge
And many pike, like silver fishes,
Dart the reeds and rocks among
And make their pinnled dashes,
Rivers where the catfish hide,
And bays where lurks the hingly tarpon;
Paradise where abide
All kinds of fish that Walters harp on,
But none of these are Baylor's Pond.

A less than lake has all the glory,
Baylor's Pond lies deep and long
Not more, however, than my story.

Never yet was water famed
As is this little sheet in Benton.
Many Bittania have fished
A local right to pick a tent on
Mossy banks where, it is said,
One might behold most every minute
A dozen fishes leap their lead,
So Billy Baylor says to you
But the right of piscary
Brought cases Common Pleas and Oyer
And that's the reason why you see
They made of Billy B. a lawyer.

The celebrated Jaylove case
Sinks into desuetude entire
When opposite to it sits Judge
A local right to pick a tent on
Mossy banks where, it is said,
One might behold most every minute
A dozen fishes leap their lead,
So Billy Baylor says to you
But the right of piscary
Brought cases Common Pleas and Oyer
And that's the reason why you see
They made of Billy B. a lawyer.

When you were living time was dancing
When you were living time was dancing
That wondrous scene beyond all counting,
Billy Baylor asked a set
Of gallant fishermen to tarry
At the pond and there to go
More game fish than they could carry,
You should have seen the eager haste,
With which the lawyers seized their tackle,
Each suit to be each suit to be
And tread themselves from legal shades.

And then the stirring sport began,
Billed out a cast in one wild tussle
With his ear and Donovan
And M. F. Sande caught a baste,
Coston caught his bated breath,
And Herb-oh caught his ear for table,
I nearly caught his death,
While souse in water to his middle,
Coblet caught a "royal blue,"
McDonald caught two pairs of lugs,
McDonald caught two pairs of lugs,
And all the while, poor Billy Baylor, Hates.

Approve of this sad rhyme,
They happened lately an election
Which resulted in the time
In a most popular selection.
Every voter, I suppose,
But in an one vote his well wishes,
Judge Kelly has as many fees
As Baylor's pond that day showed fishes.

THE JUNIOR BAR.

During the course of an eloquent tribute to the "Junior Bar," Mr. Gunster referred in most complimentary terms to Judge Kelly, characterizing him as a man of peculiar fitness for the position he occupies; one who enjoys the respect of the whole community, and one who can be expected to add some new lustre and more renown to the Lackawanna bench.

Mr. Sanderson proved himself an entertainer of no mean ability and it was with regret that the assemblage saw him sit down, notwithstanding that it was then long past the midnight hour. He can be counted upon as a fixture on the programme of bar banquets.

EUCHE AND BANQUET.

Ladies' Night Observed by Scranton Council, Royal Arcanum.

The members of Scranton council, No. 923, Royal Arcanum, surrendered their rooms last night to the fair sex and gave a progressive euchre and banquet to their wives, sisters and the latter's friends. From 8:30 o'clock until about 10:30, euchre was played and then the two hundred persons present adjourned to the banquet hall and there partook of the tasty viands served by Caterer McQuibban.

Professor J. B. Hawker acted as toastmaster and called upon several of the present for addresses. Among those whom he summoned to speak were: Regent Thomas Russell, "The Good of the Order"; Past Regent W. H. Berry, "Our Gems"; Past Regent P. J. McGaffrey, "Something Good for All of Us"; District Deputy A. G. Hewitt, of Electric City Council, No. 57, of South Scranton, "Sister Councils." The committee in charge consisted of J. B. Hawker, chairman; W. H. Duggan, W. W. Berry, Meyer Davidson, F. S. Cooper and Edward Evans. Banquet music was present and played several selections during the game and banquet.

The ladies' first choice prize was won by Mrs. W. H. Lewis and Mrs. David Spruick took the consolation award. G. E. Evans won the gentleman's first prize and Arthur Dunn took the consolation gift.

OPENING WYOMING AVENUE.

Work Has Been Commenced by Donahue & O'Boyle.

The actual work of opening Wyoming avenue has been begun by Donahue & O'Boyle, who have been awarded the contract. They have a large gang of men at work and expect to be finished in about two weeks.

At the time the project of opening this street was first brought up the Delaware and Hudson company agreed to remove its sidings from that portion of the street to be opened. These are the tracks which run along the east side of the Wyoming avenue freight station. The company is now keeping its bargain and the work of removing these tracks to the westerly side of the station has begun.

Select Councilman John E. Roche, who has been the father of all the ordinances and resolutions connected with the opening of this street, stated yesterday to a Tribune man that he would not introduce any ordinances providing for the pavement of the street or laying of sidewalks until the next fiscal year.

It now appears that the viewers who assessed the damages to all property owners along the line of the improvement overlooked the property of Bernard Dolan, which faces Phelps street, and which overlaps the portion being opened just exactly thirty-four inches. The damages which he claims are between $1,000 and $1,200.

FUNERAL OF MR. THOMPSON.

Services Conducted Yesterday Afternoon from the Home.

The funeral of the late Cranford W. Thompson was held yesterday afternoon from the family residence on Sanderson avenue and was largely attended. The services were conducted by the Rev. J. J. Lansing, D. D., pastor of Green Ridge Presbyterian church. The burial was in Forest Hill cemetery.

The pall-bearers were J. F. Hanker, E. D. Williams, Arch Marvinne, William Bright and William Richmond, of this city, and George B. Thompson, of Pittston. Among those in attendance at the funeral were Edward H. Chase, est., of Wilkes-Barre, who many years ago was a business associate of Mr. Thompson, and Isaac Polts, of Taylor.
