

[Written for the Southerner.]

A Thought.

BY ROYAL.

How oft a long forgotten strain; Gently falling on the ear, Change all to joy and pain, Whispering of loved one's dear.

SPUNGIANA.

Some magnificent slanderer says:
'Woman needs no eulogist—for she Speaks for herself.'

'None but the brave deserve the fair.' No, and none but the brave can live with some of them.

'Why is kissing like creation?' Because it is made of nothing and is very good.

'Do you like fish-balls, Mr. Wiggins?' Mr. Wiggins hesitating—'I really don't know, miss; I never recollect of attending any.'

The European Conference on the Roman question has been fully agreed upon, the Holy Father having withdrawn his opposition to it. It will be held at Munich.

A person was boasting that he was travelling from a high family. 'Yes,' said a bystander, 'I have seen some of the same family so high that their feet could not touch the ground.'

Lady Margaret Herbert asked somebody for a pretty pattern for a nightgown. 'Well,' said the person, 'what signifies the pattern of a nightgown?'
'O' child,' said she, 'you know in a way of life.'

'Human nature is good up in such a way that we would not risk our necks to see what our neighb'ers owe, while the Sheriff is pulling for the sale of our own property.'

The first time Sally Ann let me hear, I felt as if I was sliding down the side of a rainbow, with Yankee doodle under each arm, and a big bunch of maple sugar between my teeth.

A young lady at school, engaged in the study of grammar, was asked, if kiss was a common or proper noun—The girl blushed deeply as she replied in a low tone, that it was both proper and common.

There's our grandbuilder, says a contemporary, a striking instance of why women should vote. She's paid taxes on a dog for the last ten years, and now she declares she won't stand it any longer—she'll either vote or kill the dog!

Two persons were wrangling about their propensity to sleep, when one said to the other, 'As soon as you go down you don't know anything, and you get up.' 'Well, that's better than not to know anything after you get up.'

'Hear a gun,' said a tipsy printer who had been on a spree for a week.
'Yes,' said the fornicator; 'you are a great gun, and half cocked, and you can consider yourself discharged.'
'Well,' said the typo, 'then I had better go off.'

'Whenever you find many men you will find many minds,' exclaimed a public speaker. 'Taint so, by jingo,' replied one of his auditors. 'If you ask the whole crowd to take a drink you'd find 'em all of one mind.' The lecturer 'heaved' without trying the experiment.

Interesting Anecdotes Relating Thereof.

When the Cardinal John of Lorraine was presented to the Duchess of Savoy she gave him her hand to kiss, greatly to the indignation of the irate churchman. 'How madam!' exclaimed he,
'I am I to be treated in this manner?
I kiss the queen my mistress, and shall I not kiss you, who are only a Duchess?' and without more ado, he, despite the resistance of the proud little Portuguese princess, kissed her thrice on the mouth, before he released her with an exultant laugh. The doughty cardinal was apparently of one mind with Sheldon, who thought 'to kiss ladies' hands after lips, as some do, is like little boys who, after they eat the apple fall to the paring.'

When Charles II. was making his triumphal progress through England, certain country ladies who were presented to him, instead of kissing the royal hands, in their simplicity held up their pretty lips to be kissed by their king—a blunder no one would more willingly excuse than the red-haired lover of pretty Nell Gwynn. Another poet, the countryman of Charlies, had two centuries later the honor of being publicly kissed in a stage box by the young and lovely Countess de Villars; but in Voltaire's case the lady gave the essentially salute not of her own free will, but in obedience to the commands of the clamors in the pit, and with enthusiasm for the poet's 'Metecop.'

Georgiana, Duchess of Devonshire, as our readers will remember, gave Steel, the butcher, a kiss, for his vote, nearly a century since, and another equally beautiful woman, Sene, Duchess of Gordon, recruited her regiment in the same way. Pucen Mackensia, a veteran of Waterloo, died at Elgin, Scotland, December 1856. He delighted in relating how he kissed the Duchess in taking the shilling from between her teeth to become one of her regiment—the Gordon Highlanders, better known as the 92d. The old Scottish veteran of eighty-seven has not left one behind him to tell the same tale about kissing the blue eyed Duchess in the market-place of Duthill.

The late Daniel O'Connell hit upon a novel mode of securing votes for the candidates he had named at a certain election, which test considering the constitutional temper of his countrymen, is said to have proved effectual.
He said in reference to the unfortunate elector who should vote against them: 'Let no man speak to him. Let no woman salute him.' Gilbert Stuart, the portrait painter, is said to have once met a lady in the streets of Boston who accosted him with: 'Ah!
Mr. Stuart, I have just seen your likeness, and kissed it because it was so much like you.' 'And did it kiss you in return?' 'Why no.' 'Then,' said the gallant painter, 'it was not like me.'

Some of our readers who are not so young as they have been, may remember the famous Yankee kiss, and kiss of the last King of England before he came to his estate. While in New York the Prince called at a barber's to be shaved. When the operation was completed he stepped up to the barber's wife who claimed to be present, and giving her a kiss, remarked: 'There, now, you can say you have been kissed by a member of the royal family.' The barber, greatly incensed by what he chose to receive as an insult, seized the prince and helping him out of the shop with his foot, exclaimed: 'There, now, you can say you have received a royal kick from an American freeman.'

Cleopatra Bassen, who rose from an humble position in life to a great honor and was a man of vast wealth but little erudition. As a theologian, the character to which he most aspired, he was severely criticised by the celebrated Dr. Merle D'Aubigne. The two savans met at Berlin at the Evangelicalian Alliance, held several years ago. Bunsen kissed Merle; of course the German could not return the compliment.
From this the sage about the 'Kiss of Reconciliation,' as the Germans called it, much to the annoyance of Dr. Merle, who had no idea of con-prising the solemn writers of theology by a kiss!
Besides, he said, he preferred the English custom in kissing to the German.
A delicate insinuation that, but the professor meant nothing wrong.

The Rev. Sydney Smith says: 'We are in favor of a certain amount of shyness when a kiss is proposed, but it should not be too long, and when the fact is given it, let it be adorned with warmth and energy—let there be soul in it.' If she close her eyes and sigh immediately after it, the effect is greater. She should be careful not to shudder a kiss, but give it as a humming-bird runs his bill into a honeysuckle—deep but delicate. There is much virtue in a kiss when well delivered. We have the memory of one we received in our youth, which lasted us forty years, and we believe it will be one of the last things we shall think of when we die.'

At Boulogne, during the reception of Queen Victoria, June 1855, a number of English ladies, in their anxiety to see everything, pressed with such force against the soldiers who were keeping the line, that the latter, in some instances, were obliged to give way, and generally were—to the impression of our policemen—'impeded in their duty.' The officer in command, observing the state of affairs, shouted out, 'One roll of the drum—if they don't keep back kiss them all!' At the first roll of the drum the English ladies took to flight. 'If they had been French, said a Parisian journalist, 'they would have remained to a woman.'
