

South Carolina Convention.

Address from the delegates of the Southern Rights Associations of South Carolina, assembled in Charleston, to the Southern Rights Associations of other Southern States.

Having met to take counsel together, and having agreed upon that course which we think it right and necessary to pursue, we wish to lay before you our considerations by which we have been governed, and that frankness which our respect for you and our desire to merit your good opinion require.

We regard the position of the southern States in this confederacy as degraded and ruinous. The manifest tendency of these systematic aggressions is that which have suffered for many years past to support the institution of slavery. If those acts of hostile domination which have been rendered more insulting by mockery of language, under the term of a compromise, were final in their nature, and were not to be followed by any further aggressions, we should still regard them as outrages to which sovereign States, possessing the spirit of freedom, never to submit.

But this is not the case. The aggressions have not ceased, and are steadily carried forward, gathering strength from development, and proceeding with fatal momentum to its end. That and the abolition of negro slavery in the southern States, and the lowering of the free white population of the South to the same level with that agrarian rabble which, already strong and dangerous, seems destined, before very long, to be the controlling power in the northern States.

It is not only a matter of safety for the South in the present Union. But we know that in this we differ from very many citizens of the other southern States—spirited and intelligent—having the same interests, and suffering under the same wrongs, with ourselves, and who cherish the hope that the rights of the South may be vindicated and secured without dissolving the Union. In this difference of opinion, we do not become as we assume to dictate, and we hope to stand free from that charge. Up to this time, the citizens of South Carolina, aware that peculiarly of political position, arising from past events, rendered a certain reserve on their part prudent and proper, have studiously avoided everything which might look like assuming the lead in the defence of southern rights.

They desired to act, because they felt that the wise measure of a Southern Convention, for the purpose of endeavoring to unite the southern States in maintaining their constitutional rights, and at the same time preserving, if possible, the existing Union, South Carolina heartily entered into this measure; and she has carried out the recommendation of the convention so assembled at the instance of Mississippi, providing for the election of delegates to a southern congress, to whose meeting she still looks with anxious interest.

In all these proceedings we think that the citizens of South Carolina have evinced all proper anxiety to avoid the appearance of arrogance or dictation, to act in concert with the citizens of the other southern States, and to do nothing separately or precipitately. And now, strongly as we have expressed our belief that there is no hope for the South in the existing Union, we are prepared to give a trial, fairly and in good faith, to any effectual plan which may be proposed by any sister State of the South for obtaining redress for the past and security for the future, without a dissolution of the existing Union, if there be a possibility of such a consummation.

able, it will be from usurpation of power by the federal government—not from the nature of the act performed by South Carolina. As accustomed as we have been to violations of the constitution and of the rights of the southern States by the federal government, we have to look forward to the probability of another outrage by that government in the attempt to force the State to remain in the Union.

We suppose the attempt will be made, if the other southern States permit it. Those States must decide for themselves whether they will permit it. South Carolina must decide for herself whether it is necessary to secede. Her sister States of the South will have no right to complain that she forces them into a position where they must either interpose to prevent her subjugation, or, by consenting to it, abandon their own sovereignty, and lay themselves at the mercy of a despotic power.

In seceding, South Carolina will simply do an act which all southern men who believe in the existence of State rights at all must admit that she has a perfect right to do, and which she regards as absolute. It is generally supposed, however, that the Cuban expedition is some Southern State. In this connection it may be well to state that four companies of United States soldiers, taken from the forts in the harbor, left here yesterday for Savannah, in the steamship Florida.

A letter in the Norfolk Argus states that 300 men were encamped near Cape Charles, for three or four days of the month of August. They were embarked on board the steamer on Sunday, the 4th inst. They were well furnished with provisions and munitions of war, and while on shore, were drilled every day. They were mostly foreigners, and alleged they were engaged in sounding and surveying the coast. It is not known from whence they came, but it is conjectured they were a part of the Cuban expedition.

From the Winchester Independent. Beginning Wrong. "This little fable," said my uncle, "may, perhaps, be of service to some poor devil more willing than wise." A certain man once married a lady whose reputation for amiability of disposition was seriously questioned, at the wedding everything went off merrily, of course. The party was gay, the supper was magnificent. The whole affair had been eminently successful, and all of the parties extremely delighted. On retiring to his apartment the gentleman found himself much annoyed by the purring and mewling of a cat.

"What in the devil's name is that?" he exclaimed. "Oh, nothing, my dear," replied the bride, but my favorite cat Pussita." "D—n Pussita! I hate cats!" And with this he most unceremoniously threw Pussita out of the house. "Well, if you haven't got a temper!" "Yes, my dear, you'd better believe it!" "Everything," continued my uncle, "went on well in that establishment—even a warmer dinner on Sunday." Now it happened that a friend of the above-mentioned gentleman, who had some months before committed the error of marrying an angel, took occasion to inquire of him, "How is it that with you all goes merry as the marriage bell, while I, on the contrary, have almost given up the idea of wearing pantaloons at all?"

Whereupon he related to him the story of Pussita and the second-story window. "Without," said my uncle, "impressing upon his mind the important moral, that it was necessary to begin right. Nevertheless, there was in his eye when he started for home—that told of treason!" "Well," said his wife, "you've come home at last! What's the matter? You haven't been drinking—have you? You look very strange." "No, not in the least, my dear; but I hate cats!" "Oh, do—do you? Well, I like 'em; that's all the difference!" Hereupon the unfortunate husband made a rush at poor Pussita, who was quietly snoozing on the sofa, and dashed to the window.

Mysterious Movement—Steamer Chartered by the Government for the South. The New York Herald says that on Saturday, a dispatch was received in that city from Washington, giving orders to charter a steamer for the service of the Government, for not less than twenty days, nor more than ninety days, to cruise from that port to Florida.

It is believed that the destination is Charleston, and that the dispatch has reference to the secession in the South. The Brother Jonathan, North America, and other steamers were in contemplation, but finally the Crescent City was fixed upon. She is to sail with sealed orders, and not to be more than 500 miles at any time from land. She is not to carry more than 700 men.

A New York letter of Sunday evening says this vessel is to have two hundred marines and soldiers on board, and adds:

"She will sail in the course of the evening. It is said that the officer in command has sealed orders, which are not to be opened until he reaches a certain point. It is generally supposed, however, that the expedition is to operate against the Cuban and expedition in some Southern State. In this connection it may be well to state that four companies of United States soldiers, taken from the forts in the harbor, left here yesterday for Savannah, in the steamship Florida."
