General Notices.

NOTICE.
I hold the ree-hoss down to the yearth."
"He's spreading his sail-fly now."
"Keep him like he is."
These and like expressions were addressed to a queer, looking, long-legged, short-bodied, white-haired, hog-eyed, furry son of a genius, fresh from some second-hand clothing store, mounted on "Parole," a nice, sleek, fat long, poor horse, and enveloped all over in a perfect net work of brittle reins, scupper, martingales, straps, circles and lead fettering, who had reined up in front of Pat Nacker's grocery, among a crowd of wild mountain-bred, full of fight and bad wishes.
"I say, you darned sail-bait, jist keep your shirt on, or I may never see you 'till you have till I rid you." Parole is next to the best horse that ever shelled nubber, and he's dead as a still worm, poor old Tickety Tail."
"What killed him, Sat?" said an anxious inquirer.
"Why, nothin', you tarnation fool; he jist died, standing up at that 'Warrin' that good lookin' 'n' freeze stiff, not adzactly, but starved and then frozen all t'round, so stiff that when dad and me pushed him over, he jist stuck out so (spreading his arms and legs) like a carpenter's bench, and we waited seventeen days for him to thaw, afore we could skin him. Well that was—dad and me, (counting his fingers) dad an' me, an' a 'dick-fool Jake we used to call him for short—an' a 'dick-fool Simeon, an' Jonas, an' Charloten, an' Cullina, an' Cashus Henry Clay, an' Noah Dan, an' Cathrine second, an' Cleopatra Antany, an' Jane Lind, an' Tom Bullion, the baby an' the prospect, an' marm herself, all left without any hoss to crop with, that was the nice new, or a spec'able family, befo' he was lost in 'warrin' it. I declare if I didn't feel steppin' in a horn, sometimes, Well, we waited and rested, and waited till well onto strawberry time, hoping some stray hoss would come along, but dog my cats' any such luck as that ever comes whar dad is, he's so d'cted morn, an' lazy, an' savage, an' ugly, an' tryin'."
"Well, one nite dad he laid awake all nite, a snorin' an' a rollin', an' a whisp'rin' at marm: 'an' next mornin' he says he."
"Sut, I'll tell you what we'll do; I'll be hoss ugly, an' I'll pull the pole, while you drive me, and we'll break up ourn ground, and then the old jist (that's marm) and the brats kin plant or let alone, jist as they please." So out ourn nose to the parson, an' heeked a right smart chance of bark, and marm and me made gears for dad, and they became him mightily, then he would give a bridle—so I gets an old umbrella what I found—it's a little piece norn, sorter like onto a pitchfork, you know—an' we bent an' twisted it sorter into a bridle bit, small shape, (dad swore it curly, as he laid it worked for some time, and I must sorter feel his cats, and go to cartwain). Well, he wasn't about) then I put on the gears, an' out dad an' the brats, and he led a leadin' dad by the bridle, and toin' the bridle, I led down a gap; that was made dad; he wanted to jump the fence on all fours, hoss way. I hitched him into the gopher, and way he went, dad leavin' for 'an' to his pullin' right peart; and we made strap'ard; dad gon' right over the bushes and into the do, an' the do will know as he's went on two legs. Presently we come to a sassaparilla bush, and dad, to set up his character as a hoss, bulged square into it, and to-down a horned's nest high as a hoss' lead, and all the brats kicked him big state.
He mard and kicked once or twice, and fotted a squall was nor any horse in the destrict, an' sot into rumin' an' toin' the bridle, I led down a gap; that was made dad; he wanted to jump the fence on all fours, hoss way. I hitched him into the gopher, and way he went, dad leavin' for 'an' to his pullin' right peart; and

we made strap'ard; dad gon' right over the bushes
and into the do, an' the do will know as he's
went on two legs. Presently we come to a sassaparilla
bush, and dad, to set up his character as a hoss, bulged square into it, and to-down a horned's nest high as
a hoss' lead, and all the brats kicked him big state.
He mard and kicked once or twice, and fotted a squall
was nor any horse in the destrict, an' sot into rumin'
an' toin' the bridle, I led down a gap; that was made dad; he wanted to jump the fence on all fours,
