

The New Route to California.

The Cleveland Herald publishes a private letter from a citizen who left that place some weeks ago to go to California by the mail line across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. The subject extracts will be read with interest:

STICHL, MEXICO, October 28, 1858. On the 20th we sailed up from the mouth of the river to the town of Minatitlan, distance twenty-four miles, where we arrived next day. We immediately left the ship and went into camp just outside of the village. We remained at Minatitlan two days. After transferring our coaches, harness, &c., from the vessel to the small steamer, we found ample time to look around the town. The place, like all small towns in Mexico, is principally made up of lodges or huts of a very inferior order, no doors or windows. The only articles of furniture visible to the naked eye are rough matting benches and seats, grass hammocks, a few knives, forks, plates, &c.

We were all glad enough to gather up our traps and leave Minatitlan on the evening of the 23d for Sacul, ninety-nine miles up the river, which place we reached on Sunday, the 24th, all in good health and spirits. The Coatzacoalcas river is decidedly one of the most beautiful I ever saw; immense mangrove and other valuable trees line the shores, the rich ground covered with orange, lemon, and palm trees, just now in full bloom, presenting quite a variety of beautiful colors. The sensitive plant grows in great profusion, and is so very sensitive that the leaves will close up before a person within a foot of it. We saw many quantities of alligators lying around on shore; many of them received the contents of our rifles. We saw some few monkeys, which we do not make, however. Parrots, of many beautiful plumaged kinds, are very numerous. Game of all kinds can be had by taking the trouble to load and fire our guns.

Immediately after our arrival here we went to work taking our coaches out of the boxes and putting them together—no small operation, I assure you. So far as myself is concerned, I never was in better health in my life, and I like the country very much. I expected, finding that I could safely go on, I had intended to take the entire party. Our coaches are now all ready to run so soon as motive power can be attached to them. The miles are all at Chevala, the half-way station; six of them will be here to-day, which I am to take with a coach to Ventosa Bay, for the purpose of bringing the first Pacific mail across the Isthmus. So you see I shall have the honor (if any) of taking the first coach and mail across the Isthmus. A coach and a mail will open their eyes some, I am inclined to think, from the fact that they have never seen anything of the kind more extensive than a mule cart with wheels sawed from the end of a mahogany log. The body of said carts are of about the same capacity as our common wheelbarrows.

From here to Ventosa Bay it is one hundred and seven miles, the first twenty-five miles is very bad, the balance is about the same kind of road, as it is from Cleveland to father's house. It passes through several little Spanish towns; none of them are of any importance except Tehuantepec city; quite a large and beautiful place (I am told) located on the plains about eleven miles from the Pacific coast, perhaps half as large as Cleveland. The inhabitants are men of a higher class. Quite a number of wealthy old Spanish families reside with their families. I shall be able to give you more general information in regard to the route in my next, I hope.

The rainy season is pretty much over here, and the ground, where the sun can get at it, is getting quite dry. The first three days after our arrival at the mouth of the river we had rain nearly every five minutes. One moment the sky would be clear as I ever saw it, and then when the sun would be shining brightly, it would rain. During the rainy season—from June to October—a person cannot venture outside of the house without an umbrella, or some protection from the rain, even for five or ten minutes. A great country when it rains. Mosquitoes grow very large here, and when they are not prevented by bars, attack a person at night worse than famished wolves; they are very numerous, and leaving the field open for the rhododendrons, (which means vagabond in English), a very small fly, always on the wing, in droves, by the tens of millions. They attack no part of human flesh except the hands, ears, and nose. The bite of one leaves a small black spot, which becomes very sore if irritated by scratching; the irritation is driven away by rubbing a spot with the skin of the orange or lemon. The rhododendrons are very numerous; down; then look out for mosquitoes. Insects of all kinds, shapes, and colors are very numerous around here, but where the country is open they are very scarce. Some of these insects are very poisonous. Of course we are very cautious about tucking up our mosquito bars at night.

My mules have just arrived. They are calling me now to get ready to go, so good bye.

The Smack in School. The following incident in a district school is told by William Pitt Palmer, of New York, President of the Manhattan Insurance Company, in a poetical address before the Literary Society in Stockbridge, Massachusetts, his narrative is as follows:

A district school, not far away, "Mid Berkshire hills, one winter's day was humming with its wailing noise Of three-score mingled girls and boys, Some few upon their task intent, But more on their noise intent, The while the master's downward look Was fastened on a copy book, When suddenly, in the midst of the Rose sharp and clear a ringing smack! As 'twere a battery of bells, "What's that?" a little miss cries; "That's a 't' little miss replies; With William Willish, if you please— I have him in my book."

With roars to make a statue thrill, The master thundered, "Hither, Will!" And to his head in presence came A great green book, with a sign upon the butt of his good-natured frown, With smile suppressed, and birch upraised, He threat'ningly intimated, "That you, my biggest pupil, should be guilty of an act so rude!"

What it is Doing for the Sick.

Wm. Schuchman, Esq., the well-known Lithographer, says:— "I have frequently used Barthe's Holland Bitters, and find it a most valuable and beneficial medicine." Rev. Samuel Babcock says:—"I found special relief from its use for a severe headache, with which I had long suffered."

W. Woodwell, Esq., says:—"I have used Barthe's Holland Bitters myself, and recommended it to others, knowing it to be just what it is represented." Dr. J. M. St. Clair, says:—"I have derived great benefit from its use for weakness of the stomach and indigestion."

Dr. Ludwig, editor of the 'Fackel,' Baltimore, pronounces it a most valuable and beneficial medicine for the cure of all the diseases of the stomach and bowels, and of the system generally. The Manager of Ballou's Vinegar Factory says:—"I used it myself, and induced my wife to try its effects upon her health, and it really is doing her more good than anything she has ever taken."

"A Friend to Improvement" writes thus:—"I have had an opportunity to test the value of Prof. O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, I am prepared to say that it fully bears out the commendations which are given to it, and is a very eligible tonic for a Turpentine Distillery. Improvements are made to accommodate 25 persons. Terms of sale will be made very advantageous, and the payments are very secure. Persons wishing to purchase can see these lands by calling on Dr. Gillespie, who lives near or by addressing Dr. Gillespie, 111 Broadway, N. Y. C. I will visit the Land with them at any time."

THE 3,300 ACRES OF VALUABLE CAPE FEAR LAND. For sale all his lands in the lower part of Bladen County, lying mostly on the West side of the Cape Fear River, known as Indian Woods. 111 cents for midding, and 5 do. at 111 cents for strict midding; Tuesday, 143 do. at 111 cents for low midding and midding; Wednesday, 30 do. at 111 cents for low midding, and 26 do. at 111 cents for strict midding. We refer to our table for arrivals prices.

CORN MEAL—Arrives slowly from the country, and the market is fully supplied. We quote at 65 to 70 cents per bushel.

FLOUR—During the past week the market has ruled inactive for State brands, and with moderate receipts the stock in first hands is accumulating. In the absence of the usual demand for retailing purposes, but little has been done in the way of sales, and a decline of 2 cents has taken place. We have to report only a few small lots having changed hands in the early part of the week at 66 for superfine, and 65 25 for family; for the past day or two, however, parcels have been freely offered at 65 for fine, 65 75 for superfine and 66 for family.

GRAIN—In the Corn market we have nothing new to notice. The stock in dealers' hands is small, but there is merely a retail demand existing, and we learn that two or three cargoes are daily expected. One lot of 600 bushels was received from up river a day or two since, and sold at 75 cents per bushel; and one or two small lots per rail received and sold at about same price. The market is quiet, and we quote nominally at 75 cents for new white. A cargo of 2,115 bushels just received, but not yet sold. OATS—Are in small stock, and the market rules firm; no sales except in the small way. About 1,500 bushels received from Baltimore a few days since by dealers, which have gone into store. The stock of old has all been worked off, and but few of new crop have been brought in. We note one or two small lots of the latter received and sold at 75 cents per bushel, at which there is a moderate demand.

RICE—Clean is in fair supply, and demand light. We reduce figures a shade, and quote small sales at 3 cents for old, and 3 1/2 cents for new. WHEAT—Nothing doing in this article, and we are unable to give a correct quotation. OATS—Are in small stock, and the market rules firm; no sales except in the small way. We note one or two small lots of the latter received and sold at 75 cents per bushel, at which there is a moderate demand.

MEAT—The receipts for some time past have been meagre, and the stock in dealers' hands is at present exceedingly light. We note a moderate demand existing, with sales in the small way at prices ranging within quotations, as in quality. See table.

MOLASSES—Is in moderate demand at former rates, and only a light stock on market. See table for prices, as in quantity and quality. We note a moderate demand existing, with sales in the small way at prices ranging within quotations, as in quality. See table.

POTATOES—In the week we have no change to notice. The market is pretty well supplied, and but a limited demand; sales in the small way at quotations in table. Sweet have been brought in quite freely, and are dull of sale at 10 to 20 cents per bushel.

PEAS—Since our last there has been considerable dullness in the market and prices have receded a shade. The receipts continue moderate, and there is no moderate demand from buyers as previously reported. We quote in table for old, and 3 1/2 cents for new. WHEAT—Nothing doing in this article, and we are unable to give a correct quotation.

Table listing market prices for various commodities, including Fair, Middling, and other grades.

Stock in port 322,000 bales, including 247,000 of American. The Havre cotton market for the week closed at 165 for Tive ordinary.

General produce—Sugar quiet, but buoyant. Coffee firm. Rice firm at an advance of 64—Carolina, 15s. a 2s. 6d. for midding to fine. Rosty steady—more was scarce at 4s. 2d. for medium, 6s. 6d. for fine, 12s. a 17s. Spirits turpentine dull at 3s. 6d. a 4s.

London Markets—Sugars buoyant; and all qualities had slightly advanced. India Money Markets—Bullion in the bank had increased £136,000. Money was easy. American securities were in improved demand. State stocks slightly higher. Rail securities quiet. Consols, 81.
