

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS. FOR PRESIDENT, HON. JOHN C. BRECKINRIDGE, OF KENTUCKY.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT, GENERAL JOSEPH LANE, OF OREGON.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR, HON. JOHN W. ELLIS, OF JOHN COUNTY.

Democratic nominees for the Legislature. NEW HANOVER COUNTY.

For the Senate, ELI W. HALL. For the House of Commons, S. J. PEBSON, DANIEL SHAW.

ELECTORS FOR PRESIDENT & VICE-PRESIDENT. For the State at Large: ALFRED M. SULLY, OF ROCKINGHAM, ED. GRAHAM BAYWOOD, OF WAKE.

Districts: 1st District, JOHN W. MOORE, of Hertford. 2d " WM. B. BODMAN, of Beaufort.

Candidates for Governor. We have been requested to state that the candidates for Governor will request their fellow-citizens at the following times and places:

The Game of Brag. This is a game that somehow has got to be considered all fair in politics; so much so, indeed, that it is practiced, or at least sanctioned by gentlemen who would shrink from anything of the kind in private life.

Our venerable friend of the Golsboro' Tribune, alluding to our remark made a few days since to the effect that ours was the only paper, that two years ago had advocated the removal of the feature of our Constitution which excludes citizens of the Jewish persuasion from office in this State, says that we are mistaken—that the Christian Advocate, with which he (Mr. Loring) was then connected, took the same ground about the same time, or possibly before the Journal did, and that the Fayetteville Presbyterian either copied or approved the article of the Advocate.

We gladly make the correction, or rather explanation, for our remark had reference to political and not religious papers. It is a pleasure to us however, to bear witness to the liberal and christian spirit, displayed by the organs of two highly respectable and influential religious denominations in this State. Few doubt the justice of the proposed change, or uphold the exclusion upon principle, but many take the ground assumed by the Committee of the last Legislature to whom the subject was referred—namely, that as few or none of that denomination cared for offices or were affected by the exclusion, the practical grievance was less than would be that of the turmoil and difficulty attend.

We publish to-day our table of Exports for the quarter ending June 30th, 1860, as compared with the corresponding period of 1859. In the leading article of Spirits Turpentine there is a slight falling off in coastwise exports, more than compensated for by an increase in foreign. There is also an increase in Crude Turpentine, both foreign and coastwise—a falling off in Rosin, in Timber and Lumber, in Peanuts and in Rice and Wheat, the fact being that the Wheat of West has not come forward as soon this season as last. Cotton shows some increase. This last is bound to be a steadily increasing item. In truth, however, single quarterly statements hardly afford a fair criterion of the probable aggregate of the year, inasmuch as different causes may tend either to delay or hurry forward produce for a time. There appears, upon the whole, to be little real change between this year and last. Whether the inducements offered by the line of Steamships may tend to increase the shipments of wheat and flour through this port remains to be seen. Upon the whole, there cannot be any great quantity of flour for export from this State. The amount ground in the up-country does not much exceed the home demand, North Carolina flour having taken the place of the large amounts of Northern flour which were brought to this and other seaboard towns a few years since. We look upon cotton as the most promising staple for export. Its cultivation is increasing rapidly in our section, with encouraging results to the producer.

MAGNOLIA COLLEGE.—The second session of this School will commence on the 16th of this month. Magnolia is considered quite a healthy and pleasant village, situated immediately on the Wilmington & Weldon Railroad. The school, we have heard, is under good discipline, and is very well patronized. See notice in this paper.

The Opposition papers of the State are all Douglas men as opposed to Breckinridge. Of course—They know Breckinridge to be their real opponent.—The abolition papers North are also sympathizing tenderly with Douglas. Of course Democrats understand this sort of thing. If Douglas were the choice of the Democracy of North Carolina, then the oppositionists and the disaffected would all sympathize mightily with Breckinridge. It is a good sign to see the oppositionists already settling down to the effort to injure and create distrust of the nomination of Breckinridge and Lane.

An esteemed correspondent, writing from Smithfield, Johnston county, says: "Breckinridge and Lane are undoubtedly the people's choice, but political managers are making efforts to enforce a Douglas ticket on the voters of N. C."

That is so. Breckinridge and Lane are the choice of North Carolina—the clear choice, political managers to the contrary notwithstanding. There is no use in trying to slur it over. Breckinridge and Lane form the strongest ticket in the field anywhere, or upon any ground. They are stronger in themselves than any other. They are stronger in their principles, and they are backed directly by the sure Democratic States and stand the best chance for the doubtful ones. The game of brag and management won't pay.

THE GOLDSBORO' "INDEPENDENT."—We notice that this paper has avowed itself openly opposed to the Democratic party. We like that better than its former course, when it was just as much opposed but did not have the candor and manhood to say so. We congratulate the "Independent," and commend its example to other quasi independent papers. Speak out.

ANOTHER INQUEST.—On yesterday, Coroner Jones held an inquest over the body of a man named Michael Gilmore, aged 45 or 50 years, who was found dead about mid-day, on the side-walk near the Franklin House, a short distance from the W. & W. R. R. From all we can learn, the deceased had become fatigued from walking in the sun, which was exceedingly hot, and had sat down beside a small house, for the purpose of resting, but died shortly after stopping. The deceased had been here but a short time, and was in the employ of Messrs. Hart & Bailey. He leaves a wife and three children, living near the Workshops on the N. C. R. R., where he had previously worked; he was an industrious and hard working man. Verdict—Death caused by sunstroke.—Daily Journal, 2d inst.

The Japanese return home in the Niagara, via the Cape of Good Hope. This is at their own request, as they prefer to go so, rather than by the way of Panama.

The "Benicia Boy" did not come by the Great Eastern. He thought that two such lions as John C. Heenan and the big ship would be too much at a time.

We learn that the Oakdale Cemetery Company have constructed a roadway and bridge across the Creek on Miller Street, or Campbell street continued. This will prove much more convenient for those living North of Market street and owning lots in the Cemetery.

New Flag. We saw this morning a very handsome flag, got up by Mr. Baldwin, intended for the Onslow Cavalry. It is of rich and heavy blue silk, with a deep yellow fringe, and bears on one side, in letters of gold, the following inscription: "ON SLOW CAVALRY, Presented by the Ladies of Onslow County, July 4th, 1860."

On the opposite side is painted the American Eagle, with shield and the motto: "Pro Patria." It is altogether a very tasteful affair. "Long may it wave" over the gallant corps for whom it is intended.

Another Cargo. The Norwegian Brig Sphidphen, from Sunderland, Eng., arrived in port on Saturday evening last, with 244 tons of Iron for the Wilmington, Charlotte & Rutherford Railroad.

Four days later from Europe. The steamship Adriatic, from New York and the Anglo-Saxon at Quebec, bring news from Liverpool to the 20th ult.

The Baden Conference of the Emperor and various Prince of Germany ended on the 17th ult. The French and Prussian journals desire the peace of Europe. All was quiet in Sicily. Garibaldi was organizing for an effort on the main land. One of the captured Steamers carried the American flag.

For markets see commercial head.

Ratification Meeting. In pursuance of previous notice a large number of the Democratic party of Mecklenburg county assembled in the Court-house, on Wednesday night, the 27th instant, to ratify the nominations of John C. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, for the Presidency of the United States, and of Gen. Joseph Lane, of Oregon, for the Vice Presidency recently made at Baltimore, by the delegates representing the national Democracy of the Southern States, and a portion of the Northern States, when on motion, Col. William Rea, of Providence, was appointed chairman of the meeting, and A. C. Williamson was requested to act as Secretary.

The Chairman announced the object of the meeting in a few well timed and appropriate remarks, when, at his request, and a general call from the crowd, Capt. John Walker, one of our delegates to the Baltimore convention addressed the meeting at considerable length, portraying in his usual strong style, the unfairness with which the friends of Mr. Douglas conducted the proceedings at Baltimore which resulted in the nomination of Stephen A. Douglas, for the Presidency, by his Northern friends, and the withdrawal from the convention of those National Democrats who afterwards nominated the candidates whose nominations this meeting came together to endorse.

At the conclusion of Capt. Walker's able and interesting speech the following resolutions were offered by Jno. E. Brown, Esq., accompanied with a few pertinent remarks, and unanimously adopted. Resolved, That we cordially approve of the course pursued by the large majority of delegates of North Carolina, in the convention lately held in Baltimore.

Resolved, That we heartily endorse and ratify the nominations of John C. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, as Democratic candidate for President, and Gen. Joseph Lane, of Oregon, for Vice President, and that we will give them our hearty and undivided support.

Mr. Yates being called upon heartily endorsed the nominations made by Southern, and a portion of the Northern delegates at Baltimore. Stephen W. Davis, Esq., being loudly called for, addressed the meeting in favor of the nominations, in clear and forcible language. Mr. Britton endorsed the nominations in a few words. Dr. Jno. M. Strong spoke forcibly and favorably of the nominations. David Rea, Esq., addressed the meeting in some enthusiastic remarks in favor of the nominations. On motion, the meeting adjourned. WILLIAM REA, Chairman. A. C. WILLIAMSON, Secretary.

A NEGRO KIDNAPPED AT WASHINGTON, OHIO.—A negro named John Marshall, was kidnapped by three men who arrived in the midnight train from Cincinnati. They took Marshall away in the 6 o'clock train, and started, it is supposed, for Cincinnati, without bringing him before the town authorities.

For the Journal. Sampson County Democratic Convention. Pursuant to previous notice, the Democrats of Sampson county held a Convention in the Court House in Clinton, on Saturday the 23d inst., to nominate candidates to represent them in the next State Legislature.

The Convention being ready for business, a letter from A. A. McKay, Esq., declining a re-nomination was read, as follows: GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION:—As I have taken occasion heretofore to inform some of you privately, that circumstances beyond my control prevent me from becoming a candidate for the Senate at your next election, (however much I might desire so to do,) I again take this occasion to reiterate the same.

As I have taken occasion heretofore to inform some of you privately, that circumstances beyond my control prevent me from becoming a candidate for the Senate at your next election, (however much I might desire so to do,) I again take this occasion to reiterate the same. I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me for my motives in declining to permit my name to go before the Convention. Suffice it to say, that reasons of a nature so strong compels me to forego the honor of the nomination, (two two years ago gave me no flattering a demonstration at the ballot box) that it is beyond my power to consent again to become a candidate. These reasons are purely personal, and I trust my friends will appreciate me