WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—SENATE.—This body is discussing the bill to pay interest on the 3-65 District of Columbia bonds.

The Postoffice Committee is considering a bill to amend the act relating to the appointment of postmasters.

House Hearing.—We learn that Mr. Dan'l Melvin's house, twelve miles above Elizabethtown, was burned Tuesday morning.

To Mr. B. Ward, Esq.—To Mr. B. Ward, of Horry District, in South Carolina, an Onslow county man by birth, but now a member of the South Carolina Legislature, we are indebted for several valuable papers.

A Home Fertilizer.—Economy is the order of the day, and our agriculturists more than any other class of people are called upon to exercise it.

The use of fertilizers has proved not only to be profitable but absolutely necessary to our farmers.

A Child Gunned by Boys.—One of the most horrifying incidents that has recently come to our knowledge is that of a little colored child who was actually eaten, in part while alive, by the mother of the infant lives near Union Depot, and by an act of carelessness, left her infant exposed to the hungry gnawings of a hog.

Our informant states to us that the child's cheek was actually eaten off. Comment is not necessary.

It always gives us much pleasure to note anything which tends to the prosperity of our State.

Observations are brought about by observing the considerable quantities of improved agricultural machinery passing over the C. O. Railway for the upper portions of the State.

The Clerk of the market reports as follows, for the week ending yesterday:

No. Cattle in Market..... 178
Hogs slaughtered..... 52
Sheep..... 8
Calves..... 3
Hogs..... 79

FATHER MIYAN.—The poet priest still tunes his harp in memory of the affectionate remembrance of the S. Southern heart.

This last sad, but sweet song appears in the Mobile Register of the 20th inst:

When fall the soldier braves,
Doat at the foot of wars;
Go forth to watch for some-
What sent to rest.

Yes, indeed, my coat must go. I know not how I shall get along with it; but I cannot see my children starve before my eyes.

There was a time, he remembered it well, when he, too, suffered not the Christmas Eve to pass without buying some little gifts for Jimmy and Agnes.

past three years, had been originally intimate with Mrs. Milner, and on Sunday last Williams being at the house, a quarrel occurred between the husband and wife.

After Mrs. Milner and Williams had been locked up in the county jail, and which is connected with the court house in town, a little son of Mrs. Milner stated to the law officer that he witnessed the killing of his father, and gave the following facts:

After his father and mother had repaired to the yard the quarrel was renewed, and while thus engaged, Williams, armed with an axe, stole up behind the father and struck the doorman man two blows upon the head with the axe, felled him to the ground.

Williams then coolly cut the throat of the victim, and then seized hold of the legs and arms of the slain man, bore the body to the house, and laid it in a heap.

The head of the unfortunate man was crushed, and his neck cut almost in two. The finding of the body caused a great commotion in the neighborhood for miles around, and before dark Saturday, a meeting was publicly held at North avenue, at which it was resolved that Williams should be hanged immediately.

Every particular relative to the hanging of the murderer was discussed with great interest, and it was understood that Williams should be hanged at night.

A vote as to whether it was better to hang the murderer at day or night was taken, and it was decided to hang him at night.
