

POET'S CORNER.

THE DRUNKARD'S GRAVE.

From the Albany Family Newspaper, of 1838.
Died, in this city, Charles F. Ames, printer—a young man of rare genius, precipitated to an untimely end by the demon of Intemperance. Not long since, under the influence of sober reflection, and animated, no doubt, by a sincere resolution to reform his habits, this ill-fated young man wrote and published the following pantheist and beautiful lines; but, alas! his resolution was not equal to the sincerity of his penitent emotions—and relapsing into his former habits, he soon found an untimely grave. We do not wish to be harsh—but still we must say, that it is a serious question, whether those who sold or presented liquor to this miserable young man, may not be justly considered murderers, at least in a moral sense. Mr. Ames had not only a fine poetical genius, but we saw, not long before his death, a letter which he wrote on business, and we have never seen a more elegant or appropriate production of the kind; it was indeed a masterpiece in its style, and peculiar fitness for the occasion. Mr. Ames worked last, as a journeyman, in this office; and for a short time we had hopes that he would reform; but those hopes were evanescent, and are now entombed with the relic of that genius which, but for one ruinous propensity, might have shone forth the ornament and pride of its native clime, which, we believe, was that of New England. It is to be hoped, however, that the following lines, though their unhappy and lamented author had not the resolution to live up to them, may not in all cases be as seed sown upon a rocky soil. We cannot but add, what must be the feelings of those, if any feelings they possess, who, while they think of the untimely grave of the writer, recollect that by furnishing him with drink, by tempting him, in his own words, "to drink the cup of sin," they precipitated his he would meet with a welcome reception. On riding up to the house he called or knocked, when an elderly servant, he supposed, in ordinary clothing, met the summons. "Is this Mr. Fletcher's residence?" "It is sir." "My name is —, the junior preacher for this circuit." "Yes, sir, the family have been expecting you; dismount and walk in."

"No, my man; I make it an invariable rule to see my horse attended to first: take him to the stable; get your curry-comb and brush, and carry him down!" The old man, in compliance with his directions, performed the duties of hostler.
"Now give him his provender, and I'll go into the house."
"Walk in, sir; take a seat." Looking round, and seeing no one but the old hostler, he inquired, "Where is Mr.
Fletcher?" "I am Mr. Fletcher!" His surprise and mortification can be better imagined than described, but the excellent Fletcher told him not to distress himself, but let it be a lesson for the future, not to infer that because a man wears rusty clothes at home, he must be a hostler.

"Will you have some catsup: asked a gentleman of Aunt Priscilla, at a dinner table. "Dear me, no!" she replied with a shudder, "I'm fond of cats in their place, but I should as soon think of eating dog soup."

Billy Larkins, who is what may be denominated a "speering character," once shook hands with Gen. Jackson.
" And," says Billy, I give him a piece of advice at the time: says I now, General, we've elected you, and I hope you will take good care of the constitution." Says he, "I'll try, and I hope you'll take care of yours."

Extract from the Introduction to the Work.
" Our design in getting up this volume is to add to the stock of Pure Temperance Literature, to elevate in the public mind that reform so full of promised blessings to the present and coming generations.
" Believing as we do that the Temperance Reform is one of the mighty agencies to be employed for the elevation of man, the improvement of society, the stability of free popular institutions, and the moral and religious renovation of a wicked world, we avail ourselves of the press—the principal medium of reaching the public mind—to promote the precious interests and advance the standard of this God-like enterprise.

" As incident to our general design; and to render the work more attractive and interesting, we have introduced faithful Portraits and brief Biographical Sketches of a few of the most distinguished champions of our holy cause. There are many others perhaps equally deserving a place in our Portrait Gallery; indeed, all who have labored devotedly, zealously, honestly and perseveringly in this department of moral reform, should be enrolled among the benefactors of their race; but the extent of this work prescribes a limit to our selection.

" The elevated character and exalted reputation of the contributors to this volume, will be sufficient to commend it to the attention of the reading public. Finally, whether our effort to contribute a mite to the pure literature of the country, promote the well-being of society and the glory of God, shall be successful, remains to be seen. Whatever may be the result, we commit it to the hands of our countrymen, with the happy consciousness of being actuated by a sincere desire to do good."

The work is printed on superior paper, manu-

A FINE CHANCE FOR YOUNG MEN.
We want young and active Sons of Temperance to act as agents of the above valuable work in the different counties of this State. The work, in character, elegance and worth, far surpasses anything of the kind ever offered, and will doubtless be purchased by every temperance man in N. C. This is a fine chance for young men to realize a handsome capital by but little exertion. For terms, &c., address, post-paid,

HARDING'S
CLOTHING STORE.
RALEIGH, N. C.
AT HOME AGAIN,
WITH the largest assortment of Gents' Ready made Clothing and Fashionable Goods ever before offered in Raleigh. Being connected as most of our Customers are aware, with Messrs.
Scott, Keen & Co., Manufacturers at Newark, N. J., one of the largest and best Houses in the United States, affords facilities for conducting our business which others do not possess. Let it be distinctly understood, therefore, that our Goods are superior to any others in this Market.
We are our own Manufacturers. We import most of our Cloths, Cassimeres and Vestings, and pay no second or third profit on these articles, which enables us to offer the same quality of Goods, much less than those Establishments whose purchases are made from Wholesale Houses. We ask only an examination of our Stock, to convince those who are judges of styles and fabrics.
