Sunday Campaign Ends
 In Baltimore.

The Billy Sunday campaign which has been going on in Baltimore for the last eight weeks came to a close Sunday night last.

Billy Sunday, the great evangelist of the age, has undoubtedly given Baltimore city a great amount of advertising and attracted to that city thousands of people who had not Billy Sunday been there, possibly would never have seen Baltimore. His sermons published in the city papers no doubt were read by thousands who were not in the habit of reading sermons, and his name was mentioned by thousands who never saw nor heard him speak.

Billy Sunday we believe, has done an immense amount of good for those attending his meetings, but as is the case in all such meetings, not all who hit the trail keep to the straight and narrow path.

Four meetings were held Sunday and it is estimated that 96,000 people were at the tabernacle. This estimate is made on the capacity of the building, and had there been a new crowd at each meeting that many would have heard him. It is certain that many persons attended more than one service. The Baltimore Sun, Monday morning says:

Four congregations packed the Tabernacle at Twenty-ninth street and Greenmount avenue yesterday to hear the evangelist preach his final day of the eight weeks' revival.

It was a day that will long be remembered in Baltimore, a fitting climax to the most remarkable campaign of any character that the Monumental City has ever seen. The multitudes of men and women and children that heard Billy say goodbye were stirred to their depths. And, wishing to express in a tangible way their appreciation of the evangelist and his co-workers and to give thanks for the religious upheaval which Sunday brought to Baltimore, they opened their purses and poured thousands of dollars in gold and silver, checks and bills, at his feet as a free-will offering.

At the four meetings of the day in which the evangelist preached the famous "pans" were circulated through the Tabernacle by the ushers and came back heaping with envelopes. This money was rushed under guard to the Bank of Commerce, where, when the last consignment had been delivered, it towered in a heap that was fairly staggering.

There was bushels of it. None dared hazard anything more than a rough guess as to the total amount, for the mass was made up of coins and bills of all denominations and checks, running from a nominal sum to $1,000. It was the prevailing opinion, however, that the total would run close to $50,000.

Billy Sunday, his face streaming with perspiration, stood on his pulpit in the Tabernacle last night and bade Baltimore farewell. Twenty-four thousands wept without restraint until the great building murmured with an undercurrent of sobbing.

He was praying, summing up in his prayer as Billy Sunday alone does, and suddenly he was mixing prayer with the farewell which he dreaded to utter, which thousands who had been flocking to his services for weeks dreaded to hear:

"And until the judgment day breaketh I bid you farewell. It is an hour I have dreaded to see come."
 "Good-by, Baltimore."

The final meeting was scheduled to begin at 7 o'clock. At 5 o'clock the second service of the afternoon was concluded and the congregation forced to leave. It had taken about 15 minutes to empty the building, for that congregation had been made up of 22,000 members. Those out side and some of those who had been forced to leave tried to enter as soon as the doors were reopened. They brushed past police and doorkeepers, and within 15 minutes had packed the building again.

Most notable among the many record-breaking features of the concluding service was the number of trail-hitters. Nine hundred and fourteen men and women and children pressed up the trail and grasped Sunday's hands—for he was forced to use both right and left hand.

This was nearly double the record of any preceding service. With 260 converts listed at the morning service, 379 at the service for men in the early afternoon and 270 for the service that started at 3:30 P. M., the day's total was brought to 1,843—and the grand total for the Baltimore campaign to more than 23,000.

The total attendance at the Tabernacle reached the monster total of more than 1,375,000 souls, of this number there were those, of course, who attended many services. It is safe to hazard, however, that half or more of Baltimore's 600,000 residents listened to Sunday at least once.

The Sundays left Baltimore Monday morning. The entire party will meet in Chicago Friday and go thence to Kansas City where the campaign opens next Sunday morning.

Play Well Patronized.

Mt. Airy Ladies Please Thurmont Attendance.

Monday evening last an entertainment was given in Town Hall, this place, by young ladies from Mt. Airy, under auspices of the Mite Society of St. John's Lutheran church.

The first part of the program, "Purification After School," was in pantomime. The teacher, Prof. J. Russell Young, had quite a lively bunch of students, they being up to all sorts of tricks in the schoolroom. One pupil, for bad behavior, was detained after school hours. Sympathy for the girl touched the heart of the Professor and soon he was making love to her. The scene closes with the professor on his knees proposing.

"When Fond Hopes Have Flown" was the title of the second part of the program, the story being that of a young lady who loves company, young men especially, and who lives in a town where young men are very few. She finds life lonely and longs for company. A girl friend announces the coming of one of her girl friends and her brother. The fond hopes of seeing a man brightens the life of the lonely girl. Announcement of the coming of the brother is made to all girl friends and great preparations are made for his arrival. The girl arrives, meets the company assembled, and after prolonged waiting for the brother she brings in her baby brother, announcing at the same time that the brother her hostess and friends expected to meet had been married and was on his wedding tour—"when fond hopes had flown."

The ladies were quite at home on the stage and their presentation of the play was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Chilly Easter Weather.

Dark Clouds And Cool Air Prevalled All Day.

Hopes for a bright, balmy Easter day were blighted to a more or less degree last Sunday. Heavy clouds and threatening obscured the sun most of the time, and the cold air stirring made heavy wraps and overcoats feel good to those who wore out.

The attendance at the various churches at morning and evening services was very large—in fact greater than has been seen for some years. Communion was held at several churches during the morning. Sunday afternoon and evening various Sunday Schools held Easter services, the music at each being unusually bright and well rendered.

Owing to the chilly air few people were out Sunday afternoon for a stroll to the mountains or other points of interest about town.

The Easter service of the Sunday School and congregation of the Lutheran church was held on Saturday evening. The edifice, which was tastefully decorated, was filled with members and friends. Rev. M. L. Firor was present and made a short address.

Easter services in the Reformed church began at 9:30 a. m. with the regular sessions of the Sunday School. At 10:30 a. m. the Easter communion was celebrated, and at 8 p. m. the song service by the Sunday School and congregation. The chancel was simply but beautifully decorated with ferns, calla and Easter lilies and hyacinths. The congregation was large and the music excellent.

Rev. Firor held five services on Easter Sunday, three in Sabillasville, one at Highfield and one at the Sanatorium.

At the State Sanatorium the Easter song service was held at 6.15. The decorations were beautiful, the congregation large and the music impressive. As regular pastor of the undenominational work, Rev. Firor conducted the service and made an address.

The members of the Reformed church gave their pastor, Rev. Firor, a very pleasant surprise on Easter in the shape of a little white envelope containing a bank note.

Mr. Howard Wagaman, who has been employed at the Sanatorium for a number of years, has accepted a position in Easton and left for that place Tuesday.

THE BAR.

Written by a life convict in Joliet Prison (Ill.)
 The saloon is sometimes called A BAR—that's true.
 A BAR to heaven, a door to hell;
 Whoever named it, named it well,
 A BAR to manliness and wealth;
 A door to want and broken health;
 A BAR to honor, pride and fame,
 A door to grief and sin and shame,
 A BAR to hope, a bar to prayer,
 A door to darkness and despair,
 A BAR to honored, useful life;
 A door to brawling, senseless strife,
 A BAR to all that's true and brave,
 A door to every drunkard's grave,
 A BAR to joys that home imparts,
 A door to tears and aching hearts,
 A BAR to heaven, a door to hell;
 Whoever named it, named it well.

Safe Medicine for Children.

"Is it safe?" is the question to be considered when buying cough medicine for children. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has long been a favorite with mothers of young children as it contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. It is pleasant to take, too, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. This remedy is most effectual in relieving coughs, colds and croup. Obtainable everywhere.

Shoulder Broken.

Last Sunday night while on his way home, Mr. Lloyd Webb was thrown from his bicycle on the State Road. His left shoulder was broken and his body bruised considerably. Mr. Webb says it all happened very quick and he thinks the wheel must have struck a stone or skidded. After the accident he walked to the home of a friend, from which place a physician was called.

Severe Hail Storm.

Last Friday afternoon the worst severe hail storm in recent years occurred in this vicinity.

Heavy clouds rolled over the mountains from the Washington county side, from which came vivid flashes of lightning and heavy peels of thunder, and those who were out with teams hurried to shelter.

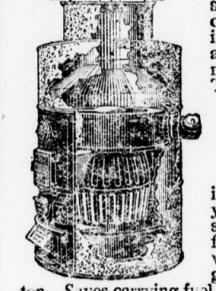

The storm broke with a rush of rain and hail, wind driving first one and then another direction and for a time it was almost impossible to see any distance. Hail one half inch in diameter fell in abundance.
