MISS MOROSINI'S COACHMAN HUSBAND IS BACK AT TRADE Schilling Eloped With Banker's Daughter, Who Afterward Deserted Him.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—After dropping out of public notice for many years, Ernest Schilling, the coachman who created a sensation in 1884 by eloping with the daughter of G. P. Morosini, has returned to his old vocation, and is now employed as coachman by Dr. John J. Kindred, who has a sanitarium in Astoria.

Following his elopement, marriage, and separation from the daughter of the banker, Schilling went to live in the Steinway section of Long Island City, where he gained a livelihood as a house painter. He lived there for years and gradually the memory of his sensational marriage died away. He avoided publicity and was apparently forgotten. At the sanitarium last night it was stated that Schilling had been employed there several months and gave complete satisfaction.

The runaway match in which the wealthy young woman and her father's coachman played the principal roles did not result in happiness. Miss Morosini had been educated in the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Manhattanville. Although reared in the lap of luxury, after her marriage to Schilling the pretty young bride went to live in apartments on the East Side, while her husband supported her by his earnings as a conductor on the Second Avenue line.

After about seven months the young couple parted at a street corner, the wife to call at a dentist's and the husband to report at the car barns. Since that day Schilling has not seen his wife, so far as is known.

Schilling came of a good German family, and his love for horses induced him to seek employment from the banks whose daughter he later carried off.

SHE DIDN'T SEE THE POPE. George Seton, a London writer, has published a budget of anecdotes, one of which tells of a fashionable woman who appeared before Pope Leo in a very low necked dress. His holiness disapproved of the costume so strongly that he sent a cardinal to remonstrate with the wearer. The messenger made this rather ambiguous explanation: "The Pope, my dear madam, is rather old fashioned, you know, and dislikes seeing any lady in evening dress. I, on the other hand, who have spent six years of my life as a missionary among the cannibals, am quite used to it."—New York Tribune.

TRADED WITH BROTHER HIS WIFE FOR A WATCH

Both Courted the Woman When She Was Single.

TORONTO, Ontario, Jan. 12.—George and Walter Reynolds, young farmers near Cobourg, Ontario, sought the hand of Annie Clark five years ago.

Walter Reynolds, the older brother, relinquished his suit and went to Michigan. His brother married Miss Clark. A few months ago Walter visited the pair, who then had two children.

The visitor had some money and a gold watch valued at $15. The married brother wanted the watch and the single brother wanted Annie. A bargain was arranged whereby George Reynolds was given the gold watch and $10 in cash. In return he gave his wife and two children and his furniture to his brother.

Walter and the woman went to Wardworth, about ten miles from the home-stand, and were married by a Methodist minister, who believed both were single. As soon as the facts were known all were arrested, and Walter and Annie were sentenced to four months for bigamy. George Reynolds was given three months for aiding and abetting the crime.

NEVADA, Cal., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Frank Le Grande, wife of an engine-wiper, employed by the Southern Pacific Company, has just received information confirming her right to a one-fifth interest in an estate worth $20,000,000.

The vast fortune was left by Mrs. Le Grande's grandmother, who resided in Holland where her estates are located. The will bequeathing the fortune was made some time before her grandmother's death and set to Mrs. Le Grande's mother, who kept the documents until long after her mother's death.

The government of Holland, in an effort to locate the heirs, found Mrs. Le Grande's mother and discovered the will.

Funeral of Consul Maclean Held in Paris. Distinguished Frenchmen and Members of American Colony Present.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Funeral services over the body of the late E. P. MacLean, the American vice consul, were held at the Rev. Mr. Thurber's American church today.

The services were attended by nearly all the members of the American colony and others. The catafalque was covered with wreaths. Miss MacLean, the daughter of the late vice consul, sat between Mrs. Gowdy, the wife of the American consul general, and Miss Gowdy.

Gen. Horace Porter, the American ambassador, was unavoidably absent, as a witness at the marriage of Francis Richard Waddington, a son of the late French ambassador and of Mrs. Waddington, who, before her marriage, was Miss King of New York, to Charlotte Sallandrouze de la Moraine.

Others in the church were Secretaries Vignaud, Blanchard and Jay, General Winslow, the Rev. Dr. Morgan, Bankers Harjes, Seligman and Munroe, a deputation from the chamber of commerce, headed by President Kimbel, and consisting of Messrs. Peartree, Cachard, Green and Dalbra, and Major Williams of the Treasury Department, and ex-Judge L. Holme.

Dr. Thurber made an address, in which he spoke feelingly of the deceased, who, he declared, was the oldest servant in the American consular service. After prayer, the services were concluded with the singing of "Lead, Kindly Light," by the choir.
