The Cockrell-Gallaudet Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Marian Cockrell, daughter of Senator Cockrell, of Missouri, and Edson F. Gallaudet, which took place at noon today in the Church of the Covenant, will long be remembered by those who were present at the ceremony and breakfast and reception which followed. Miss Cockrell, who has presided over her father's home since the death of her mother with dignity and grace, is a lovable and popular young woman, and her husband, the son of Prof. Gallaudet, of Kendall College, a man of sterling worth, who has already made his mark in his profession.

The church was elaborately and beautifully decorated with white roses, lilies, trailing vines and palms. Long before the hour set for the ceremony, the pews were filled and many persons were standing in the aisles. The President attended, accompanied by Private Secretary Cortelyou. The Cabinet, many members of the Diplomatic Corps, many Senators, and several hundred representative society people were among the guests.

Miss Cockrell made a beautiful bride and never appeared to better advantage than in her wedding toilette of rich white satin, heavily embroidered with a design of orchids and lilies of the valley and palmetted with pearls. The waist of the gown was entirely made of lace and the long tulle veil, which touched the hem of her train, was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley and orchids.

The bridesmaids were the sister of the bride and the sister of the groom, Miss Anna Ewing Cockrell, who made her debut this winter, and Miss Marian Gallaudet. Their toilettes were of white crepe de chine with insertions of lace, built on green taffeta, with large picture hats of white chiffon trimmed in green leaves. They carried bouquets of white carnations and green ferns, carrying out in both their costumes and flowers the color scheme of the wedding. The bride's attendants wore her gifts, bracelets of a flower design set with pearls. Miss Anna Ewing Cockrell, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Cockrell, of Warrenton, Mo., and a niece of the bride, acted as flower bearer and was also dressed in green and white.

Mr. Gallaudet's best man was Francis Parsons, of Connecticut. His ushers were Winthrop Dwight, of New York; George Dudley Seymour, of New Haven; John Robinson, of Hartford; Frederick Allen, of St. Louis; Gifford Pinchot, Herbert Gallaudet, brother of the groom, and Ephraim B. Cockrell and Allen Vardaman, Cockrell, brothers of the bride, to all of whom he gave scarfpins, enameled four-leaf clovers set with pearls.

After the wedding ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at Rauscher's, at which all the decorations were suggestive of St. Valentine's Day, the ties and confectionery being served in the shape of hearts, cupids, bows and arrows. More than a thousand invitations were sent out, and there was a large attendance at both the church and the breakfast.

Mr. and Mrs. Gallaudet will live in Dayton, Ohio, where Mr. Gallaudet has recently accepted a position, having resigned his office with the Cramp Ship-building Company, with which he has been connected for some time past.

PRESENT YOUR VALENTINE WITH A PAIR OF CANARIES

Pretty Little Songsters Begin to Mate and Make Ready for House-keeping on This Day.

The canary, the famous caged songster which delights the homes of millions, in nearly every part of the habitable globe and so greatly prized for its excellence of song, its symmetry of form, its beautiful plumage, its pleasing disposition, its aptness for learning and the readiness with which it breeds in confinement, had its origin in the islands from which it takes its name.

These pets were introduced into Europe in the sixteenth century, and have ever been considered the symbol of love and affection, thus being associated with the old custom of valentines. The 14th of February being considered the day which is most suited for their mating, makes the idea of some importance. The fad of presenting a pair of canaries on St. Valentine's Day is growing every year, and justly, too. What better emblem could be obtained than a pair of mating canaries? They display all the features of domestic life, and give a good example of a peaceful home. The male bird builds the nest, feeds the hen while setting, and helps feed the young.

In the old countries, Germany, France, Belgium, England, and Scotland, these birds are bred by the middle classes, bringing in quite a little revenue. They breed prolifically under almost all circumstances. The males are the best singers, and with patience can be taught to whistle any tune. When well trained, large prices are demanded. In places where the breeding of these birds is recognized, while here we only see the German and Belgian, or the long and short breeds.

The hen lays from three to five eggs on successive days. The period of incubation is fourteen days, the young birds hatching as the eggs were laid, one each day. Though these young birds differ by several days in age, they are nourished in such a manner that they leave the nest at the same time. They begin to sing at about the age of two months, when by constant practice they can be taught any desired tune.

TO PROMOTE KINDNESS BETWEEN JEWS AND GENTILES

A conference to give information and promote a spirit of inquiry on the basis of mutual kindness between Jews and Christians will be held in Washington, beginning Tuesday, February 17. The subject to be discussed is the "Promotion of the Gospel Among God's Ancient People Israel." The program for the week is as follows:

PEN AND PENCIL CLUB TO HONOR DOUGLASS' BIRTHDAY

The eighty-sixth anniversary of the birth of Frederick Douglass will be celebrated at Gray Brothers Banquet Hall tonight by the Pen and Pencil Club, a negro organization, of this city. W. L. Houston will call the assemblage to order and H. P. Slaughter will deliver an address of welcome. John P. Green will speak on "The Spirit of Douglass," followed by Chris J. Perry and W. H. Hart, in similar vein. An evening of entertainment and an elaborate menu will be provided. The program of the event is tastefully gotten up. Quill and pencil are attached. The reading matter is in a humorous vein, and an original verse by the president of the club, Henry P. Slaughter, appears on one of the pages.

PLEASANT ENTERTAINMENT.

A successful entertainment, given by Mrs. Hathaway's class, was held in the parlor of the North Carolina Avenue M. P. Church Friday evening, February 13. Music was furnished by Fenton W. Crown's Orchestra. The program consisted of recitations by Miss José, Miss Smith, Miss Palmer, Willie Stockett and Mr. Niswanner; vocal solos by Mr. Smith, tenor, and H. Mortimer Niswanner, baritone. Mr. Niswanner was accompanied by Prof. W. K. Lawson on the piano. The proceeds of the entertainment were for the benefit of the church.

MILLENNIAL DAWN MEETING.

R. E. Streeter, under the auspices of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society, will address a meeting this evening at 7:30 o'clock, in Society Temple Hall, corner Fifth and G Streets northwest. The subject of redemption and restitution of the human race will be treated along the line of Millennial Dawn and Zion's Watch Tower, which hold the Bible teaches that the whole earth will, in God's due time, become more than an Eden restored.

MME. ROGER-MICLOS GIVES RECITAL AT THE COLUMBIA

Proves Herself a Pianist of Rare Intelligence and Skill.

Mme. Roger-Miclos, a French pianist who has been much commended abroad and in other American cities, gave a recital at the Columbia Theater yesterday afternoon before an unusually discriminating audience. Her performances gave deep pleasure to most of her hearers and manifested a superlative mastery of piano technique, a fine understanding of her chosen composers, and a temperament susceptible of marked but not tempestuous sentiment. The audience was, naturally, small, as this musician came to Washington with no better recommendation than the approval of the best critics; but those who did attend applauded with judgment as has been said, and thus contributed their share to a most delightful musical afternoon. The future performances of this excellent pianist must surely be better patronized.

It has become a custom, of late, to denote all piano playing which is not an imitation of Paderewski or of Hoffmann as "mediocre." It makes no difference that Paderewski is great in spite of many characteristics, rather than because of them, or that Hoffmann in achieving "force" often sacrifices every other purpose of his composer. There must be either subdued lights and "temperament" or piano lyricism.

To such as accept these requirements Mme. Roger-Miclos is not now and never can be distinguished. She is content to perform the compositions of Haydn, Schumann, Chopin, Liszt and Beethoven with a purpose to fulfill their designs, not her own. But those who have an intelligent regard for such composers must have been delighted with this recital of yesterday. The performer's intelligence was manifest, she played with marked accuracy. But best of all—with an abundant ability to exaggerate "feeling" if she chose—she played with a moderation of expression which is at once extremely rare and wonderfully pleasing. A. D. A.
