HONOR TO SHERMAN'S MEMORY

American Nation Unveils Bronze Statue Commemorating Deeds of "Old Tecumseh"

THE STATUE FROM THE WEST.

President Roosevelt Eulogizes in a Stirring Speech the Valorous Achievements of Gallant Warrior---Pays Glowing Tribute to Veterans Who Wore the Blue---Patriotic and Memorable Scenes Mark Day of Brilliant Ceremonies.

Unveiled today in the presence of thousands, the equestrian statue of General William Tecumseh Sherman is now the sacred charge of the Capital of the Nation. The trust was accepted by the President and his counselors in active participation with patriotic societies, the statue commission, and military bodies of the regular and citizen soldiery amid one of the most imposing spectacles ever seen in Washington.

The eyes of the nation are on Washington today, for it is the nation which commemorated a hero's deeds. That sympathy which heroism awakens in every true soul is finding the voice of remembrance and appreciation. Reverence is sacred—no higher attribute in man—reverence by which is meant recognition, loyalty, patriotism, ambition toward high aims, and wisdom to see and fortitude to achieve them.

TRIBUTE TO THE AMERICAN.

Therefore, on this occasion of commemoration, with a monument to a hero surrounded by many of the men who by acts of brave support aided him in his efforts to attain his exalted military pre-eminence, with the genius of patriotic eloquence and poetry and song in emulation—whatever is representative and commanding in this nation apotheosizing his name, it is done with the feeling that in honoring Sherman a tribute is given to the American citizen who does his duty with courage and faith.

Washington was never in a more graciously hospitable mood than at the approach of the noon hour, when the crowds began pressing toward the site of the statue. The broad Avenue, Fifteenth Street, and the streets and driveways about the White House ellipse bore the appearance of a huge pleasure ground with business energy lost, except as exhibited in the busy-burly of completing preparations for the dedication.

It was sentiment rather than pageant and ceremony—curiosity to see the crowd and mingle with it—that drew thousands to the scene. For they knew they could not get close enough to see the beautiful ceremonies, nor hear the words of eulogy spoken by those who participated in the unveiling. The curious had seen the statue—had criticised it with favor or condemnation, but the eagerness displayed seemed to bear evidence that it was new and for the first time bared to the gaze of Washingtonians.

RELATIVES ON THE PLATFORM.

The relatives of the hero furnished another object for respectful curiosity. On the platform with the President, members of the Cabinet, prominent war veterans, and members of the diplomatic service, sat the family of Sherman, his children, and his children's children. Many eyes were turned that way, glasses were directed at the north stand, and the visitors who occupied positions on the stands to the east and west honored the descendants of the distinguished general for the love of the man commemorated.

One of the beautiful features of the program which today gave the city its grandest monument to the country's war heroes was the participation of Master William Tecumseh Sherman Thornadyke, who drew the cord releasing the flags which draped the bronze figure. This grandson of General Sherman is but nine years old.

At the moment the immense flags were drawn to the left and the right of the statue, the Marine Band struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner." Then was fired the salute of seventeen guns and the ceremonies were opened with speeches by General Dodge, the President of the United States, the Hon. David B. Henderson, General Grosvenor, and others.

Simplicity marked the ceremony throughout. The addresses were few and not long. The parade was imposing, though making few pretensions in point of numbers. The statue itself stands as an enduring monument, not only to the memory of the general, but to that of the great artist who conceived it and whose last work it proved to be.

Long before noon veterans and civilians began to gather along the line of parade and in the vicinity of the monument to obtain good positions from which to view the greatest event of its kind in the history of the city. Gray-haired men who had worn the blue in the darkest days of the civil war intermingled around the flower-decked pedestal with those of a younger generation who had never known what it was to be part of an invading army, fighting desperate men, who resisted the invasion in the manner in which only Americans could resist.

The base of the granite pedestal upon which stands the bronze horse and rider was completely hidden by floral offerings. At each of the four corners was a mammoth American shield—one from the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, one from that of the Cumberland, one from the Ohio, and one from the Potomac.

From each of these shields, reaching aloft and twining around the monument, was a rope of roses, emblematical of the affection that links the living with the dead.

Individual floral tributes from societies, friends and admirers throughout the country were heaped in profusion around the base of the pedestal, and will be left there until they fade and wither, a fragrant incense to the old

Maimed Veterans Have Seats Nearest Statue

About the base of the statue in two sections to represent the right and left flanks were two hundred soldiers who had fought and been wounded in the civil war. These men were a grand honor under the bronze effigy of the leader under whom they had served forty years ago. No other spectators were permitted nearer the statue than they.

All the veterans in these two sections were residents of the District, which added another feature of interest to their participation in the ceremonies. They were as follows: William O'Neill, F. H. Evans, Frederick Freeman, Norris H. Merrill, Roland C. Cheesman, John T. Brady, H. H. Brower, Merritt Lewis, Charles Rhodes, J. E. Wilber, Adolph Derendinger, John McCarthy, Colonel Brady, Andrew Day, A. C. Brownley, A. S. Stevens, Joseph F. Allison, Dennis Lee, H. E. Warner, P. B. Dickinson, M. E. Robinson, H. E. TILLMAN FREE; GONZALES' FATE JUST, SAYS JURY

Former South Carolina Lieutenant Governor Released.

HISTORY OF SHOOTING

Editor of "State" Shot Down Last January, Apparently Without Warning.

LEXINGTON, Oct. 15.—The jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the Tillman case at 10:30 a. m., after having been locked up all night. A disagreement was reported last evening. Mr. Tillman was escorted from the courtroom by his friends.

The charge against former Lieutenant Governor Tillman was the shooting and killing of N. G. Gonzales, editor of the "Columbia State."

Shot Without Warning.

The shooting occurred on January 15 last, on the streets of the State capital. The then lieutenant governor had just left the capitol building, after presiding over a session of the State senate. He passed Gonzales on the street and, apparently without warning, drew a revolver and shot the editor through the abdomen. Gonzales staggered and fell. He was taken to his office and from thence to his home, where he died January 19.

Tillman, after the shooting, walked away and gave himself up. He was placed in jail and has been in custody ever since. His case was to have been tried in Columbia, but his attorneys had the place of trial changed to Lexington.

A Political Feud.

The shooting was the result of a personal and political feud, brought about by the bitter attacks which Gonzales made on Tillman through the columns of the "State." Tillman had challenged Gonzales to a duel, but the latter took no notice of the challenge.

The shooting caused great excitement throughout the State, though many were found who said that Gonzales received his just dues for having hounded the lieutenant governor as he did. Gonzales was about forty-three years of age. He conducted the "State" in company with his two brothers. He was a nephew of Representative William Elliott of South Carolina.

BODY OF QUESADA BABY PLACED IN VAULT

The body of the infant son of Mr. Quesada, Cuban minister to the United States, was placed in a vault at Mount Olivet cemetery at 10:30 o'clock this morning, to be taken later to New York and placed in the family vault there. No services were held at the house, and only attaches of the legation and intimate friends of the family were present.

A huge cluster of roses attested the sympathy of President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

STERN IS BROUGHT BACK FROM CANADA FOR TRIAL HERE

Indicted for Conspiring to Defraud Government.

RETURN IS VOLUNTARY

Rumor He Will Be Used as Witness for Prosecution. Waives Hearing.

Leopold J. Stern, indicted with Machen and Long for conspiracy to defraud the Government in connection with the purchase of straps for letter carriers' satchels, and who since May last has been in Canada, was this morning brought back to this city in the custody of Postoffice Inspector Walter S. Mayer and Deputy Sheriff Arthur Severs, of Toronto, and turned over to the police. Later he was confined in cell No. 5 at the First precinct station, where he is held pending his preliminary hearing in Police Court.

The circumstances under which Stern was brought back to Washington are peculiar from an international standpoint. On July 31 last the indictment against Stern was returned by the local grand jury. At that time he was in Canada, and, according to his own statement this morning, to a reporter for The Times, his presence there had nothing to do with the fact that he was wanted by the Government. On hearing that an indictment had been returned against him, he voluntarily surrendered himself to the Toronto authorities. In due time action was instituted looking to his extradition under the charge of conspiracy, when it was discovered that such a charge was not included in the list of extraditable offenses mentioned in the treaty with Great Britain.

Proceedings in Canada.

Finding they could not extradite Stern under this indictment, on September 17 Inspector Mayer appeared before the Toronto Police Court and swore out a warrant against Stern, charging him with false pretenses.

In due course the warrant was served on Stern, and he had a hearing before the county judge at Toronto, who held him for extradition. Stern, through his attorneys, appealed from this decision, and the appeal was pending before the high court, when, yesterday, Stern announced his willingness to waive his appeal and return to the United States.

Stern has retained Col. D. W. Glasie and Conrad H. Syme as his attorneys, and the latter announced Stern, if arraigned in Police Court, would waive a preliminary hearing, and let his case go direct to the grand jury.

Bond Will Be Small.

Immediately upon Stern's arrival preparations were made to furnish bond. The District Attorney's office was chary of information as to the amount of bond required, but Stern's attorneys are figuring upon the basis of $5,000. Several bonding companies are prepared to furnish bond in that sum. While neither the attaches of the District Attorney's office nor the postal authorities would publish the published statement that Stern would be used as a prosecuting witness in several cases, and was therefore not in danger of excessive punishment for himself, yet it is understood that such an arrangement tacitly exists, which accounts for the small bond anticipated.

RUMOR AGAIN KILLS MACEDONIAN LEADER

Sarafoff Said to Have Met Death. Fierce Fight With Turks in Mountains.

PRAGUE, Bohemia, Oct. 15.—The newspaper "Narodni Listy" reports that Boris Sarafoff, the Macedonian leader, and two other leaders were ambushed and killed near Pusa, in the Monastir district.

The peasants are said to have recognized Sarafoff by his two horses, saddled in European fashion, and his other belongings, including a Bulgarian general's cap.

Two of the corpses were carried away, but the third was left lying in the field. Some credence is given the story, because of the fact that Sarafoff was expected at Pusa on Tuesday last.

MEXICAN MINE COMPANY IN FURTHER TROUBLE

James V. Dignowity, former vice president and manager of the Mexican Mining and Exploration Company, was sued in the District Court by the company today to recover $27,026 alleged to have been misappropriated. Later Charles Hedges and Leon Reyes sued the company for an accounting.

The Police Court cases against Dignowity and Edwin K. Summerville were continued until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, and additional warrants were served upon them, in which it is charged they altered stock books.

HUNDREDS OF ZIONISTS WILL INVADE CAPITAL

Coming in Train Loads Over the B. & O.

WILL SEE SIGHTS HERE

En Route to New York and Traveling to Rendezvous by Many Roads.

The city will be invaded by the Dowle hosts late this afternoon. They come from Chicago on a special train over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Whether there is to be any proselyting no one knows. The Zionites, several hundred in number, are to stay in Washington until 11 o'clock tonight.

Deacon Charles Wright, one of the city's "Elijahs," Dowle, is a Chicago of the party. The special left Chicago last night, and made good time on its way to New York, where the great invasion of the Zionists is taking place. While there are only about 400 of the would-be saviors of the Empire City on the special for Washington, nearly 4,000 have gone by other routes.

Will Not Talk.

The Zionists have hired Madison Square Garden, in New York, for fourteen nights at $1,000 a night, and it is said the expense of the invasion is going to amount to more than $150,000.

So far no arrangements have been made to entertain the few hundred of the Zionites who are to stop over here. It is supposed that they are to wander about the city seeing such of the points of interest as they can reach within the short time they are to stay here.

Those of the party who left the train after its arrival were of the ordinary farmer class. None appeared to be above the average intelligence of the husbandman. They were neat and tidy, however. Attempts to get them to talk on their mission to New York failed.

A dispatch from New York today says:

"Elijah" Dowle and his host from Zion City will not arrive in New York until tomorrow. There will be three meetings daily at Madison Square Garden until November 1. From the 3d to the 8th of November, inclusive, Carnegie Hall will be utilized. A house to house canvass has been planned. In bands of ten the hosts will carry the teachings of Dowle to tenements and palaces and hold forth in prayer and song on street corners.

DUTCH SHIP MISSING.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 15.—Much anxiety is felt regarding the Dutch steamer Argus, which is used as a training ship for naval cadets. The vessel has been missing for some days. Two cruisers have been sent to the North Sea in search of her.

WILL BLOW UP STEAMER.

DETROIT, Oct. 15.—The steamer John N. Glidden, sunk in the St. Clair Flats Ship Canal, cannot be saved, and Captain Baker, the wrecking master, will blow her up with dynamite, so as to clear the channel.

SENATOR PLATT WEDDED MRS. JANEWAY SUNDAY

Only Immediate Members of Family Present.

MARRIAGE SET FOR TODAY

Private Secretary Astonishes Inquirers by Statement That Wedding Has Been Consummated.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Senator Platt has sprung a surprise on his friends. The fact that the Senator and Mrs. Janeway were married on Sunday was confirmed at 1 o'clock this afternoon by the Senator's private secretary, Mr. Howe. He said that the ceremony took place last Sunday, and was performed by the Rev. Dr. Burrell. Only the immediate families of the contracting parties were present.

Although today was the date set for the marriage of Thomas Collier Platt and Mrs. Lillian T. Janeway, the ceremony had not been performed at the Marble Collegiate Church up to noon today, and the report was in circulation that it would not be necessary for the couple to go there, as they were married quietly a few days ago.

Senator Platt positively refused to make any statement to the newspaper when seen in his apartments at the Fifth Avenue Hotel this morning. He said:

"I will not be interviewed and any statements that may be published as coming from me will have no foundation in fact."

The Senator left the Fifth Avenue Hotel shortly before 10 o'clock and was driven to the Holland House, where Mrs. Janeway has been stopping since her arrival in the city. Soon after he departed members of the Republican State organization tipped off the newspaper men who had congregated to witness the wedding, that Mrs. Janeway was already Mrs. Platt.

The rumor had it that the couple had been quietly married in Mrs. Janeway's apartments on Sunday last by the Rev. Dr. Burrell, pastor of the Protestant Episcopal Marble Collegiate Church. When a card was sent to the Senator asking him if the report was true, he sent it back unanswered.

MILITARY ATTACHE GOING TO COLOMBIA

Capt. Sydney A. Cloman, of the general staff of the army, has been assigned to Bogota, Colombia, as military attache at the American legation.

General staff officers refuse to discuss the purpose of sending Captain Cloman to Bogota at this time. The United States has never had any military attaches in the Central or South American capitals previous to this time and his designation is regarded as the first step of the United States in acquiring military information concerning South and Central American countries.
