

GENERAL HAWLEY
AND HIS COMRADES
Civil War Leader Answers
Last Call.

A SENATOR FOR 24 YEARS
Famous in Many Lines of Endeavor.
Much Affected by Bate's Recent Death.

Brig. Gen. Joseph R. Hawley, U. S. A., retired, who had held the official rank since a few days after his retirement from the United States Senate on March 3 last, died at his home, 1716 N street northwest, at a quarter before 2 o'clock this morning. His death was due to the infirmities of age. For two days past he had been in a delirious condition of coma and the end was not unexpected. He is survived by a widow and three daughters, the Misses Margaret Marion and Edith Hawley.

Funeral Service Simple.
The arrangements for the funeral are simple. Services will be held at the residence, 1716 N street northwest, at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, to which will be invited the immediate friends of the deceased.

The Rev. Alfred Harding, of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, where General Hawley and his wife worshipped while in this city, will officiate. The remains will leave for Hartford, Conn., on the 7:40 o'clock express Monday morning. It is probable that a special car will be attached to the train for the party.

Sensors Platt and Buckley, of Connecticut, the latter General Hawley's successor in the Senate will have charge of the funeral at Hartford. Their plans so far are only tentative. Numerous messages of condolence were received today at the Hawley home from friends in Connecticut.

A Great Career.
General Hawley was one of the most distinguished members of the Senate throughout his entire term of twenty-four years' service. He entered with a record as soldier, editor, statesman, party leader, governor of his State and member of Congress for several terms. He had been one of the founders of the Republican party, the head of the Centennial Commission at Philadelphia and a useful citizen always. On coming into the Senate the same qualities which had made for his early fame came to the front again and he became foremost in advancing party policies. Always a leader previously, he revealed his ability to lead in statecraft and put his impress on a great deal of the legislation of the period.

As chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, General Hawley became a power among his colleagues. His war-time experience made him an authority on matters coming before the committee, and in this he had the assistance of such able veterans of the great struggle as Frator, Cockrell and Bate.

Affected by Bate's Death.
Many of General Hawley's close friends believe the end was hastened by the shock of Senator Bate's death. The Connecticut and Tennessee Senators had both served valiantly in the civil war. In later years, Hawley, the Union brigadier and Bate, the Confederate major general, had become good friends on the floor of the Senate, though the former was a Republican from the North and the latter, as naturally, a Democrat from the South. Bate came when Hawley was beginning his "senior term" in 1871. They got the oath together then and again in 1873 and 1879. Bate's death affected Hawley noticeably, and caused his family anxiety that he would not survive the shock.

Born in the South.
Although his family came from Farmington, Conn., which State he considered the land of his fathers, Joseph Roswell Hawley was a Southerner by birth. He first saw the light at Stewartville, a small hamlet in Richmond county, North Carolina. That was seventy-eight years ago last October.

Educated in the North, despite that accident of birth, he was an uncompromising opponent of the institution of slavery, and was one of the first to take up arms against the South in the cause of the Union. Entering the army from Hartford, Conn., as a captain, in April, 1861, he served until January, 1862, through many hard-fought campaigns, in which he won his stars. He became a brigadier general and then was brevetted major general of volunteers.

Chosen Governor.
Almost immediately after his return to his home in Connecticut, after the war, in the spring of 1866, General Hawley was elected governor of that State. It was not his first entrance into politics, however, for during the stirring year which followed the great war he, as editor of the Hartford Evening Press, had already attracted attention by his strong, vigorous, and outspoken articles on the questions of the day. The Press was afterwards consolidated with the Hartford Courant, and until within a few years ago, when advancing years compelled him to abandon his direct management to younger hands, General Hawley personally directed the editorial policy of that paper and contributed to its columns.

When Grant Was Named.
General Hawley was chairman of the Republican National Convention of 1868 and a delegate to each of the three succeeding conventions of that party. He was elected to Congress in 1872, and served three terms, not consecutively, when he was chosen United States Senator. He took his seat March 4, 1881, and has been a continuous member of that body until March 3 of this year, when he completed his fourth term, and was succeeded by ex-Gov. Morgan G. Bulkeley.

Two years ago, in December, 1902, his failing health caused him to relinquish the management of the Committee on Military Affairs, and he asked Frator, the next ranking Republican member, to assume the duties of acting chairman. His illness dates from that time. He attended the sessions of the Senate only once that winter, in February, but was able to remain only a short time. It was his last appearance at the Capitol. Since then he has gradually succumbed to the weight of years, until today, when the end came peacefully and painlessly, and his light flickered out.

TRIXEY DIAMOND
STOLE BAD MONEY

Bogus $100 Bill Among Cash She Took From an Old Soldier—Caught in Philadelphia.

Trixei Diamond, known to the police as a clever rogue, has been held under $500 bond for the action of the Washington grand jury.

She was given a hearing before United States Commissioner Craig in Philadelphia yesterday, and on the strength of the testimony of Detective Muller, who went to capture her, she was held to await trial.

Muller arrived in Washington this morning with money the girl admitted having taken from Augustus Krouse. A deputy United States marshal is expected to reach the city with the girl this afternoon or tonight.

When questioned by Detective Muller as to how she obtained the $100 from Krouse, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home, she waxed indignant and said: "One hundred and eighty did you say? That man does not know there is that much coin in the world. He had only $18 in real money and a fake $100 bill with the letters J. O. U. on it. I can't spend that can I?"

"Well, here's $13 of the money. I spent $4 for a ticket to 'Phillie' and bought something to eat with the other dollar. That makes $18. The other $92 I got from the letters J. O. U. on it. I have gotten fooled like that."

BY ONE'S HANDSHAKE
SHALL YE KNOW HIM

How to Spot a Liar, a Stingy Man, a Thief, and a Trustworthy Man.

CHICAGO, March 18.—Chicago credit men may never more take any risks. A hundred of them, representing the biggest houses in trade, listened to a phrenologist, who told them just how to decide between the goats and the sheep in the matter of paying debts.

Prof. Boger, for that is the man to whom human nature is an open book, hundred of these general rules: There is not a bump for thieving, another for murder, but there is a general conformation of the head which characterizes the born criminal.

The man who keeps his hands closed as a "set" while talking is a rascal, a liar. There is no exception to this rule. Don't give him credit.

A stingy man in shaking hands will never press his thumb on the exterior part of your hand.

A person noted for his indecision will offer his hand with a third. You have got to do the shaking.

A man who is forceful, energetic, and a deer never shakes hands in a listless manner.

Any person, male or female, who rolls the eyes while talking lies for effect. This is carried away by false pride.

The man who looks you in the eye, talks in moderate tone and modest manner, who shakes hands vigorously, who has neither nervous nor aggressive, can be trusted.

All women are a bad risk. This is due to inherited mental and physical traits, in which man figures as a Santa Claus.

STANDARD OIL HAS THE RICHEST FARM
400 Acres in Kansas Contains Only Tanks.

WORTH 2 MILLION DOLLARS
Covers Four Hundred Acres of Ground and Not a Dollar of Produce
Is Raised on It.

NEODESHA, Kan., March 18.—The onslaught of Kansans upon the Standard Oil Company has called attention to the fact that near this city John D. Rockefeller has what is undoubtedly the richest farm in the world, and not a dollar's worth of produce is raised upon it.

The farm consists of 400 acres of fine land. Its value is nearly $2,000,000, and its annual crop amounts to about $8,000,000.

The Rockefeller farm is purely a tank farm and is so called in this neighborhood. At approximately the same distance apart on the 400 acres are fifty big oil tanks, each having a storage capacity of from 25,000 to 60,000 barrels of oil.

A space of eight acres is set apart for each tank, and around each is a dike of earth about five feet in height, thrown up to catch the oil should a leak be sprung or to fight away the flames should they come in the wake of a stream of oil that had burst its confines.

Production Greatly Increased.
In these tanks is stored the surplus oil of the Kansas field. The production has been increased greatly. A year ago it was about 13,000 barrels a day; now it is more than twice that figure.

If the State is going to put the company out of business in Kansas the Standard will lose several millions in investments such as the tank farm, which will be moved without great impairment. The smaller tank farms at Humboldt and Caney.

These tank farms are connected with the oil fields everywhere. Big mains run into each of the six large producing counties, and from these laterals extend to wherever there is a well. The most an operator can show a production of fifty barrels a day the Standard will build him a pipe line.

More than $6,000,000 is invested by the Standard in pipe lines in this State. Each main line is supplied with a pumping station which forces the oil through the pipes. Where the oil does not run to wherever there is a well, the most an operator can show a production of fifty barrels a day the Standard will build him a pipe line.

Oil Stealings Frequent.
Forty men are employed to ride the pipe lines and gauge the oil. Their business is to look for thefts and leaks. Oil stealings have not been frequent in the past. A line will be tapped at some selected point and a wagonload of oil taken, to be sold later to the refinery.

The Kansas field is divided by the Standard into two districts. The dividing line runs just on the north side of Neodesha. The company does not believe that the oil in the north end of the field is as good as that in the south end, and a difference of 20 cents a barrel is made.

The man with a well just north of the line gets the much less than a man with a well a hundred feet away, but on the south side of it, and this has aroused much feeling. The company reports that it must make the division somewhere, and somebody must get hurt. Very heavy oil is produced in the north end.

ASSAILS REPUBLICAN FORMS OF GOVERNMENT
Harvard Professor Says Roosevelt Says He "Never Quotes the Declaration."

DETROIT, March 18.—Prof. Hugo Münsterberg, head of the psychology department of Harvard University, friend of President Roosevelt, created a sensation at a dinner given by the Cosmopolitan Club, by assailing all republican forms of government.

He declared that President Roosevelt had told him "I regard the Declaration of Independence as made up of glittering generalities. You will never hear me quote the Declaration of Independence."

The professor asked the reporters present not to quote him on this.

He was bitterly disputed by other speakers, who refused to believe that President Roosevelt had uttered such an expression.

MEETING TO DISCUSS BANK SUPERVISION

LOCAL BAR TO ATTEND JUDGE COLE'S FUNERAL
Services to Be Held at St. John's Episcopal Church on Monday Morning.

Arrangements for the funeral of ex-Judge Charles Cleaves Cole, who died yesterday morning at his home, 1705 N street, have been completed.

The services, which will be held at St. John's Episcopal Church, of which Justice Cole was a member, will take place at 11 o'clock next Monday morning and will be attended by the members of the Washington bar in a body. The Rev. Roland Cotton Smith will officiate.

The remains of Justice Cole will not be interred immediately, but will be placed in a vault in Rock Creek cemetery, and will later be removed to his early home at Hiram, Oxford county, Me., where he was born.

By order of Hugh T. Taggart, president of the Washington Bar Association, of which Justice Cole was a member, Charles W. Clagett, secretary of the association, has issued a call for the members to meet at the rooms of the organization in the City Hall, at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning, and from there proceed in a body to St. John's Church to attend the funeral services.

The pall-bearers will be Chief Justice Harry M. Clabaugh, of the Supreme Court, District of Columbia; U. S. Marshall for the District; J. J. Darlington, George Hamilton, E. K. Camp, Reginald Huldekoper, R. W. Parker, and E. Golden Donaldson.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.
Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and efficient safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it cleanses the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but the best is Stuart's Charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the taste being mixed with a sweetener.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much-improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent medicine, yet I advise them to all who desire better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."
