EPISCOPAL HIGH

Neither Eleven Is Able to Score in Fiercely Contested Struggle.

BOTH TEAMS FIGHT GAMELY

Alexandrians Held Only Under Shadow of Goal Posts Against Terrific Onslaughts of Washington Backfield.

In a game stubbornly fought from start to finish, and in which neither could score, Central High School outplayed Episcopal High of Alexandria, on the Alexandrians' field yesterday, in every point of the game except in kicking.

Although the local eleven was handicapped through the absence of three of its best players, Captain MacDonald, Lacklin, and Kowitch, it seldom failed to make the distance, and was rarely never in danger of being defeated. Had it not been for an excusable piece of poor headwork in the running of the team at the close of the first half, when Central was within a few yards of the goal line, and the brilliant punting of Fullback Bowen, of Episcopal, which sent Blue and White should have had at least two touchdowns. As it was, the O Strikers kept the oval well within the territory of the Virginians during most of the struggle.

Both Teams Show Good Form.

This is but the second game for both teams, Central having defeated Gallaudet last Tuesday, and Episcopal having defeated Technical High on its own grounds last Saturday. Both teams, however, put up a splendid article of ball for the short time they have been in training, and if form counts for aught Central should be a big factor in the coming inter-high series.

The forward pass was not tried once. Central stuck to the old style of play with the exception of the new quarterback kick which was perfectly worked once, and did not fail to gain the other times. The only other play used by the Washingtonians were the mass on tackles and line plunges. On the other hand, Episcopal, besides using these plays, resorted to the tandem formation, for which it is well known, quarterback runs, and several trick plays. The latter were of little avail, and were called for but once. The first resulted in no gain, and on the other, a Central man tore through the line, broke up the play and threw the runner for a big loss.

Central did not once fumble, but the failure of its opponents to squeeze onto the leather caused them the loss of the ball several times, and proved fatal the only time when they had any opportunity to score.

Burch Plays Great Game.

Burch, for Central, put up a slashing game, and rarely failed to make his distance when called on. Time after time, the Episcopalians would hold like a stone wall for three downs, and Burch would crash through it for first, with MacDonald and Hamilton striking him several yards after he had been tackled. Burch was a tower of strength on the defensive, and was Fleming, at right tackle, and Ruhl, at left. Frank Evans handled the long twirling punts which Bowen sent hurtling down the field for an average of forty or fifty yards, and with the one exception mentioned before ran the team well.

Central Starts With Rush.

Bowen kicked to Central's 10-yard line, and the ball was returned twenty yards before the runner was brought down. Evans began immediately to pound the line, and on their own 30-yard line did the Virginians pull themselves together and hold for a down. After gaining three firsts, Episcopal was forced to kick, and a beautiful one it was. It was kicked away perfectly, and sailed fifty-five yards down the gridiron before Evans caught it and dove in his tracks. The ball was advanced into Episcopal's ground, and after several time changing punts, Central was in possession, with fifty yards to go for a score.

Locating a weak spot in the left side of the line, Evans again began to mercilessly hammer it, occasionally varying the monotony by hurling one of the halves through the other side.

In this way twenty yards was gained, but here the home team braced gamely, and with seven to go on the third down a quarterback kick was the third down. Hamilton recovering the ball after it had rolled ten yards. For the third time, Central began its attack, and grinding tactics against the weak spot in the line, only to have the ball taken away when within a few feet of the line.

Episcopal immediately kicked, and won back the ball away from Central.

The remainder of the half was decidedly in Episcopal's favor. With a flash of the wind and speed which has won them many a victory, they carried the Washingtonians off their feet, and when time was called, just after a fumble, the ball was in Central's possession on their own 35-yard line.

Fumbling Fatal to Virginians.

The second half was but a repetition of the first. Both teams came back determined to win, and for a short time it looked as though the Virginians would sweep everything before them, but fumbling lost them their only chance, and Central soon had the ball again in the enemy's ground, and but for the aggressiveness with which every inch of ground was fought when Central closed on their 30-yard line, the home team would have been once again on the line-up and summary:

WARWICKS WRANGLE WITH JUNIOR PREPS

Two Versions of a Hot Contest at Georgetown—New Rules Cause Trouble.

The Warwick yesterday met their match when they played the Georgetown Junior Preps, at Georgetown. There was only twenty minutes of play, as the game ended in a wrangle, and was called by the umpire at the end of the first half, with twenty seconds to play. In that time the 115-pound Prep eleven held the 140-pound Warwick, and by using the forward pass and quarterback kick to good advantage scored a touchdown.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—Prospects are bright for the coming meeting of the runners at famous old Pimlico, beginning November 11, the track were the equals of former days.

It was at Pimlico that the great horse Parole, running in the colors of Mr. Lorrillard, defeated the Western champion, Ten Brock, and the wonderful Tom Ochiltree. Old-time racing men will never forget that event. It remains ever fresh in their memories, as one of the great races of the turf, in which West and East pitted the very best against each other, and in which the East came off victorious.

Plenty of Extra Stalls.

Many stirring contests of the great horses of America have taken place at Pimlico since then, but never was greater interest manifested in any meeting than in the coming two weeks' session. Applications for stable room have been received in such quantities that accommodations for the horses will be at a premium inside the grounds of Pimlico, but there is ample room outside for late comers, as there are three trotting tracks in the immediate vicinity.

Autumn Steeplechase.

Nearly all the best timber-toppers in training are entered in the Pimlico Autumn Steeplechase. It closed with twenty-two entries, and all the leading owners in the East are represented by one or more horses. In the Pimlico Country Selling Stake, on the flat, only gentlemen jockeys will be eligible. This always has been an event of much interest to Baltimore and Washington racegoers, as it has brought out a large number of young men who do not have to ride for a living, but do it for glory and pleasure.

Doctors Needed.

Twice during the contest the doctors' services were brought into requisition, once for a Buff and Blue man, and once for a member of the opposing team. Steenerson played an all-around good game for the Hatchettes, his punting and quarterback runs being a feature. Besides him Beard, Gunning, and Sommers played hard games, and Sutton made several long runs for the Hatchettes. Mosey and O'Donnell excelled for the Kendall Green athletes.

The Line-Up.

G. W. U. ROLLS UP SCORE ON MUTES

Swamps Them by 27 to 0 by All Around Good Work.

STEENERSON BRIGHT STAR

Makes 80-Yard Run and Kicks Goal From Field—Winners Have Strong Team.

In the first regularly scheduled game on the home grounds George Washington University yesterday defeated Gallaudet by 27 to 0 at Van Ness Park.

Although Gallaudet put up a stiff defense during the entire game and particularly in the first half, it was clearly outclassed and at no time had the slightest look-in against its heavier and more experienced opponents. Nothing showed this more clearly than the fact that it did not make a single first down, its longest gain being an attempted forward pass by the Hatchettes, which sighted in the arms of a mutes.

Winners Are Strong.

The game was marred by a good deal of fumbling, especially by George Washington University, but, as a whole, was well worth seeing, and plainly showed that the strongest team that the downtown institution has ever boasted.

Gallaudet kicked off to George Washington in the first half, and Beard, punting the oval, ran it back twenty yards before being stopped.

After a couple of short gains the Mutes held and Captain Steenerson hauled a fifty-yard spiral, which was fumbled, but recovered by Gallaudet. Failing to gain on successive tries, O'Donnell punted to Steenerson, and George Washington's big right tackle, relieving the back field at frequent intervals and gaining consistently the ball was carried to Gallaudet's 30-yard line, where the Hatchettes were held for downs.

Forward Pass Works.

Gallaudet punted after three futile attempts around right and left ends. With the ball in the Mutes' territory the forward pass was worked successfully and Gunning got away for a twenty-five yard gain. Babcock was shoved over a minute after the first touchdown. Steenerson kicked goal. Score, George Washington University, 6; Gallaudet, 0. The Mutes kicked off and with the ball near the center of the field Steenerson punted fifty yards, the ball bounding over O'Donnell's head, reaching the 5-yard line and being recovered by George Washington University. A few minutes after, on a quarterback run, Steenerson scored the second touchdown, which was quickly converted into a goal. George Washington, 12; Gallaudet, 0.

Gallaudet kicked off and Steenerson ran it back twenty yards. Several successful forward passes by Steenerson, who had succeeded Lorando at left end, receiving the ball, netted sixty yards, and the Mutes again held for downs.
